Measures Introduced in New Jersey Legislature Forbid Price Fixing Under Heavy Penalties.

NEW MONOPOLIES BARRED

Existing Corporations Not Disturbed, but They Must Avoid Prohibited Practices.

HOLDING CONCERNS ILLEGAL

Governor's Supporters in the State Confident the Legislature Will Pass the Measures as They Stand.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 20.—With the introduction to-night in the State Senate of the seven administration anti-trust bills, the work undertaken by Gov. Wilson of redeeming New Jersey from the charge of being a trust-ridden State or the home of trusts was begun. The bills were introduced by Senator J. Warren Davis of Salem, the Democratic leader in the Senate. They were drawn at Gov. Wilson's request by Chancellor Edwin R. Walker and ex-Judge Bennet Vansyckle. Chancellor Walker presides over the highest court in the State, and Mr. Vansyckle is regarded as one of New Jersey's foremost lawyers.

If passed, these bills will strike the heaviest blow yet delivered at price fixing, not only in New Jersey, but anywhere in the United States. If any New Jersey corporation, whether incorporated now or incorporated hereafter, enters into any price fixing agreement anywhere or any agreement in restraint of trade, it and its Directors are to be held guilty of a misdemeanor. The charter of the corporation may be revoked, and each Director sentenced to serve three years' imprisonment, or pay a fine not exceeding $1,000, or suffer both fine and imprisonment.

There is nothing retroactive about this feature of the bills. No existing corporation is to be disturbed so long as it obeys the law. This legislation merely creates a new offense, that of conspiracy to fix prices or restrain trade, and imposes on the corporations now in existence as well as those hereafter to be formed, the necessity of avoiding it.

Bills Represent Wilson's Views.

The bills represent Gov. Wilson's ideas and are intended by him to redeem the platform pledges made by the party in the State campaign. The fact that these seven bills are Gov. Wilson's own measures leads to the question whether they foreshadow anything in regard to his trust policy in the Nation. That question was suggested to Gov. Wilson this afternoon in a question as to whether the bills represented his view of what should be done in all the States of the Union.

"They represent my idea of what should be done in New Jersey," he answered, dryly.

The bills do not make it illegal for any trust or holding company now incorporated in New Jersey to do business, but they do make it illegal for any future company in restraint of trade to incorporate here. Any holding company now incorporated can hold stock in the companies in which it now does so, but it cannot go further. It cannot acquire any more. Gov. Wilson's often-repeated declaration, made first by Gov. Harmon of Ohio, that "guilt is personal," will become the law of New Jersey if these bills become law. Violation of them is to be punished by fines and imprisonment, the fines and punishments being imposed on individuals.

Summed up, the bills do not drive the trusts out of the State, but simply put New Jersey in the class of other States which have strong anti-trust laws. It takes this State out of the small number of States which are offering special inducements to trusts to incorporate under their laws. Intending trust promoters will have to go to Delaware or some other of the few trust-protecting States in future. Such, at least, is the attitude of the friends of the measure.

The corporations incorporated in New Jersey are capitalized at $7,861,499,369, and on this total capitalization the State obtains an annual tax of $2,691,891. Among the companies incorporated here are the United States Steel Corporation, capitalized at $868,583,600; the Amalgamated Copper Company, $153,887,902; the Rock Island Company, $150,000,000; the International Merchant Marine, $120,000,000; the American Tobacco Company, $118,931,500; Federal Steel, $99,245,200; Standard Oil, $81,843,625; American Can Company, $82,393,349; Corn Products, $79,575,100; United States Rubber, $74,763,000; Distilling Company of America, $70,719,200; American Woolen Company, $69,501,100; Carnegie Steel, $64,514,750, and hundreds of others.

This summary of the provisions of the seven bills was made to-day by Chancellor Walker, who drew them:

Aimed to Prevent Monopolies.

"A series of bills, seven in number, are to be introduced into the Senate this evening. They are administration measures and emanated from Gov. Wilson. They have been drawn for the purpose of preventing monopolies by corporations, firms, and individuals. One is an act defining trusts and providing for criminal penalties and for the punishment of corporations, firms, and persons violating its provisions, and is intended to promote free competition in all classes of business.

LIGHT MAGNIFIED 1,000-FOLD.

Remarkable Electrical Discovery by M. Dussaud, French Scientist.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—M. Dussaud, a French scientist, who has discovered a means for the production of what he terms "cold light," to-day gave some details of his discovery, which, it is thought, may revolutionize electric lighting.

Starting on the principle that rest is as essential to matter as to animal organisms, M. Dussaud has constructed an electric lamp in which the light is concentrated on a single point by filaments working successively; thence the light is projected through a lens magnifying a thousandfold. Thus he has succeeded in concentrating a 2,000-candle power light on one point and in passing thirty-two volts into an eight-volt lamp, which with the ordinary light would burst.

Experiments with this lamp have shown that the new light is absolutely without danger, as no heat is given off, and it requires a hundred times less current than the ordinary lamp. It can be worked by a tiny battery, or sufficient motive power can be obtained from a jet of water from an ordinary faucet, or even a squirrel turning a cage.

The light, it is said, offers great advantages in photography, as its photogenic power is four times that of the magnesium flashlight. It has been tried with great success at the Biarritz lighthouse, and M. Dussaud is working on its application to searchlights for the Ministry of War.

SHAW REFUSES TO QUIT.

Financier Says He Has an Unexpired Contract with Trust Company.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 20.—Leslie M. Shaw, once Secretary of the Treasury, called at the office of the First Mortgage Guarantee and Trust Company to-day and intimated that he held a five-year contract to work for the company, and that the contract did not expire until April 15, 1914.

Mr. Shaw was virtually dismissed as President of the company on Jan. 16. The Directors he had assisted in electing two days previously effected his dismissal, which Mr. Shaw has described as "brutal."

Wharton E. Harris, the newly elected President, said Mr. Shaw would not be allowed to continue to control the proxies of the majority of the stockholders, as Mr. Shaw asserted he could in an open letter to the newspapers on Saturday night.

Mr. Shaw was asked if he had made any plans to leave Philadelphia.

"Oh, no. Why should I?" he answered. "You see, I still am an employe of this company under the contract I hold. This does not expire until April 15 next year. Until then I am here ready to perform any work that may be assigned to me. Of course, I will carry out my part of the contract, and there can be no question that the company will carry out its part. Of course, I have not a five-year contract as President, as the President has to be elected every year."

Mr. Harris refuses to comment on Mr. Shaw's statement regarding the contract he asserts he holds.

INVADED STOCK EXCHANGE.

One of Harburger's Deputies Fights His Way to Service of Papers.

In spite of determined efforts to prevent him, Deputy Sheriff Mayforth entered the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, at Sheriff Harburger's orders, and served William Thorton Simpson, a member of the Stock Exchange, with a demand for payment of $86,319.52, owing on a judgment obtained by Charles E. Proctor.

"Go in and get him," said the Sheriff to his deputy, and Mayforth went.

"At the door," said Mayforth, when discussing it later, flushed with the heat of victory, "about fifteen people tried to stop me. I shook them off, telling them I meant business, and was there on official duty, and got away from them after a struggle. I had a hard time finding Simpson, and looked for him about fifteen minutes, with people bumping into me all the time. I found him at last, and he told me to see him about 1 o'clock, when he would have more time to discuss the situation. When I went back later he said he would pay the debt by selling his seat on the Stock Exchange.

Sheriff Harburger had not much to say about the affair, but was evidently greatly pleased.

"I knew he wouldn't fail," he said, "He's one of my men, you see."

HENRY KOBSA HURT.

Injured in Automobile Accident in Chicago with Brother and Son.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—During the prevalence of a severe snow storm this morning, when objects a few yards distant were scarcely discernible, an automobile, in which were riding Henry Kobsa, a distiller, of 166 West 129th Street,, his son, Henry Kobsa, Jr., of 49 West 129th Street, and the elder Kobsa's brother, Richard Kobsa, of 233 West 127th Street, New York, collided with a Wentworth Avenue trolley car. The automobile was wrecked and the three occupants were thrown into the street. They were taken to the Provident Hospital suffering from injuries they received in the collision.

Henry Kobsa was injured internally, and some of his ribs were broken. Richard Kobsa's skull was fractured. Henry Kobsa, Jr., received internal injuries and contusions.

For a time the injuries of the elder Kobsa and his brother caused some apprehension, but their condition was much improved to-night.

The party had just started to visit the stock yards when the accident occurred. The chauffeur was not hurt.

TRIED TO WRECK TRAIN.

Man with a Grudge Against Road Prompted Him, Culprit Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKESBARRE, Jan. 20.—Michael Miller, aged 28 years, of Rock Glen, pleaded guilty to-day to having attempted to wreck the Pennsylvania Railroad flier on the mountain near his home on Dec. 10, 1912. Miller was caught after he had wedged stones in the rails over a small mountain bridge.

He said that he tried to wreck the train because a resident of Rock Glen, who had a grudge against the company, had requested him to do so.

READY TO ABANDON BIG WIRELESS DEAL

Marconi Company Asks British Government to Dissolve Agreement for Chain of Stations.

BAD TREATMENT IS ALLEGED

Prices of Materials Have Risen While Parliament Has Been Investigating the Contract.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 21.—There was a sensational development yesterday in connection with the inquiry regarding the Marconi Company's contract with the British Government. Godfrey C. Isaacs, Managing Director of the company, wrote to the Postmaster General requesting that the Government treat the contract as no longer binding on either party.

The wireless department of the Stock Exchange was greatly excited on getting the news, Marconi shares falling at first, but recovering and closing stronger on the day.

Mr. Isaacs's letter to the Postmaster General argued that the protracted inquiry was causing serious detriment to the company. When, he said, the contract was finally signed last July 19, his company was reasonably entitled to expect that it would have been forthwith submitted to Parliament for ratification. That course was not followed, and a Parliamentary select committee was appointed. Over three months had now elapsed since the decision of the House of Commons to appoint a committee, and no fewer than twenty-eight public sittings of the committee had been held. Mr. Isaacs added:

"Although many witnesses have been called, the committee has had no evidence upon the question of long-distance commercial wireless telegraphy from those best qualified to speak with experience on the subject. Moreover, much evidence has been given without an opportunity of repudiation being afforded to the company, and this has resulted in erroneous statements, technical and otherwise, being reproduced in the press of nearly every country of the world, to the serious detriment of the company."

Mr. Isaacs then referred to the interim report of the select committee indorsing the urgent necessity for the construction of imperial wireless stations and recommending the House of Commons to appoint a technical committee to inquire as to the best system of wireless telegraphy to be adopted. He said:

"If this question is once more to be considered, my company would welcome in principle the appointment of such a committee, provided that proper facilities were afforded for testing the evidence to be given before it. It must, however, be borne in mind that even before March 7 last the negotiations with my company were very protracted, owing to the appointment of committees, technical and otherwise, comprising representatives of the Admiralty, the War Office, and other Government departments, which investigated and considered, prior to the acceptance of my company's tender, whether there was any other system which could be employed for the imperial stations. The necessity for such an inquiry is not more apparent now than it was three months ago."

Mr. Isaacs points out that his company has kept a staff of engineers, retained for the purpose of the contracts, idle for many months, and that in the meanwhile the price of materials has increased. The delays which have occurred in the ratification of the contract were not, he says, anticipated by either party, and Mr. Isaacs submits that it is not equitable that the company should remain bound while investigations never contemplated are continued for an indefinite period. Therefore he requests the Government to agree that the company treat the contract as no longer binding.

Mr. Isaacs adds that the company will be ready when the Parliamentary investigation is completed to take up the matter again if the Government desires, but on such terms as may then be agreed upon.

The reading of Mr. Isaacs's letter at yesterday's meeting of the Marconi select committee caused one sensation. Another was created shortly afterward by a statement by Sir George Croydon Marks, M. P., that under the Patents act of 1907 the Marconi contract was illegal. Sir George contends that the grant of a twenty-eight years' royalty where the life of a patent is at the most fourteen years is a contravention of Section XXXVIII. of the Patents act, which forbids a purchaser, lessee, or licensee (i. e., the Post Office) to acquire from a seller, lessor, or licensor (i. e., the Marconi Company) any article or class of articles not prohibited by the patent. Sir George's argument is that the ratification of the present agreement would therefore invalidate the Marconi patents all over the British Empire. The legal point is one which, Sir George submits, only higher experts can pronounce upon.

30 ARRESTS LIKELY IN THE ARSON TRUST

FIVE MORE INDICTMENTS

Henry C. Freeman in Latest List, and District Attorney's Office Demands $50,000 Bail.

Assistant District Attorney Weller said yesterday he was sure he had reached the leaders of the arson trust and was ready to proceed against a long array of firebugs and public adjusters. He said it was likely thirty men would be arrested.

This announcement was made after the Grand Jury had returned five indictments charging arson in the second degree.

One of the men indicted was Henry C. Freeman, a public fire insurance adjuster, of 86 West 119th Street. Freeman surrendered and was held by Judge Rosalsky without bail until to-day, when he will be rearraigned. Mr. Weller asked that Freeman be held in $50,000 bail for pleading. An indictment also was found against Abraham Schlichten of 134 East 101st Street, who was arrested on Saturday for having hired Isidor Stein, alias "Izzy the Painter," to set fire to his home. One of the remaining indictments is against a firebug whose operations are ranked second only to those of Stein, while the remaining two indictments are against two flat dwellers, who are accused of having ordered fires made in their homes.

The indictment against Freeman charges that upon being informed that Abraham Schlichten had a fire insurance policy, Freeman told Stein to fire Schlichten's furniture. Stein set the fire and Freeman presented a claim for $761.50 against the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company. George W. Birch, adjuster for the insurance company, made a personal examination of the premises the day after the fire and reported that the loss did not amount to more than $125. After holding the claim up for sixty days, however, the insurance company settled for $325.

Mr. Weller said he believed the arrest of George Grutz, Robert J. Rubin, and Freeman, all public adjusters, had broken up the arson trust. The arrest of Samuel Gold, who confessed, and of Kalman Newmark and Isidor Stein practically drove the other members of the gang out of the city, Mr. Weller said.

Information supplied to Mr. Weller by Fire Marshal Prial shows that most of the unexplained fires occur during the slack season in the various trades, and that in many cases the same places have had fires of a similar nature before. The record of one shirt manufacturing firm shows nine fires, all of which took place shortly after the firm had obtained a new policy.

Mr. Weller reports that his investigation shows that the headquarters of the "firebugs" is in the vicinity of Second Avenue and 100th Street. Reports from the district show it is a hotbed of incendiary fires.

In arguing that Freeman be held in $50,000 bail, Mr. Weller told Judge Rosalsky that the defendant settled all the losses of a gang of seven men, who did nothing but set fire to furniture, and that previous to his conducting an extensive business of adjusting losses in mercantile establishments he did a wide business with these men. Mr. Weller said this business continued although Freeman had not appeared in person to make any claims. He said he would prove, however, that while not appearing in person Freeman hired men to do it.

Fire Marshal Prial reported yesterday that during the week of Jan. 12 to 18, inclusive, of this year there were 147 fires in Manhattan and the Bronx against 326 fires during the corresponding period in 1912. Marshal Prial believes this is due to the vigorous campaign which District Attorney Whitman has conducted.

USED GASOLINE SAUSAGES.

Chicago Firebugs Placed Them in Buildings to Spread Flames.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—It became known to-day that the so-called arson trust resorted to extraordinary ingenuity in their operations, whereby many incendiary fires were started in this city and outskirts, in the course of an investigation conducted by Assistant State's Attorney Johnston.

Sausage skins filled with gasoline were used in one fire now under investigation, and in another instance bladders, usually used in the big packing houses for lard, were filled with the same oil and strung on lines in the building to be fired. When the fire spread to the gasoline-filled skins a series of explosions followed, practically dooming the building.

A chemical preparation was also used, known as "fire powder," enabling the firebug to be miles away from the scene of the fire before the blaze started. The powder ignited automatically.

Mr. Johnston at present is confining his inquiry to three fires in which a large insurance is involved. It is known that three men prepared the incendiary fires. One man carried gasoline to the building to be fired, another arranged the place, and the third started the flames.

COL. JOHN S. CROSBY ATTACKED BY VALET

Japanese Servant Goes Suddenly Insane and Threatens the Veteran with a Knife.

OLD SOLDIER HOLDS HIM OFF

Although Ill He Defends Himself Ably Until Help Arrives and Valet Is Taken to Bellevue.

Col. John Schuyler Crosby, prominent in the principal battles in the civil war and hero of many Indian wars, including the best of Gen. Custer's fights, was attacked when ill in bed in his home at 206 West Fifty-second Street, last night by Iwa Mago, his Japanese valet, who became suddenly insane. The Colonel, although ill, leaped from his bed and wrestled with his valet until help came.

Before making the attack the Japanese armed himself with a short knife from the Colonel's big collection of old weapons. Despite the unexpectedness of the attack and despite his seventy-four years, Col Crosby was able to ward off the attack and to overpower the frenzied servant before any wound could be inflicted.

The Japanese was later carried struggling to Bellevue Hospital, where, at midnight, he was in the psychopathic ward under strict observation. Col. Crosby was vastly stirred up by the incident, but beyond this, Dr. Bolling Lee, his physician, did not feel that he was much the worse for the encounter.

The Japanese valet had been employed by Col. Crosby for seven years. In that time he had proved himself swift, silent, and efficient, and Col. Crosby could never bear to part from him, despite the fact that the man was given to occasional outbursts that sometimes became violent.

The attack last night was not utterly without warning. On Saturday night, when the Colonel ordered his supper brought to his bedroom, the Japanese revolted, and in a burst of temper began to sling china and brassware about until he had caused no little damage in the apartment. However, he subsided finally and served the supper docilely enough without any further sign of rebellion.

Last night at 9:30 came the order for the Colonel's supper to be brought from the kitchen to the sick room. Iwa Mago demurred again, but after a momentary delay took the tray and marched off to the Colonel's bedside. No one else except the sick man was there at the time, for the nurse had stepped into the next room.

Col. Crosby, who had seen none of the storm brewing, was brought suddenly to a sitting posture by the sight of Iwa Mago putting down the tray, lifting his hands in the air, and declaring that he was going to kill himself. He turned then and darted into an adjoining room, where he knew that the Colonel kept his collection of old muskets, sabres, and other weapons of by-gone warfare. He emerged the next moment, armed with a short knife, and jumped to the Colonel's side.

Col Crosby struggled with the maddened servant until other servants ran in and succeeded in subduing Iwa Mago utterly. Then Col. Crosby sank back on his bed exhausted, but with no wound to show for all the knife brandishing and unreasoning rage of the Japanese.

Dr. Bolling Lee came to the apartment from his office, at 30 West Forty-ninth Street, and decided that the prostrate Iwa Mago must be taken to Bellevue Hospital. The telephone call went in, and Dr. Gregory and two assistants hurried uptown.

At their first attempt to lead the Japanese to the ambulance he became uncontrouble again, and succeeded in getting hold of a revolver from the drawer of a small cabinet. This was wrested from his hand, and after a struggle he was carried downstairs and out.

This was the first attack the Japanese had ever made on Col. Crosby or on any one else, but he had often threatened self-destruction. Some five years ago, when he was attending Col. Crosby on a yachting expedition he tried to leap overboard and drown himself, but was restrained. Two years ago the frenzy came on him again, and he beat his head against the wall in an effort to dash his brains out.

Josiah Thompson Gets Decree, but Settles Fortune on His Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

UNIONTOWN, Penn., Jan. 20.—Josiah Van Kirk Thompson, coal and coke operator and banker at Uniontown, obtained a divorce to-day from Blanche A. Thompson. The decree is a special one, by the terms of which Thompson pays Mrs. Thompson $1,000,000, and each party to the suit has the right to marry again.

The proceedings which have been under way since May, have been conducted with much secrecy, and the papers in the case have not yet become a matter of public record. They are in the possession of Thompson's counsel, W. Cook McKean, who declines to discuss the case or to give any information.

Thompson is 58 years of age, and his wife about 41. They have not lived together for two years. Although Mrs. Thompson has occupied part of the Thompson home here periodically during that time, she has been making her home at the Plaza Hotel, New York.

The decree was handed down at noon to-day, and a short time afterward Attorneys R. W. Dawson and Reuben L. Mayward, acting for Mrs. Thompson, signed a receipt for $1,000,000.

FOR SUFFRAGE, 123 TO 7.

Assembly Votes for Constitutional Amendment—Still Before Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—After defeating for the second time an amendment exacting the same qualifications for women of alien birth who acquire citizenship by marriage as now apply in the enfranchisement of male citizens by naturalization, the Assembly at its session to-night rushed to final passage the proposed Constitutional amendment calling for a referendum on the question of woman suffrage. The vote was 123 to 7. Those voting in the negative were McCue, McDaniels, and Rozan, Democrats; Jones, T. K. Smith, Wood, and Yeomans, Republicans.

In the debate that preceded the final vote Assemblyman Cuvillier of New York urged that if women were to be placed on a level with men in the matter of voting they should be made to do military service, too.

The woman suffrage amendment was amended again in the Senate to-night on motion of Senator Wagner, its introducer. The amendment provides that a woman who is a citizen by marriage must have been an inhabitant of the United States five years before she is eligible to vote.

The bill will come up for passage in the Senate later in the week. The woman suffrage enthusiasts favor this amendment.

HEAVY WESTERN SNOWFALL.

Chicago Street Car Traffic Impeded —Idaho Railways Blocked.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—A heavy snow storm greatly impeded traffic in this city to-day. With trolley wires and third rails coated with snow and sleet, street cars hardly more than crawled over their routes, and thousands of persons were late in reporting at their various tasks. Telegraph service was affected, although not demoralized.

HAILEY, Idaho, Jan. 20.—As a result of a severe snow storm in the Wood River district several passenger trains are stalled, wires are down, and cattle are perishing. For two weeks a blizzard has raged, entirely isolating several points from communication.

A passenger train which left here Saturday is stalled near Fisheries, where the passengers are being cared for by farmers. A relief party with two locomotives which left Shoshone to-day became snowed in ten miles from its objective point.

Two hundred head of cattle near Hailey are snowed in without water or food. Many other herds are lost or unable to reach the river.

The snow at Ketchum is six feet deep on the level.

NO 1913 ICE FROM HUDSON

Forecast of Up-River Expert—Tulips Budding at Newburg.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Spring-like weather up to the present time has set the rose bushes budding and the tulips pushing their heads through the ground. The outlook isn't very promising for the ice crop, although the mercury is taking a drop to-night. Hiram B. Odell, superintendent of the Muchattoes Lake Ice Company, was not very hopeful to-night when spoken to in regard to the prospects for a good yield of ice, yet he was not despondent.

"Indications are not flattering," said he, "yet it is far from being impossible to fill our big houses. We are usually out of trouble by this time, but it will be all right if we can get cold weather for ten days, even to the middle of February. I have seen the time, in 1870, when ice cutting was begun on March 1, but we did no more than get the houses filled. Usually we supply the coolers and several big establishments about the city. It looks now as though they would have to look elsewhere for it this year. We have but a small supply left over, and the outlook is poor all over the territory we could naturally expect to draw from.

"As things are now I do not think there will be any ice cut in the upper Hudson. It wil take ten days of zero weather, the condition water is in now, to produce cutting ice. We like twelve-inch ice, but this year will take no chances if we get opportunity of cutting at eight inches."

FIRST STRAW HAT OUT

And Honeysuckle Blooms in Jersey, with Mercury at 70.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, N. J., Jan. 20.—It is straw-hat season here now. J. Clark Axford, a local business man, set the fashion by driving around town to-day with the Summer headgear adorning him. He was laughed at for the most part, but nobody could deny that there was nearly as much excuse for the light covering as in the middle of Summer. The thermometer has soared as high as 70 here in the last few days, and so far from there being any frost in the ground, the grass is green in dooryards and flowers are blooming in favorable places.

Nathan O. Parks, Superintendent at the plant of the National Fireproofing Company at Port Murray, has a Japanese honeysuckle plant in full bloom. It usually blossoms in May.

GLADYS RECOVERS LASSIE.

Child's Letter to Gaynor Stirs Up, Not Police, but Fireman.

The letter written to Mayor Gaynor on Saturday by Gladys Freeman, 13 years old, of 600 West 136th Street, requesting that the police watch for Lassie, her collie dog, resulted in the recovery of the dog.

Last night a fireman found Lassie in West 130th Street, near Amsterdam Avenue. He took the dog away from the man who was leading it and took it to the West 125th Street Station. Detective George Thompson of that station took the dog to the Freeman home, where it was identified by the child. Gladys said she would send a letter to Mayor Gaynor thanking him for the interest he took in the case.

MITCHEL DEALS SUBWAYS A BLOW

Eleventh-Hour Attack So Timed That Contracts May Hang Fire Till Willcox Goes.

ALL MAY BE UPSET AGAIN

Gov. Sulzer Said to Have Determined to Replace Chairman on Feb. 1.

FIGHT ON WHOLE CONTRACT

President of the Aldermen Challenges Recapture Clause, the Leg Trades and All the Financial Scheme.

Strong opposition to the city's bargain for subways developed at the eleventh hour yesterday, when the Public Service Commission had announced the last public hearing it would hold on the contracts it proposes to sign with the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for the completion of and operation of the dual subway system. An attack was made on the fundamental principles of the agreement, which was arranged after montns and months of negotiations.

President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen appeared at the hearing in the Tribune Building accompanied by his secretary, to make a specific onslaught on the financial terms. He raised objections which had lately been passed upon in the discussions of the matter, mentioning such details as the preferential payments, the rates at which the companies are raising their money, and the recapture clauses.

His speech was in contrast to the views of those who crowded the hall to the doors, for nearly all of these had come to urge the commission to make the contracts as quickly as possible. It was noted that Mitchel's assault came just at the moment that it became known that there was very little prospect that the contracts could be signed before Feb. 1, the day on which the term of Chairman Willcox expires.

Negotiations have been going on daily, and the important items which Mr. Mitchel brought into controversy yesterday have been fully considered. Mr. Mitchel was at the meeting of the Board of Estimate's committee on the Sunday before last, and it was found on comparing notes that there were few points raised by him yesterday to which the committee was not fully alive and which it was not endeavoring to have adjusted in making the contracts.

Object of the Attack.

It was rumored at the City Hall that the public attack made by President Mitchel meant that Gov. Sulzer was determined to waste no time in appointing Mr. Willcox's successor, and it was suggested that the favorite candidate for the office was Clarence J. Shearn, who ran for Governor on the Independence League ticket the year before last, and who is the attorney and intimate of William Randolph Hearst. It is known that Chairman Willcox will not yield any ground in the negotiations with the companies which he believes he can win, in order to get the contracts signed before Feb. 1, and it is feared that if Mr. Shearn or any other new Chairman is nominated before everything is signed, sealed, and delivered, the entire agreement will be upset and the city will once more find itself where it was two years ago.

When Chairman Willcox rapped for order at the beginning of the afternoon hearing on the Interborough contract President Mitchel was with his secretary at a special table. He opened fire at once by announcing that he intended to discuss not only the Interborough but the B. R. T. contract as well, although the hearing on that had been held in the morning, with only a sprinkling of speakers present.

He pointed out that he had always been opposed to the dual system in the Board of Estimate, and that Commissioners Maltbie and Cram had opposed it in the Public Service Commission. Now, as the time had come for the final action and the city was about to be committed for fifty years "to a ruinous abrgain," he proposed to enter capital objections.

The recapture clauses, Mr. Mitchel declared, had been devitalized. The present Subway could not be taken over till 1952, and then the city must pay the "present value" of the line for the remaining period of the contract; that is, up to Jan. 1, 1966. In addition, the city must pay the value of all equipment. This he contended meant that the city must pay not only for the equipment but also for the property itself, and so the city would buy it twice over.

In the same way Mr. Mitchel argued there was little value in the provisions for the recapture of the new Interborough lines. It was absurd, he said, to think of taking back two disconnected fragments like the Lexington Avenue and the Seventh Avenue lines, and the suggested "swapping of the legs," by which the city might give the Lexington Avenue line to the Interborough in exchange for the Seventh Avenue, was rendered nugatory by the terms laid down for the exchange.

Doubts Power of Recapture.

These provide that the exchange may be made, "provided the lien of any duly authorized mortgage now existing is not disturbed." The Interborough has at the present time issued a mortgage against the Subway line to the Interborough-Metropolitan. Now, argued Mr. Mitchel, if there was an honest fear of the disturbance of that, such would be removed by the fact that in the refinancing of the Interborough now in progress, that mortgage would be canceled and another substituted. But the proviso had been kept in, because the Interborough-Metropolitan, by the terms of the mortgage it holds, can prevent the Interborough from surrendering its lease to the city.

Chairman Willcox interrupted to say that there was no reason why if the city wished to take over a leg of the present Subway it should not do so, subject to a lien, just as any corporation would buy a piece of real estate on which rested a mortgage.

Mr. Mitchel replied that it was absurd to suppose that the city would ever take over a line subject to the lien of bondholders and stockholders, and urged that the city should have put its money only into such lines as were recapturable.

"Under the present agreement," he said, "in the present notorious condition of the city's finance, it will be forced, if it wishes to recapture any lines, to spend large sums in building additional tunnels to link them up."

Mr. Mitchel spoke of "the absurdity" of the Steinway Tunnel bargain.

"Do you know how much the Steinway Tunnel cost to build?" asked Chairman Willcox.

"I don't care if it cost $40,000,000," replied Mr. Mitchel. "The offer to the city was $3,000,000, and that is what the company should get for it."

Mr. Mitchel objected to the inclusion in the account of the new capital of the Interborough any real estate it might have purchased out of its subway investment account, and to the right of the Interborough to charge 6 per cent. during construction on all funds provided, while a credit of only 2½ per cent. was allowed on the funds it had in the bank. The bankers should be expected, he declared, to pay at least 3½ per cent. on the deposits with them.

Not Enough for Depreciation.

When the contracts come into effect on Jan. 1, 1917, he argued, the depreciation of subway property would be $6,000,000, but the contract called on the company to pay in on account of this only $2,759,000. Consequently the company would be relieved of about $3,000,000 of depreciation and the city would have to assume it. The Interborough had never provided for obsolescence and depreciation.

"How much would you put aside?" asked Mr. Willcox.

"You might follow the views of your own engineer Bion J. Arnold, who suggested 1½ cents per car mile," said Mr. Mitchel.

Mr. Mitchel referred to the provision that in the event of the lessee defaulting and the contract coming to an end, the preferential payment of $6,335,000 and the interest on the new capital provided by the Interborough would first be applied to paying the interest on the bonds of the company.

"Is not this," Mr. Mitchel asked, "an actual incentive to the breaking of the contract? If the company cannot get more than its preferential and the interest on its bonds, why should it not sit back and be content to get these?

Turning to the proposed B. R. T. contract, Mr. Mitchel found that in event of the recapture of the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, and the loop lines the B. R. T. would retain "unlimited" trackage rights, and that might leave no room for the city's trains. He contended the contract did not guarantee a five-cent Coney Island fare before Jan. 1, 1917.

When Mr. Mitchel urged that the supplementary agreement between the Interborough and the B. R. T. for the joint use of the Queens elevated lines should be executed simultaneously with the operating contracts, Mr. Willcox remarked:

"Mr. Maltbie ought to have told you this was being done already."

Mitchel swung back to his fundamental issue. He said Mayor Gaynor had called the proposal of the Interborough by which it was to receive a preferential payment of 9 per cent. a "damnable outrage, which I will not stain my name by accepting," but he admitted that since that was rejected there had been "somewhat of a flipflop in the Board of Estimate," for now it was ready to accept an agreement which put off the possibilities of profits to the city "to the twilight zone."

The practical impossibility, as he considered it, of there being ever any net profits to distribute between the city and the company reduced all incentive on the part of the company to provide efficient and economical management.

"There is every incentive instead for chicanery and politics," said Mr. Mitchel. "It will earn its preferential, and then there will be nothing to hinder places being made and expenses increased."

"Are not all such expenses," asked the Chairman, "under the control of the commission under the contract?"

"If five saints came down from heaven," exclaimed Mr. Mitchel, "they could not control such abuses. Why don't you control them to-day?"

"Well," said Mr. Willcox a little testily, "how would you have got their old profits away from them?"

"Old Bunch" Pocket "the Swag."

"I should have insisted on the Interborough's remitting some of its inflated profits as the price of the new contracts. Your plan will actually add to these profits."

Insisting that as the city's bonds would never earn their interest and sinking fund, they could never be exempted from the debt limit, Mr. Mitchel passed on to the plan by which the Interborough would sell its bonds at 93 1-3 and be permitted to capitalize 3 per cent. of the difference between this and par. As these bonds were to all intents and purposes guaranteed by the city, he argued that they should have been sold at par. Yet these bonds were to be retirable at 110, and to issue them the company was retiring bonds at 105. Why should there not have been a public bidding, Mr. Mitchel asked, and added:

"But I suppose it does not matter how they get away with their swag. It's the same old bunch who will pocket it."

Chairman Willcox said after adjournment that, of course, it was not possible for him to go at length into all the detailed criticism that Mr. Mitchel had expressed, but he would say this:

"In the matter of the question of what the future subways will earn there are about as many opinions as there are experts. It has been generally admitted, however, that all of the lines which it is proposed to build ought to be built, and if the city had the money it would safely use it all for building these lines.

"In the case of the Interborough extensions, estimated to cost $120,000,000, the city has not money enough to build the whole system and at the same time build the other part of the dual system. The present operator of the Subway, therefore, is willing to put in $77,000,000 toward the construction of these extensions. For this contribution it will receive not one penny more than its earnings on the present Subway beyond 6 per cent. for interest and sinking fund on the $77,000,000 put in by it ahead of the city's interest and sinking fund.

"As to the question of the amount for which the Interborough sells its bonds, it should be said that the payments to the company out of the earnings are based, not on what the company sells its bonds for, but upon the amount which actually goes into equipment and construction. The company is allowed 3 per cent. brokerage, but, aside from that, it receives its 6 per cent. only upon the amount which actually goes into the construction and equipment.

"So far as the recall of the bonds at 110 is concerned, it is difficult to see that that affects the city one way or the other.

"In the case of the change of the legs of the Subway, it is provided that the price shall be determined, and then the exchange shall be made. There is a provision, however, in the contract that, no matter what that price shall be, the lien of the mortgage shall not be disturbed. This is an everyday occurrence, where property is sold subject to a mortgage. If the city took over a leg of the subway upon which there was an outstanding mortgage it would, of course, not pay the mortgage and purchase price as well, but it would pay whatever was agreed upon, less the mount of the mortgage which it assumed.

McAneny Concurs with Willcox.

"It should be borne in mind that there is not one foot of subway to be built which is not recapturable by the city in ten years. So far as the Seventh Avenue and Lexington Avenue subways are concerned, if it were thought best to recapture these two lines, it would be a simple matter to build the same kind of a connection in the neighborhood of Fortieth Street that now exists at Forty-second Street.

"Furthermore, if it were desired to exercise the right of recapture for the purpose of an independent line, the city could recapture the Broadway line and the Lexington Avenue line and build on the stretch from Forty-second Street to Ninth Street, thus getting a complete independent system. In a word, the city's control over the proposed systems is so complete that none of the subways which it is proposed to build is out of the city's reach for more than a period of ten years, while on the other hand the city has not the financial ability, at the present time, to build one-third of the proposed mileage which is embraced in the two plans."

Borough President McAneny said last night that, far from the city's bonds being removed hopelessly from the debt limit, within ten or eleven years the new system would be paying sufficiently to permit of their being exempted. Moreover, this could be expected still earlier in connection with the Brooklyn lines on account of the smaller B. R. T. preferential.

As to the recapture clauses being subject to existing mortgages, Mr. McAneny pointed out that the mortgages could not be disturbed, even by an act of the Legislature.

"All this current criticism," Mr. McAneny said in conclusion, "loses sight of the indirect advantages to the city of these contracts. In return for their preferential the companies throw all their present lines into the five-cent fare system, with universal transfers between old lines and the new. They put up together $140,000,000 of private capital that the city could not otherwise secure, and make many other concessions in order to secure what the city is willing to yield to them.

"Before the city begins to receive money returns, the returns in increased valuations of property and increased returns to its own treasury from taxation, and in the saving to passengers of at least $3,000,000 now paid in double fares will all be realized.

"What is, perhaps, the most important of all, the plan in its present form insures the future growth of the city along right lines. If the plan is now disrupted, the loss to the city in all of these ways will be incalculable."

PASSES ROCKEFELLER BILL.

House Approves $100,000,000 Foundation—Senate's Assent Certain.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The advocates of the $100,000,000 Rockefeller Foundation won a substantial victory to-day when the House of Representatives passed the bill of Congressman Peters of Massachusetts providing for the incorporation of the Foundation. To obtain this action it was necessary to suspend the rules of the House, an operation that required a two-thirds affirmative vote. The motion to do so was carried by 152 to 65.

When the bill came up its opponents resorted to dilatory tactics. First they made the point that a quorum was not present and then moved an adjournment. Speaker Clark ordered the doors of the House closed and had the roll called. The call disclosed that 214 members were present, and of these 178 voted against and only 36 for adjournment. This showed the bill's opponents that their fight was hopeless, and without debate the measure was passed by a two-thirds vote.

The bill will now go to the Senate, where its passage is regarded as certain. As passed the bill was considerably modified with John D. Rockefeller's consent, to meet the objections originally raised by opponents of the Federal incorporation of the Foundation. It may wind up its affairs at the end of fifty years, and must do so at the end of 100 years, if so directed by Congress. The total amount of property to be held at any one time by the Foundation, whether absolutely or in trust, is never to exceed $100,000 000, exclusive of increases in value of property subsequent to its receipt.

The incorporators are John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Frederick T. Gates, Starr J. Murphy, Harry Pratt Judson, Simon Flexner, Edwin A. Alderman, Wickliffe Rose, and Charles O. Heydt. The members are never to be less than nine nor more than twenty-five in number. If the number falls below nine at any time no gifts are to be made until the vacancies are filled. The members are to be divided into three classes, each with a term of service of three years, one-third of the members to be elected each year.

The successors to the incorporators and the additional members of the corporation and their successors are to be elected by the members of the corporation for the time being, but before such election becomes effective it must be aproved by a majority of a body consisting of the President of the United States, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House, and the Presidents of Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Johns Hopkins, and Chicago Universities.

GAYNOR SAYS 'SPREAD MONEY LIKE BUTTER'

Mayor Gives Some Financial Advice at the Associated Bankers' Dinner.

SEES PERIL IN CYNICISM

Dr. George A. Vincent Sorry for Present Value of "Honesty Is the Best Policy."

Speaking at the annual dinner of the Associated Banks of the City of New York at the Waldorf, attended last night by more than 750 bankers and their friends, Dr. George A. Vincent, President of the University of Minnesota, in referring to the investigations of the Pujo Committee, admitted that he would have been afraid to have come among such a gathering several weeks ago, even as an invited guest.

As it was, he assured the bankers he could speak to them with greater tranquillity of mind, now that three great truths had come to them from Washington. These truths, he said, were, first, that there was no such thing as a money trust; second, that, even if there was a money trust, it must have always been in the hands of good, true, and noble men, and, third, that the present banking system was absolutely perfect.

"And how do we know that?" questioned the speaker, referring to the third truth. "Because if we had carried the investigation a little further it might have become dangerous."

Dr. Vincent went into a discussion of phrase making, and finally reached the conclusion that the phrases of our forefathers, such as "Honesty is the best policy," and "Competition is the soul of trade," had at last come to be regarded with cynicism by the business men of the present day. Cynicism, he asserted, was the most undermining influence of the present time. He said the country was divided into the "seaboard" and the "frontier." The ideal of the seaboard, he said, was efficiency, while the ideal of the frontier was fellowship.

"We have the same things in Minnesota that you have here," said Dr. Vincent. "We have automobiles, and the only difference is that you use them in New York City to bump people, while we use them in Minnesota to give people a lift."

When Mayor Gaynor arose to speak he confessed to the bankers that he found himself in the same predicament he fell into not long ago when he was invited to make a speech at a dinner of the Brooklyn dentists. On the latter occasion he didn't know what to say, and, furthermore, the dentists had informed him that at their gatherings they were accustomed to talk about everything except teeth.

Mayor Gaynor spared the gathering from any extended discussion of the Money Trust investigation further than to recall the name "Pujo" and inquire, "Is Pujo a banker from the West?"

Disclaiming any intention to advise the members of the Bankers' Association, Mayor Gaynor spoke of the great necessity for a uniform banking system that would treat everybody alike. He recalled that Bacon had said that money was not good unless it was well spread, and the Mayor added that it should be spread over the country like butter. The American people, he asserted, would not be satisfied with the banking system until they obtained the same rates of discount as do the men who conduct stock transactions in Wall Street.

William Woodward, President of the Hanover National Bank, was toastmaster. Among the invited guests were Fred E. Farnsworth, William Sherer, Cornelius A. Pugsley, State Banking Commissioner George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., William E. Knox, Richard Delafield, Frank A. Vanderlip, J. P. Morgan, Jr., A. Barton Hepburn, Alexander Gilbert, Bishop David H. Greer, George F. Baker, William A. Nash, Capt. Albert N. Greaves, U. S. N., Edmund C. Converse, Francis L. Hine, Charles H. Huttig, Walter E. Frew, and Charles A. Hanna.

LAWYER HERMIT FOUND DEAD

Samuel B. Archer Had Lived as a Recluse in Yonkers Since 1891.

Samuel B. Archer, formerly a New York lawyer, who had lived as a recluse since 1891 in a one-story ramshackle structure on Bainton Street, Yonkers, was found dead there yesterday by his brother, George C. Archer of Springfield, Mass. He was lying on the floor with his head under an opened umbrella. He was 64 years old and had never been married.

Coroner Iles had the remains removed to Davis's Morgue in Mount Vernon, and from an investigation determined that the man had been dead three days, and that death had been caused by a bloodclot on the brain.

George C. Archer said he could offer no explanation why his brother took up the life of a hermit. The land upon which his retreat stood was once the family homestead. A sister of the Archers lives in Mount Vernon.

Sanatogen is a True Food Tonic

—Sir Gilbert Parker.

THESE words of the eminent statesman-novelist strike the keynote of the character of Sanatogen. Because Sanatogen is a true food-tonic, it is able to produce natural and lasting results, not false stimulation. The benefits it confers upon people who are run-down, nervous or anaemic are truly remarkable. Arnold Bennett, the great novelist, frankly confesses: "The effect of Sanatogen upon my nerves is simply wonderful." Every day, in every land, thousands upon thousands of men and women thus find in Sanatogen a splendid source of new strength and vitality. Sooner or later you will be persuaded to try Sanatogen by friends who have experienced its remarkably beneficent action. And remember that Sanatogen is no secret remedy, but a natural, healthful food-tonic about which over 16,000 practising physicians have written in terms of praise and enthusiasm.

Prof. Thomas B. Stillman, M. S., Ph.D. The well-known research chemist of Stevens Institute, writes: "The chemical union of the constituents of Sanatogen is a true one, representative of the highest skill in the formation of a product containing phosphorus in the organic phosphate condition, and so combined that digestion and assimilation of Sanatogen are rendered complete with the greatest ease."

David Belasco the eminent dramatic author, writes: "It gives me pleasure to let you know the wonderfully beneficial results I have experienced from the use of your Sanatogen. It has a most invigorating effect upon the nerves, and I heartily recommend it to all who, like myself, are obliged to overwork. After my personal experience I can readily vouch for its recuperative qualities."

Mme. Sarah Grand Auther of the "Heavenly Twins," writes: "I began to take Sanatogen after nearly four years' enforced idleness from extreme debility, and felt the benefit almost immediately. And now, after taking it steadily three times a day for twelve weeks, I find myself able to enjoy both work and play again, and also am able to do as much of both as I ever did."

BECKER JUROR WENT TO SEE HIS DENTIST

Went Twice, in Fact, So Becker's Lawyer Believes His Conviction Illegal.

WILL ASK FOR NEW TRIAL

Whitman Just Smiles, and Justice Goff Can't Recall Whether He Gave Him Permission to Go.

Joseph A. Shay, the attorney who is preparing the appeal in the case of Charles Becker, the ex-Lieutenant of Police now in the death house at Sing Sing for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, was inclined yesterday to make great capital out of his discovery that on at least two occasions during the trial Samuel H. Haas, the twelfth juror, was seen in the neighborhood of his Bronx home, some miles from the Murray Hill Hotel, where all the jurors were supposed to have been confined while they were not in court. Becker's lawyer will try to have this discovery regarded as one good reason why there should be a new trial.

John F. McIntyre, who was leading counsel for the defense when Becker was on trial, was not only in agreement with Mr. Shay as to the importance of the new material, but inclined to lay even greater stress upon it.

"I believe that it will prove fatal to the conviction," he said last evening. "While we have proof of only three visits by Haas to the Bronx at the present time, we have information that leads me to believe he made seven trips. I have no information which makes me think any of those trips led to a dentist's office, as I hear Haas says. But I can locate him in a saloon on one trip. And he talked about the case, too. I do not know whether a court officer was with him or not.

"There are important decisions on this point in this country. One of great significance is a Texas case, while another is in Wisconsin. To-night and to-morrow I shall be busy running down the New York decisions that are in point.

"A great deal of important information concerning the Becker case has come to my attention, and is now being verified. When this verification is completed I shall have something to show which will turn the community upside down. There is a shock in store for a good many persons."

Throughout the District Attorney's office there was an inclination to smile at the importance attached to the matter by Mr. McIntyre. It was argued there that the question of a juror's privileges during the course of a trial, until the moment comes for deliberation, is entirely a matter of the Judge's discretion. In most cases the jurors are not locked up at all, but are allowed to go to their homes after each court session, and with no further protection against influence than their own oaths and the admonition of the court that they must not discuss the case with any one.

Mr. Haas says that he did leave the Murray Hill Hotel during the trial for the purpose of going to his dentist's office in the Bronx. The visits were prompted by no mere desire to have his teeth overhauled, but because they were giving him considerable pain.

"I did go twice to my dentist," he said yesterday at his office in the building at 110 West Thirty-fourth Street. "But I did not go alone, and I did not go without permission. A court officer accompanied me on each expedition, and I was not permitted to converse with any one, except to answer greetings of persons I passed and who spoke to me."

"Did you go to your home?" Mr. Haas was asked.

"I do not care to speak about that," he said.

"Whose permission did you have?"

"I refer you to Capt. Lynch, the head of the court squad."

Capt. William J. Lynch is at the head of the group of court officers who guard the peace of the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court where Justice Goff is now sitting and where the Becker trial was held. He and his men have had the custody of many a locked-up jury, and he had charge of the twelve men who found Becker guilty of murder in the first degree. He insisted that Haas had never been allowed to go to his dentist or anywhere else, except to join in those privileges accorded to all the Becker jurors, that of going to the polling places on registration day and of going home for clothing on the first night.

Justice Goff said last night that he had no recollection of any permission granted to the twelfth juror.

Mr. Shay's two witnesses are a Bronx hotel proprietor and a Police Lieutenant. The first is Francis Meehan of the Excelsior Hotel at Webster Avenue and 198th Street, not far from Mr. Haas's home at 276 East 201st Street. In an affidavit to which he has subscribed Mr. Meehan says that he knows Haas, and that on three occasions during the Becker trial he saw him in that neighborhood. Each time the juror was walking "with a stranger."

The second occasion was the night of Oct. 14 about 9 o'clock. He saw Haas pass by and called the attention of Police Lieut. Carter to the fact, so that when Haas returned a half hour later Carter was there and saw him, and so swears in an affidavit of his own.

According to Lieut. Carter's affidavit, he accosted Haas, saying: "Good evening, I see you have a hard job on your hands," and Haas said that he had. In his affidavit the Police Lieutenant explains that the "hard" referred to the fact that Haas was being kept away from his wife, family, and business, and had no darker significance.

It is Mr. Shay's contention that if Haas was thus seen and addressed on the streets he might have absorbed almost any fragment of the aroused opinion which was filling every street corner with a discussion of the Becker case. The lawyer bases his interest in the incident on that section of the Code of Criminal Procedure which says:

> Such officers must be sworn to keep the jurors together until the next meeting of the court, to suffer no person to speak to or communicate with them, nor to do so themselves, on any subject connected with the trial, and to return them into court at the next meeting thereof.

In Cook's Code this note accompanies that section, and Mr. Shay found it interesting:

> During a murder trial of a capital felony the jury were lodged every night in a hotel. On the third night the hotel was destroyed by fire. The jury, escaping, became separated for an hour or more, some of them mingling with the crowd about the fire, others going home. On an examination by the court every juror swore that during the separation no one had spoken to him or in his presence on the subject of the trial. The prisoner did not object to the continuing of the trial, but refused to assent or waive any right or advantage to him from the separation. Conviction, being had. Held, that prisoner was entitled to a new trial.

But that was a Texas case.

5,000 MORE POLICE NEEDED, SAYS WALDO

Other Big Cities Better Protected, Commissioner Tells Mayor in Annual Report.

170,375 ARRESTS IN 1912

Precinct Detectives and Peg Post Lessen Crime—He Assails His Critics at Police Dinner.

In his report to the Mayor for the year 1912, made public yesterday, Police Commissioner Waldo said that the force should consist of 15,000 men, instead of 10,371, the present number. He calls attention to the fact that the population of this city is 5,250,000, and that the ratio of police protection is only one to every 507 inhabitants. To show how inadequate this is he cites the police rule of other big cities. London and Paris, he says, has one policeman to every 333 inhabitants, Amsterdam and Dublin one to 386, Chicago one to 464, Tokio one to 431, Philadelphia one to 400, Glasgow one to 485, and Munich one to 446.

The Commissioner says that last year there were 18,780 arrests for felonies, 107,227 for misdemeanors, 10,838 for juvenile delinquency, which, with 469 arrests of material witnesses and 33,061 summonses, makes a total of 170,375. Then Mr. Waldo sets forth that the courts suspended sentences on persons who were convicted in 18,556 cases, including 35 for assault and robbery, 417 for burglary, 73 for carrying concealed weapons. In a measure this is his reply to the charge frequently made against the police that they do not properly prepare their cases for the courts, and that they are frequently guilty of swearing falsely in order to permit the escape of prisoners whom they had blackmailed.

The criticisms aimed at the fixed-post plan are answered in the report by the statement that since it was begun complaints of burglaries decreased from 5,006 during the first half of 1911 to 4,054 for the corresponding period last year. This was a decrease of 19 per cent., and there was a decrease of 51 per cent. in the complaints of assault and robbery.

Within a short time the Curran Committee is to begin an investigation into the work of the Detective Bureau for the purpose of learning whether Mr. Waldo's plan of splitting up the force of detectives among the various precincts is as good a plan as the old one of keeping the detectives together at Headquarters. Mr. Waldo reports that the detective division last year made 10,069 arrests for felony, 17,629 for misdemeanor and 3,490 for juvenile delinquency, besides arresting 259 persons as witnesses. He shows by figures that this work represented an increase of 25 per cent. over former years. In the same way he shows an increase in convictions of 47 per cent. and a decrease of 38 per cent. in complaints of assault and robbery.

Recovered Much Property.

One of the interesting items in the report says that in the last twelve months $3,313,216 worth of property was reported lost, and that 59 per cent. of it was recovered. Further along in the report is a brief story of the arrest and conviction of Bert Curtis, alias Lamont, alias Josett, and otherwise known as "the Gentleman Burglar." His last two burglaries consisted of stealing thousands of dollars' worth of silverware and jewelry. After he was sent to prison his lawyer began action against the property clerk at Police Headquarters to compel the return of pieces of silverware and various articles of jewelry taken from him. The action was successful.

The Curran Committee has been busy for some time in examining policemen as to the manner of the reports they send to the Commissioner. Questions as to the reason why these reports do not contain the addresses of suspected houses have been asked hundreds of times, but no policeman has seemed to be able to answer it satisfactorily. The report answers it in this way:

"Complaints of conditions in districts are verified by secret investigation rather than by placing reliance on reports of persons who are themselves affected. All unnecessary reports in matters of routine, which do not convey useful information, have been eliminated."

In the list of big crimes committed in 1912 appears a brief description of the murder of Herman Rosenthal. The report gives the police the credit of making practically every arrest in the case.

The report says that 3,222 persons were reported missing in this city, and that 631 of these were still missing at the end of the year.

Another paragraph of human interest is to the effect that in the twelve months 42,290 persons were taken to the hospitals, 41,671 taken to their homes, and 1,823 taken to the Morgue. Among the recommendations Commissioner Waldo makes are these:

That the boiler squad be transferred to the Fire Department.

That the House of Detention be made a part of the District Attorney's office.

A law requiring all persons who find lost property to turn it over to the police. If not claimed within six months to be given to the finder. If claimed thereafter by the original owner the finder to receive a reward based upon the value of the article.

That all licenses for private hack stands be abolished, and that licenses be issued only for public hack stands. This recommendation is accompanied by the comment that private stands in front of hotels and restaurants have resulted in the renting of the public streets to cab companies at exorbitant rates, which must be paid for by the public.

That a law be enacted for the taking of the finger prints of chauffeurs and forwarded to Headquarters, prior to the issuance of the license for comparison with the police files, to the end that no criminals be licensed.

A law making the possession of gambling apparatus unlawful and authorizing its destruction by the police. Under the present law no gambler can be punished for having gambling implements in his possession, and it must also be proved by the prosecution that the particular implements seized were those in operation when the arrests were made. Courts have frequently compelled the police to return gambling paraphernalia to gamblers.

Pay Increases Urged.

In regard to the pay of patrolmen entering the department, Mr. Waldo says:

"Their pay should not be less than $1,000 per annum. The first year they are required to purchase their own uniforms, equipment, station house bedding, &c., costing approximately $200, leaving but $50 a month to live on. This, in view of the cost of living in this city, is not sufficient to properly support the family of a policeman."

Mr. Waldo also says that the salaries of Inspectors and Captains should be increased. The pay of Inspectors has been $3,500 a year since 1880, and the pay of Captains only $2,750.

Concerning pensions for policemen, Mr. Waldo says that the amount should be fixed automatically in accordance with the length of service and recommends that the pension be obtained by multiplying 2 per cent. of the salary by the number of years of service, no pension to exceed 75 per cent. of the salary.

WALDO ASSAILS HIS CRITICS.

Police Enemies Will Defeat Themselves, He Tells Department Diners.

"The enemies of the Police Department have lied themselves out in the past and they will do so in the present instance," declared Commissioner Waldo last night at the beefsteak dinner of the New York City Police Endowment Association at Healy's Restaurant, Sixty-sixth Street and Broadway. The membership of the Police Endowment Association is limited to Police Captains and Inspectors, and practically every man of that grade in the department was present.

At the guest table were seated Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall; Marcus Loew, Thomas F. McAvoy, Tammany leader of the Twenty-third Assembly District; Alexander T. Williams, "Big Bill" Devery, George Gordon Battle, Deputy Police Commissioners John J. Walsh, James E. Dillon, Douglas I. McKay, and George S. Dougherty; Charles S. Devoy, Patrick F. McGowan, ex-President of the Board of Aldermen; R. A. C. Smith of the Citizens' Union, Supreme Court Justices Edward McCall, Luke D. Stapleton, and Leonard A. Giegerich; Maurice E. Connelly, Borough President of Queens; Mirabeau L. Towns, Ralph Folks, Fire Commissioner Johnson, Col. Daniel Appleton, Gen. William H. Kipp, Major James O. Woodward, and Dr. Marvin R. Palmer. Mayor Gaynor and District Attorney Whitman were both conspicuous by their absence, although seats were reserved for them at the speakers' table until the last moment.

Inspector Donald Grant was toastmaster, and in introducing the Police Commissioner as the first speaker pleaded that the public, before passing judgment upon the Police Department, should weigh both sides. He said:

"All honor to our boys in blue; all honor to our Mayor and to our Police Commissioner. May their praises be sung when the voice of calumny has been forever silenced."

"The newspapers have lied about the police," said Mr. Waldo, "more during the past six months than they have ever done before, and, as a department, we have been lied about for years. Our City Fathers are now engaged upon an investigation, which has revealed nothing as yet, but the instigators of the investigation hope that they may yet uncover a scandal. It has been alleged that murderers and criminals have been appointed under my administration. The charge is worse than ludicrous; it is malicious.

"It is all right for men with political ambition to exploit the Police Department if they have grounds for so doing but when the allegation is made that men with criminal records have been appointed to the force the public has a right to know of exactly what those criminal records consist.

"The allegation has also been made that I have reinstated men who had been removed by my predecessors. I have reinstated less than twenty. In one instance a man with twenty years' service had his shoes off while on station house duty. He lost eight months' pay and more than $1,000 salary. I thought that sufficient punishment. Another was so indiscreet as to bring a few bottles of beer into a police dormitory. He had also served a long and honorable service and had lost almost $1,000 pay.

"I have been charged with remitting fines. I have remitted exactly forty-four. In every instance the fines were inflicted on some policeman for the misunderstanding of orders committed through a superior officer. After reading the orders I doubted whether I would understand them myself. If I had to do it over again I would remit those same fines."

WOLFE'S WRITING IN ELEGY.

Book Is Apparently Identified as Property of the General.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 21.—Beccles Wilson writes to The Times, stating that the recently discovered copy of Gray's Elegy, which was believed to have belonged to Gen. Wolfe, has been carefully examined by an expert who is not only convinced of its genuineness, but found annotations in the General's handwriting.

"I am happy to add," says Mr. Wilson, "that there is every prospect of the priceless relic remaining in England, where it now is."

says he does not wish further to discuss his letter till the Postmaster General's reply has been received, but he declares it intolerable that the Government should retain its option for an unlimited period.

It is stated that at least five wireless syndicates are in the field for the imperial wireless contract should the present contract with the Marconi Company be abrogated.

Some of the newspapers remind their readers that judgment should be suspended on the questions at issue until Mr. Marconi and other experts who can speak with authority for the Marconi Company are heard by the select committee, which up to now has chiefly examined critics of the contract and advocates of other systems of wireless telegraphy.

To-day the committee will hear the journalists who began the attack on the Marconi contract—W. R. Lawson, Hilaire Belloc, and Cecil Chesterton.

Most of the London morning papers which comment on the Isaacs letter consider the company's attitude well taken. The Chronicle calls attention to the fact that "witnesses were heard who know little of the technical side of wireless telegraphy, while Mr. Marconi, the leading inventor in this department of scientific discovery, and the person most concerned, was not given an opportunity of meeting the charges made. It is probable that if Mr. Marconi had been examined he would have disposed of the need of further expert investigation. He would have had a chance, at any rate, of satisfying the committee on scientific grounds of the value of his system."

On this point both Mr. Marconi and Mr. Isaacs, it may be added, are very bitter. Mr. Marconi has repeatedly asked that he be called before the committee, and yet the committee issued an interim report before he had had an opportunity of replying to witnesses called to give evidence about other systems.

"We cannot stand to be shot at in that fashion," said Mr. Marconi.

Mr. Isaacs, in a published interview, instanced the following questions as put by the committee: "Isn't it a fact that there is no communication across the Atlantic under the Marconi system? Isn't it done by relays of ships?"

"This," said Mr. Isaacs, "is nothing less than an allegation of fraud against us. What will be the effect of such insinuation on other countries?"

The Daily News editorially says that the select committee has done little to illuminate the true nature of the Marconi contract. It says:

"No evidence has yet been produced which has lent support to the charges of corruption, nor is there much reason to suppose the bargain a bad one for the Government, considering the actual circumstances under which it was concluded."

Another paper points out the possibility, even the probability, that the Government, if it wants to establish an imperial wireless system, may eventually have no alternative but to fall back on Marconi, whose system is the one which has proved of the greatest practical value up to the present.

The plan to establish wireless communication between the British dominions throughout the world was in part due to the "Americanization" of the transatlantic cables, which are now under American management.

Last March 7 it was announced that work would soon be started by the Marconi Company on the construction of stations in London, Egypt, Aden, Bangalore, Pretoria, and Singapore. Speaking of the contract, Godfrey Isaacs said: "This chain of stations represents only the beginning of the scheme, which will be carried further in the near future throughout the Empire, so as to enable the Empire to be to a great extent independent of the submarine cables."

The company was to receive $300,000 for each station, exclusive of the site and building, and also 10 per cent. of the gross receipts for a term of twenty-eight years from the date of the conclusion of the first six stations.

NO PERFECT WOMEN NOW.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Sir James Linton, President of the Royal Institute of Painters in Water Colors, has been drawn into the discussion regarding modern figures as compared with that of the Venus of Milo.

"Modern woman is degenerate," he said. "She may be beautiful, but the mere fact that she follows fashions in dress is enough to prevent her from being perfect. That is why the Venus of Milo is the accepted standard of the ideal. She is perfect in all her proportions; every part is in harmony.

"Hundreds of models have posed for me, but I have never seen a woman with a figure comparable with that of the Venus of Milo. The main faults to be found with the modern figure are due to dress. It is impossible to be in the fashion and have a good figure. A woman who squeezes her feet into small French shoes may be fashionable, but she has bunions and her toes will be found to cross over each other.

EXPECTS TO INDICT SIPP BRIBER TO-DAY

Whitman Confident Bill Will Be Found Against Lawyer Who Delivered the Money.

THREE OTHERS IN THE PLOT

Names of All Known to Sipp, Who Will Tell Grand Jury of Their Offers to Himself and His Wife.

George A. Sipp and one other witness will appear before the Extraordinary Grand Jury to-day and tell all they know about the attempt to induce Sipp to remain out of the jurisdiction of the criminal authorities of this county. District Attorney Whitman knew last night what testimony he would be able to lay before the jurors, and he was sure that an indictment would be returned against one lawyer who was active in the matter. The names of two other lawyers will also appear in the testimony, but Mr. Whitman expects to get only one indictment at this time.

Sipp was closely watched during the trip to Newark, where it was decided he should remain under an assumed name until Mr. Whitman was ready to take him before the Grand Jury to testify against Eugene Fox the policeman whom he accused of collecting money from him for police protection. Mr. Whitman was certain that the police would use every means in their power to keep Sipp out of this State, and he directed Mr. Groehl never to lose sight of him for a minute if he could help it.

Process servers and detectives were stationed near the hotel and in the neighborhood to watch for police emissaries. Both Mrs. Sipp's telephone was ringing constantly. Persons at the other end urged her to prevent her husband from carrying the case against Fox any further. Some of the persons mentioned their names, and some mentioned the names of other persons whom they said they were representing. Large money rewards were offered to her if she would get Sipp to go South and remain there until Jan. 1, 1914. The idea was that Mr. Whitman would then cease to be District Attorney, and that some more complacent official would take his place. Threats were also made, and these frightened her very much. She feared for the safety of her son. Some of the messages she received she conveyed to her husband; others she suppressed.

Sipp was very nervous. Mr. Groehl was kept busy reassuring him, in receiving reports from the men he had on guard, and in forwarding the news to Mr. Whitman. One day a lawyer called on Sipp and had a long talk with him. Shortly after this lawyer went away Mr. Groehl sat down with Sipp and urged him to keep his word with Mr. Whitman and to do what he could to redeem his past by helping the course of justice. It was a long and hard fight, but finally Mr. Groehl won and Sipp told him all he knew about the efforts to induce him to go away and leave Mr. Whitman in the lurch.

Sipp told also about a sum of money that had been given to him to pay the expenses of a trip to some distant place and of a promise that the sum would be augmented by other sums. Further information furnished by him was to the effect that he had received only $700 out of $1,000 that had been sent to him.

A careful investigation into the source of this money and through whose hands it passed was made. The result was that Mr. Whitman was sure that he knew whose hands had touched this money before Sipp got it. He also believes that he knows the source of it. His information is to the effect that it passed through four pairs of hands before it reached Sipp. He said a few days ago that he was sure he knew who the men were who gave the money, and who passed it along.

When he was asked about this matter again yesterday he said that the whole case would be turned inside out within a few days. Asked if the testimony of two witnesses who would tell about the payment of money to Sipp would result in an indictment, he replied that the Grand Jury would hear the evidence to-day, and that the result would become public within a few hours.

He was asked if he knew who contributed the $5,000 cash that was given as bail for Fox, and replied that the evidence before the Grand Jury might furnish a lead that would show who those persons were. He declined to discuss the matter further, but one of his assistants said that the persons who contributed the $1,000 for Sipp were probably the same persons who found the bail for Fox.

So far the trail leads in the direction of three lawyers, one police Captain and two police Inspectors. It was said that the toils are already so closely drawn around the Captain that he cannot hope to escape and that at least one of the Inspectors will also be caught in them. If Fox will help to catch the Captain, he may go free; if the Captain helps to catch the Inspector, he also may escape for two reasons—on account of the service he will have rendered to the public and because his health is in a precarious condition.

There is an even bigger official than an Inspector that Mr. Whitman has a hungry eye upon. If he could catch this man he would be willing, it was said, to let any number of the smaller men go scot free, because he believes that the catching of the biggest man would smash a chain of graft that stretches all over the city.

The case of the alleged police conspiracy against Sipp will not be taken up by the Grand Jury until later in the week. The times cross here, and Mr. Whitman does not want to duplicate any of the work he has outlined. He is of the opinion that the moving figures in the attempt to indict Sipp for a serious crime are the same men who tried to keep Sipp away from this city, and who furnished the bail for Fox. It was suggested yesterday that perhaps some of the men concerned in the fight to save Fox and imprison Sipp might be indicted for both offenses. Fox is looked upon as a likely person to turn State's evidence. Another case it hatching against him, and he may find himself in a position that will compel him to wage a doubt fight to keep himself out of jail.

Mr. Whitman is devoting some of his time to examining the evidence against Patrolman Charles E. Foye, who accused Alderman Curran of trying to get him to let up on a case he was prosecuting against a prisoner. Mr. Curran furnished information to Mr. Whitman yesterday to show that Foye had committed perjury.

KILLED BY AUTO BANDIT.

Detective Slain with His Own Revolver in Struggle with Robber.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—The wave of crime which has swept over this city for the last four months is on the increase, and the police station blotters present a continuous record of murders, hold-ups, and daring robberies. As a climax one of the members of the notorious auto bandit gang shot and killed Detective Peter Hart and succeeded in making his escape this afternoon.

Hart, who was one of the best-known men on the police force, had been shadowing a garage on Michigan Boulevard and Sixteenth Street, where it was alleged that James A. Parry, self-confessed auto bandit, now in custody of the police, had managed to dispose of his loot. The policeman had been instructed to keep a sharp lookout for Joseph Madia, the proprietor of the garage, and for a man named Robert Webb, a member of the auto bandit gang.

Early in the afternoon Hart was instructed to go to a flat on Wabash Avenue and Sixteenth Street and arrest Isabelle Hastings and Webb, whom he would find there. Hart with other officers went to the flat and arrested the woman. Then Hart waited for Webb to return. When Webb appeared Hart covered him with his revolver and told him he was under arrest.

For some unexplained reason Hart placed his revolver on the table. Webb broke away, grabbed the gun, and shot Hart dead. Then he made his escape over the roof. The police to-night have no clue to the whereabouts of Webb or Madia.

Two new robberies by the gang were recorded to-day. One was at a cigar store on La Salle Street, across the way from the office of Chief of Police McWeeney, just around the corner from the Detective Bureau, and directly under the windows of the Central Police Station. The robbers hurled a brick through the show window, took all the cigars in sight, and got away before the police knew what was going on.

It provides that any combination or agreement between two or more corporations, firms, or persons to create restrictions in trade, to limit production or increase prices, to prevent competition in manufacturing, transporting, or selling any commodity, to fix at any standard or figure whereby prices to the public shall in any manner be controlled, to make any agreement which shall directly or indirectly preclude a free and unrestricted competition among themselves or any purchasers or consumers, to make any secret oral agreement or arrive at an understanding without express agreement whereby the same thing is accomplished—all these shall constitute misdemeanors, and any corporation or person guilty thereof shall on conviction be punished accordingly.

"It makes the Directors of corporations ordering or doing any of the prohibited acts guilty as individuals, and provides that, in addition to punishment for misdemeanor, the charter of the offending corporation may be revoked. The penalty for a misdemeanor in this State is imprisonment not exceeding three years or a fine not exceeding $1,000, or both, at the discretion of the court.

"Another act amends Section 49 of the present corporation law by providing that when stock is issued by a corporation in payment for property purchased, the purchasing corporation must receive in property or stock what the sum is reasonably worth in money at a fair bona fide valuation, that no fictitious stock shall be issued, that no stock shall be issued for profits not yet earned, but only anticipated; that when stock is issued on the basis of the stock of any other corporation purchased, no stock shall be issued therefor in an amount greater than the sum actually paid for such stock in cash or its equivalent. It is provided that the property purchased or owned by the corporation whose stock is purchased must be cognate in character and use to the property used or contemplated to be used by the purchasing corporation in the direct conduct of its own proper business.

"This still permits a corporation to extend its business by the purchase of the property including the stock of another corporation if its business be the same, but prevents the issuing of watered stock in the transaction. It has nothing to do with holding companies, which are treated separately and prohibited as to the future. It is also provided that statements of these purchases shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and that if any certificate thereof be false in any material respect, all the officers who sign the same or participate in making it, with knowledge, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and if any corporation shall purchase property or any stock of any other corporation for the purpose of restraining trade or acquiring a monopoly, such corporation and the Directors participating therein shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Penalty for Forming a Trust.

"Another act amends the Crime act by making it a misdemeanor for any persons to organize any corporation under the laws of this State with intent to promote or conduct any object which is unlawful or intended to be used in restraint of trade or acquiring a monopoly, and any persons being officers, directors, managers, or employes of any such corporation who shall operate or control any corporation or suffer it to be used for the promotion of any fraudulent or unlawful object or in restraint of trade or acquiring a monopoly shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

"Another act amends Section 51 of the Corporation act. It is under this section, as it has stood since 1893, that holding companies are organized. The amendment provides that no corporation organized under the laws of this State shall hereafter purchase, hold, sell, or assign the shares of the corporate stock of, or any bonds, securities, or other evidences of indebtedness created by any other corporation or corporations nor, as owner of such stock, exercise any of the rights, powers, or privileges of ownership or vote on any such stock. But the act does not extend to prevent such holding of stock or exercising the right of voting thereon by corporations already holding and owning any such stock, bonds, securities, and evidences of indebtedness. It saves rights already acquired, but prevents any corporation from engaging in a holding transaction in the future.

"Another act amends Section 100 of the corporation law, which is one of the sections permitting the merger or consolidation of corporations by eliminating from the present provision the right of merged corporations to acquire and hold the stocks, bonds, and evidences of indebtedness of other corporations, and is a complement to the act amending Section 49 so as to prevent merged corporations from engaging in the business of holding companies.

"Another act provides that before the merger of any corporations, the approval in writing by the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners of this State shall be obtained and filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and provides that every corporation and the Directors thereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. This section in connection with Section 49 as amended in the draft above mentioned will still permit corporations doing the same kind of business to consolidate, but will prevent the consolidated concern from operating as a holding company.

"Another act makes it a misdemeanor for any corporation, firm, or person to discriminate between different sections, communities, or cities of the State by selling any commodity or article or merchandise in one community at a price lower than that at which the same commodity is sold in another section, after due allowance for additional cost in transportation, when the intent is to obtain a monopoly or drive a competitor out of business.

"These acts are designed to put an end to trusts and monopolies under the laws of New Jersey, and Gov. Wilson confidently predicts that they will accomplish that much desired result."

Wilson's Message on the Bills.

These measures were introduced in fulfillment of Gov. Wilson's announcement to the Legislature in his annual message, sent to them a week ago to-day, in which he said:

> The laws of New Jersey as they stand, so far from checking monopoly, actually encourage it. They explicitly permit every corporation formed in New Jersey for example to purchase, hold, assign, and dispose of as it pleases the securities of any and all other corporations of this or any other State and to exercise at pleasure the full rights of ownership in them, including the right to vote as stockholders. This is nothing less than an explicit license of holding companies.
>
> It is our duty and our present opportunity to amend the statutes of the State in this matter not only but also in such a way as to provide some responsible official supervision of the whole process of incorporation and provide, in addition, salutary checks upon unwarranted and fictitious increases of capital and the issuance of securities not based upon actual bona fide valuations.

No doubt is expressed in any quarter that the bills will be passed. The Old Guard is cowed.

WILSON BANNED BALL FEARING TURKEY TROT

Was Afraid of a National Scandal Should the Visitors Insist on Ragtime Dances.

TO HOLD RECEPTION INSTEAD

President-elect Suggests This Substitute for Abolished Function —A Matter for Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Inaugural Committee was told to-day at an executive session that President-elect Wilson's real reason for requesting the committee to abandon the usual inaugural ball was that he feared there would be indulgence in the "turkey trot," the "bunny hug," and other ragtime dances, and thus provoke what might amount to a National scandal. It was explained by those professing to know the President-elect's views that Mr. Wilson had pointed out that no matter what precautions were taken to prevent dances of this character at the inaugural ball, they were almost certain to appeal to some of those attending the function, who would manage to have their way.

The committee learned also that Gov. Wilson had suggested that a public reception, to take place in the Capitol, should be substituted if the committee saw fit to follow his wish that the ball be abandoned. The committee decided to abide by the President-elect's expressed desire that the ball should not be held, and adopted resolutions to that effect. The resolutions made reference to the suggestion that there should be a public reception at the Capitol, and went on to say that "such reception should be purely a Government function not within the scope of this committee's direction, but under the control of the Joint Congressional Inaugural Committee."

It was said to-night that Gov. Wilson had written to friends in Washington that if a public reception at the Capitol, following his suggestion, should be substituted for the inaugural ball, it must be with the understanding that Mrs. Wilson and the Misses Wilson should not be in the receiving party.

From what was said in Washington to-night some members of the committee are inclined to think that the President elect is inconsistent in suggesting that there should be a public reception after he had objected to the inaugural ball on account of the expense to the Government. It was said that it will cost considerable Government money to prepare the Capitol for the reception, particularly if there is much decoration and provision for the comfort and enjoyment of those who attend. But just what form the reception will take has not been determined.

It has been assumed here that if a public reception should be held in the Capitol Building it would be an elaborate affair. That would give those attending an opportunity to enjoy themselves for a couple of hours on the evening of inauguration day. The idea that it should be merely a "march past" of citizens without any special decoration or preparation of the Capitol Building has not been embraced in the Washington view of the proposal.

HUNT LOST MRS. MANSFIELD.

Italian Authorities Fail to Confirm Story of Capture by Brigands.

ROME, Jan. 20.—The Italian authorities are investigating the disappearance from Salo, on Lake Garda, of Mrs. William Mansfield, an American woman, but all inquiries fail to confirm the report that she is held by brigands.

The Verona correspondent of the Giornale D'Italia says that although it was reported that Mrs. Mansfield went to Verona from Salo to draw money from a bank, and had since been lost track of, the facts are that Mrs. Mansfield left for Salo after cashing an American check for $60. She told a hotel keeper that she came to Verona to buy paint brushes. There is no evidence that Mrs. Mansfield stayed any length of time at Verona hotels.

The wife of Prof. William Mansfield of the College of Pharmacy of Columbia University is now traveling in Italy, but he said yesterday he did not believe she was missing or had been captured by bandits. He received a letter from her a few days ago, however, saying she was going to Italy from Germany.

THE TIMES'S DAILY TRANSATLANTIC WIRELESS AND CABLE DISPATCHES

WHAT WASHINGTON WROTE ON GEORGE III.

Our First President Wished the British King Had Gone Crazy a Little Sooner.

HIS LETTER OUT IN ENGLAND

It Contains Also Some Interesting Comments on Early Electioneering Manoeuvres.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—What is said to be an unpublished letter of George Washington is to be offered at auction at Sotheby's on Feb. 19. It was written at Mount Vernon on Feb. 5, 1789, about a month before the inauguration of Washington as the first President of the United States, and contains a passage of great interest to students of early American politics, but the piquant part of the letter, in the opinion of Englishmen, will be Washington's comment on George III.'s first attack of mental derangement.

In the Autumn of 1788 the King, after taking the waters at Cheltenham, got wet while walking at Windsor. On Oct. 22 signs of mental trouble appeared. His mind dwelt on the loss of the American Colonies. On Dec. 5 his physicians told the Privy Council that his disease was not incurable, but it was impossible to tell how long it might last.

Casting his mind back to the events leading to the war of independence, Washington wrote:

"Of course the British King's insanity, whatever may be his situation, if alive, merits commiseration. Better, perhaps, would it have been for his nation, though not for ours, under the present prospect, if this event had happened at the time Dr. Franklin, you say, supposes his Majesty's constitution was first tinged with the malady under which he is now laboring."

With reference to the first election in the United States, Washington wrote:

"All the political manoeuvres which are calculated to impede, if not to prevent, the operation of the new Government are now brought to a close until the meeting of the new Congress, and, although the issue of all the elections is not yet known, they are sufficiently displayed to authorize the belief that the opposers of Government have been defeated in almost every instance.

"Although elections in the States are over, it will be some time, from the extent of it, before the Representatives to Congress can be finally announced. From conjecture, however, it is supposed that the majority will be Federalists. Some are so sanguine as to believe that seven out of ten will be so, but this, as I already said, is altogether conjecture, and vague conjecture, for much pains has been taken and no art has been left unessayed to poison the mind and alarm the fears of the people into opposition.

"In the list of Electors, which have been published by the executive authority of this State, there appear, so far as I am acquainted with the characters of the gentlemen, eight decided friends of the new Constitution."

EMIL PAUR RESIGNS FROM BERLIN OPERA

Kaiser Dissatisfied with His Work —Ordered Another Conductor for a Recent Performance.

IMPERIAL HINT DISREGARDED

Paur Continued to Conduct "Carmen" According to His Own Ideas and Kaiser Was Furious.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—Emil Paur, who took up the leadership of the Royal Opera here in succession to Dr. Muck only last February, has resigned, although his contract has still a considerable time to run, because the Kaiser is dissatisfied with his work, and his resignation has been accepted.

The last production of "The Flying Dutchman" was to be conducted by Dr. Paur, but a few hours before the curtain rose the Emperor, as head of the Royal Opera, asked that another kapellmeister be substituted. This caused a good deal of comment in musical circles at the time, and since then there have been other evidences that the Kaiser was not satisfied with Mr. Paur's work.

Mr. Paur expects to stay in Berlin, but he told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to-day that he had no plans for the future; he was not in the best of health, and would first take a rest.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 21.—A Berlin dispatch says that the Kaiser, who likes to be thought an authority on music, is responsible for the sudden resignation of Emil Paur from the position of conductor of the Berlin Royal Opera House.

The Kaiser has always insisted on advising the musical conductors of the opera house in regard to their work. He has especially pronounced ideas regrading the manner with which "Carmen" should be conducted. His Majesty had a conversation with Dr. Paur some time ago on the subject and criticised his methods.

On his latest visit to the opera the Kaiser noticed that Dr. Paur remained faithful to musical traditions and ignored his hints. The Emperor thereupon summoned Count Huelsen, the Court official who is at the head of the Royal Opera, and expressed dissatisfaction in the strongest possible terms. The next day Dr. Paur resigned.

Emil Paur is well known in New York, where he conducted the Philharmonic Society, succeeding Anton Seidl. He had conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra before that, a post in which Mr. Gericke succeeded him. He was last heard here as conductor of the Pittsburgh Orchestra.

He made his début at the Royal Opera in Berlin on Sept. 7 last, conducting "Die Meistersinger," succeeding Dr. Muck, who came back to this country to conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

ABBE IS A SUICIDE FOR LOVE OF WOMAN

Transferred by Bishop to Stop Scandal, Priest Shoots Himself in Her Apartment.

LOVE RECORDED IN VERSE

Mme. Crespy Wrote Two Volumes Expressing the Affection Between Herself and Father Chassaing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—A great sensation has been caused at Agen, near Toulouse, by the death of the Abbé Chassaing, curé of the Parish of St. Hilaire, who was found in the apartment of Mme. Alice Crespy, one of his parishioners, with a bullet in his forehead.

The relations between the priest and Mme. Crespy have been a matter of common knowledge in Agen. To prevent scandal his Bishop decided last Tuesday to transfer the priest to Montastruc.

The news of the Abbé's death was first conveyed to the police by Mme. Crespy, who declared that the priest had shot himself. It is now alleged by the police that the fatal shot was fired from some distance at the Abbé.

Mme. Crespy is a divorced woman, eccentric in character and behavior. She confessed long ago to friends that she loved the Abbé. In two volumes of poems, entitled "The Death of the Hours" and "The Double Perfume," she gave expression to her love. Since the death of the Abbé she has put on deep mourning, and has sent the following letter to a Toulouse newspaper:

Perhaps you have already learned of the terrible misfortune which has befallen me. The Abbé Chassaing killed himself in my apartment yesterday evening at 6:30. I implore you not to blame him too severely. His soul was noble, beautiful, and proud, and his sufferings were superhuman. On the one side were stern and bitter duty and sacrifice and torment; on the other his ever-growing love for me.

We loved each other fondly, but an order from his Bishop exiled him to Montastruc. He said to me: "It will drive me mad," and the madness that lurked for him in the shadow has claimed him.

Nothing now remains for me but the book of our love, "The Double Perfume."

Hand me over, if you will, to the cruel world, but defend his name.

Mme. Crespy thus describes her last meeting with the Abbé:

"We had an engagement for the day on which he died. He said to me, 'It is the end. I am leaving. Read me my favorite poem.' I obeyed him and read to him 'The Second of May, 1910,' and 'The Ardent Ogre,' two poems which were especially dear to him. Then he took my head between his hands and said, 'My little love!' Later he asked me to lend him some books for his solitude, and while coming downstairs I heard sharp reports. When I reached him he was lying dead, his face downward.

"Like a mad woman, my first impulse was to shout for help, but, fearing scandal, I ran for a doctor."

TURKS MAY DECIDE ON PEACE TO-DAY

Council to be Held in Constantinople—Bulgar Delegates Have Power to Renew War.

THE PLAGUE IN ADRIANOPLE

Bulgars Have Been Deceived in Regard to the Amount of Food There, Which Is Enough for Months.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 21.—Dispatches to The Times from both Constantinople and Vienna confirm the statement as to the brighter prospects of peace cabled to THE NEW YORK TIMES last Saturday.

The majority of the Ottoman Cabinet are in favor of the conclusion of peace, and the council of notables which will meet in Constantinople to-day may advise the acceptance of the allies' terms, particularly as Turkish finances are approaching bankruptcy.

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 21.—The Balkan plenipotentiaries, who are awaiting the Turkish reply, do not conceal their impatience and their firm determination to prevent Turkey from postponing the settlement longer than another week.

Full power to declare the resumption of hostilities against Turkey was telegraphed yesterday to Dr. Daneff, leader of the Bulgarian delegation, and his colleagues by the Bulgarian Premier, M. Guechoff, who told them to exercise it whenever in their opinion further peace negotiations became useless.

The representatives of the Balkan allies will therefore directly notify Gen. Savoff, the Bulgarian Commander in Chief, that the armistice has come to an end as soon as it becomes apparent that there is no hope of the peace plenipotentiaries reaching a mutually satisfactory arrangement. Hostilities will then commence four days afterward.

Rechad Pasha, the chief Turkish delegate, received long cipher messages from Constantinople yesterday afternoon, and it is asserted that he was instructed to confer with Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, with the object of obtaining direct intervention by the Powers under the form of mediation, or in another way, if more acceptable, so that Turkey might be spared the humiliation of ceding Adrianople at first hand.

Rechad Pasha, accompanied by Tewfik Pasha and Osman Nizami Pasha, later in the day visited the British Foreign Secretary, but the nature of Sir Edward Grey's reply has not been disclosed.

The meeting of the National Assembly at Constantinople has been postponed until to-morrow, and the Porte's reply to the note of the powers will be presented after this meeting. The general impression is that the Turkish Government is weakening with respect to the demands of the Allies.

A Mustapha-Pasha dispatch to The Daily Telegraph says that plague has broken out among the garrison at Adrianople.

In regard to the supplies in Adrianople, Bulgarians have now discovered that they have been completely misled and have consequently decided that a prompt change in their policy is necessary.

Two weeks ago they were informed that the fall of the fortress could be expected hourly, but the recent council of war held at Mustapha-Pasha under the Presidency of King Ferdinand came to the conclusion that Shukri Pasha, the Turkish commander in Adrianople, had been able to economize the supplies in the fortress to such an extent that the garrison would be able to resist, perhaps, for several months.

Shukri Pasha completed the work of deluding the Bulgarians by means of false reports spread by supposed deserters who reached the Bulgarian lines drawn around the city.

The commanders of the Bulgarian forces now know the truth, and Bulgaria has determined to force a speedy solution, either by concluding peace or by resuming the war, so as to put an end to the heavy expenditure and to permit the men under arms, who comprise virtually the whole of the able-bodied male population of Bulgaria, to return to agricultural work. Otherwise, it is thought, the next harvest will be lost.

The next meting of the Ambassadors of the powers at the British Foreign Office has been postponed until to-morrow owing to the absence from town of two of the Ambassadors.

The Servians have decided to present to-day to the powers the memorandum which they have drafted detailing their desires in regard to territorial changes arising out of the war. Servia will ask to be permitted to occupy permanently the eastern part of the district of Novi-Bazar, and also the entire region eastward from the River Drin to Lake Ochrida, as well as the fortress of Monastir, which the Servian troops captured from the Turks after a severe fight.

Unofficial conversations have also begun among the allies regarding their inter-Balkan delimitations. Dr. Daneff and the Greek Premier, M. Venizelos, were engrossed in this task yesterday. As no agreement has yet been reached concerning Salonika, the Greeks hope to find no difficulty in retaining the town when the Bulgarians get Adrianople.

A Bucharest dispatch says it is expected that a settlement between Rumania and Bulgaria will be effected before Feb. 1 by an agreement providing for the rectification of the frontier. Rumania, however, will not get as much as she wanted. Bulgaria will cede some of the forts in the neighborhood of Silistria, but not the town itself.

Major McFarland, U. S. A., Speaks Highly of King Peter's Troops.

BELGRADE, Jan. 20.—Major Munroe McFarland, U. S. A., has concluded an inspection of the Servian battlefields on behalf of the American Government. He started on his home journey to-day.

Major McFarland speaks in high terms of the courtesy of the military authorities and the excellence of the Servian soldiers.

TURKISH WARSHIPS DAMAGED.

Three Battleships Listed After the Battle on Saturday.

ATHENS, Jan. 20.—A Greek officer who participated in the naval battle between the Greek and Turkish fleets off the Dardanelles on Saturday, and who closely followed all the incidents of the fight, says that during the pursuit of the Turkish war vessels by the Greeks, the battleships Kheyr-ed-Din, Barbarossa, and Torgut Reis slackened speed and showed a list to starboard.

PORT SAID, Jan. 20.—The Turkish cruiser Hamidié, which arrived here on Saturday morning, sailed to-day for the Red Sea after taking on board 100 tons of coal, which was all the authorities would allow her.

CURZON STIRS THE "ANTIS."

"Don't Open the Door to Women Voters," He Tells London Gathering.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Lord Curzon aroused frenzied enthusiasm at an anti-suffrage meeting in Queens Hall to-night by saying:

"We don't want to open the door at all, not to a million women dressed up as municipal electors, or three million women marching as a vanguard of a great army, which would eventually take charge of the destinies of the State."

Members of Parliament, both Liberal and Unionist members of the aristocracy and representatives of arts and letters made up the gathering which met to protest against the woman suffrage amendment to the franchise bill which comes before the Commons on Friday.

This topic is monopolizing political interest and embarrassing the Government more than any other with which it has had to deal of late.

Mrs. Humphry Ward, a picturesque figure in a lace cape and a silver and black gown, argued that women with the ballot would be inferior political units, serving as raw material for the political purposes of men.

MOTORBUS KILLS POLICEMAN.

London Shocked by First Fatal Accident to Traffic Man.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—For the first time in the history of London a policeman was killed to-day while on a fixed post. Londoners so thoroughly appreciate the services of the men directing the traffic of the metropolis that the news caused a great stir.

P. C. John Smith was the victim and the scene was Ludgate Circus. Smith was run over by a motorbus, the front wheel passing over his head. An eye-witness said that the vehicle skidded with its wheels locked as if on ice runners. The streets were very greasy.

Twelve members of the metropolitan police were injured by horse-drawn vehicles and twenty-two by motor vehicles while directing traffic in 1911.

MANCHESTER, Jan. 20.—The five survivors of the Boston schooner Future who were rescued sixty miles off Cape Hatteras on Jan. 2, when they had given themselves up for lost, were landed here to-day from the steamer Asuncion. They are H. Perry of Malden, Mass., and Julia Salves, Manuel R. Silver, Rufus Santos, and Taro D. Rigues, all of Boston.

They told a terrible story of their privations. Sudden gales sprang up while they were on their voyage, and on Jan. 2 a great wave washed Capt. A. C. Larkin and the mate overboard. The hold was flooded and the ship was left a helpless hulk at the mercy of the sea.

Engineer Perry, the cook, R. K. Schaffner, and the four other men then lashed themselves in the mizzen chains. The decks were awash, and the men were without provisions with the exception of five raw potatoes. The cook soon afterward died from exposure.

The Future was so low in the water that she was invisible to the vessels which passed by, but which the shipwrecked men could see in the distance, until the second officer of the Asuncion, which came very near to them, sighted the hulk in the trough of the sea.

Boats were put out by the Asuncion, but owing to the heavy sea it was found impossible to come alongside the wreck. A line was then thrown from a boat, which the shipwrecked men secured one by one, and they were dragged through the waves into the boat standing by.

Despite their awful experience the survivors are now little the worse for what they passed through.

CAN'T GET MONEY FOR CHINA.

Six-Power Plan a Failure, It Is Reported—England's Opportunity.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 21.—The Daily Telegraph's Peking correspondent says in a dispatch dated yesterday:

"I have an important announcement to make. According to confidential information reaching here from several sources, the six-power loan cannot be underwritten on the Continent at all, two Bourses stating that any Chinese issue is impossible this year, no matter how favorably Balkan affairs may terminate.

"A position therefore appears to be slowly materializing which will present the greatest opportunities for British capitalists, similar to the purchase of the Suez Canal shares. Under the terms of the Crisp agreement, which is still uncanceled, any contract made by the Chinese Government until September may be tendered for.

"If the position of the six-power group becomes an absolute deadlock, no money is forthcoming, and the Chinese Government, as I anticipate, appeals to the British Government, it appears to be in the interest of all concerned that Sir Edward Grey should seek expert advice and summon British bankers to a meeting to consider the Chinese situation.

"A fact which is bulking ever larger and larger is that London remains the only free money market in the world, and this unique position must not be misused."

BRIAND TO FORM A CABINET.

Delcasse to Give Up the Marine Ministry, Owing to Ill-Health.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Aristide Briand tonight definitely accepted the call of President Fallières to form a new Cabinet. He has not succeeded as yet in selecting his Ministers, but it is probable that the composition of the Cabinet will be announced to-morrow.

M. Bourgeois, at present Minister of Labor, although he has been asked by President Fallières, President-elect Poincaré, and M. Briand to take up the portfolio of Minister of Foreign Affairs, declares that his health will not permit him to do so.

Théophile Delcassé, at present Minister of Marine, likewise for reasons of health, will not retain the Marine portfolio or accept any other post in the new Cabinet.

CURBS DRESS REFORM OF TURKISH WOMEN

They Mustn't Go Out in Attire Contrary to Religious Law, Says Commandant.

FASHION DOING WONDERS

Shapeless Black Outer Garments Are Being Changed to Reveal Not to Hide the Figure.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 21.—The Daily Chronicle's Constantinople correspondent sends this dispatch:

"The military Commandant at Constantinople has just issued a significant order forbidding Turkish women to appear in the streets in attire which is contrary to the religious law and to the National custom.

"This Winter is marking a great advance over previous years in the extreme street garb worn by the younger generation of Moslems. Deft dressmaking has converted the old-fashioned black outergarment into a most attractive costume, which accentuates rather than hides the natural lines of a good figure.

"This order does not represent a hope that the Turkish women will go back to shapeless clothes. The military Commandant knows woman's nature too well for that. It is interpreted as a caution against arousing fanaticism in these critical times, which might be harmful to the more advanced members of the Turkish fairer sex."

JEWELS LENT FOR EVENING.

A New Business Developing in the West End and Suburbs of London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—A new business is springing up in the West End of London, and the more pretentious suburbs. It consists in loaning jewelry for evening wear. Many women who do not possess jewels in sufficiency and who want to make an impression go to jewelers, who, for a consideration, lend out a certain number of gems.

The borrowers, of course, must be known to the jewelers, who take measures to secure themselves in case of the loss of the loaned ornaments.

The necessity of presenting an outward show of prosperity in these days, when so much depends on appearances, is given as one of the causes for the development of the new business.

SHOW PRESSING NEED OF HEALTH REFORMS

Gov. Sulzer's Commission Hears State Officers Are Underpaid and That Many Are Inefficient.

THEIR POWERS INADEQUATE

Prof. Winslow Asserts the Deaths from Typhoid at Niagara Falls Are a National Disgrace.

Gov. Sulzer's new Public Health Commission held its first open meeting at the United Charities Building at 287 Fourth Avenue yesterday afternoon. The commission, after listening to the testimony of a dozen witnesses, announced that another session would be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. All the authorities examined agreed that reform legislation was needed at once.

The commission heard that the present appropriation for the State Health Department was inadequate, and that the low salaries paid in the smaller towns and villages made it impossible to obtain efficient health officers in most of them. This was the view of Prof. C. E. A. Winslow, assistant professor of biology at the City College. Dr. Frank Overton, Health Officer of Patchogue and President of the New York State Health Officers' Association, asserted that the law gave health officers in the smaller communities practically no power at all.

"Constructive legislation," said Dr. Overton, "is imperative. The present laws are ridiculously inadequate. They do not define the powers of the local health officer; neither do they define the power of the State. Why, do you know that if a health officer refuses to quarantine a case of smallpox there is no power in the State that can force him to, even if the State determines that the case is one of smallpox? There have been cases of that kind. Then, again, if we, as local health officers, bring proceedings against a man the lawyers step in, and we are beaten in the final showdown. If a man defies us that is the end of it."

The lack of close co-operation between the State Department and the local health officers was another point emphasized. The local Boards of Health in smaller cities and towns were condemned as useless and often obstructive, and a plan for a general reorganization of forces was submitted by Dr. Overton which would do away with these Health Boards. He recommended a County Board of Health, composed of the local health officers for each county, which would select a county health officer, who in turn would act as the "connecting link," as he called it, between the local health officers and the State Department.

There were minor differences of opinion among those examined yesterday, but all agreed that immediate reforms were needed in many directions. The present salary of the State Health Commissioner was said to be $5,000 a year, and Prof. Winslow was asked by John A. Kingsbury, assistant secretary to the commission, for his views on that subject.

"I think $5,000 is very little," he said. "I don't know just what sum to name, but I should say at least $10,000."

"Do you think that the duties of a Public Health Commissioner are as important as those of a Public Service Commissioner?" asked Mr. Kingsbury.

"Yes; I should say they were," was the reply.

"Then," said Mr. Kingsbury, "that sum does not seem so ridiculous, does it?"

Dr. John S. Wilson, Health Officer of Poughkeepsie, a third class city, asserted that many years ago he started with a salary of $25 a year and now got $1,200 a year, with the added duties of Milk Inspector thrown in.

"The dog catcher gets $1,000 a year," he said with a hearty laugh as he left the witness chair.

While the Commissioners made no definite statement, it was understood that they were in full accord with the physicians in their feeling that the salaries paid to health officers were inadequate.

Prof. Winslow paid a high compliment to the New York City Health Department, which he said was the finest in the world, but he asserted that the death rate was not showing a decrease in the outside districts as it was in New York. One reason, he said, was because the local health departments were woefully inadequate.

For the high death rate from typhoid fever, said Prof. Winslow, there was no excuse.

"Take the case of Niagara Falls," he said. "I don't see why Niagara Falls should be allowed to be a National disgrace, especially as there are so many visitors passing through. In my opinion, the State Department has the power under the present laws to make a city purify its water supply. And I think that wherever there is a death rate of more than thirty a thorough investigation should be made and the residents of the town informed of the facts."

The right kind of publicity and the education of the doctors and health officers, as well as the people, would bring big results, Prof. Winslow added. By the right kind of results, he said, he meant publicity through the newspapers and by literature of a readable kind—not technical reports.

Dr. Baldwin presented a plan for reorganization elaborating the ideas of Dr. Overton, and it was filed. Among the other witnesses were Dr. Thomas E. Bullard, health officer of Schuylerville; Dr. Otto Pfaff, Mayor of Oneida; Dr. Charles S. Prest of Waterford, and Dr. H. J. Ball of Cortlandt.

STAHL COMMITS SUICIDE.

Cigar Man Under Delusion That He Was Pursued by a Trust.

Jacob Stahl, Jr., President of Jacob Stahl, Jr., & Co., cigar manufacturers of 1,805 First Avenue, whose home was at 1,256 Franklin Avenue, the Bronx, committed suicide by shooting himself in the breast and head yesterday morning. Three days ago Mr. Stahl went to the Elks Club on Forty-third Street, near Sixth Avenue, and registered for a room. It was in that room that he killed himself yesterday morning.

Shortly before noon yesterday Mr. Stahl went to a telephone and called up Ambroso Christ, a brother-in-law, whose home is at 1,189 Franklin Avenue, and told him to come to the Elks Club at once. When Mr. Christ arrived Mr. Stahl had been dead an hour. Mr. Stahl left three short notes. In one, to John Meagher, an undertaker of 3,477 Third Avenue, he asked Mr. Meagher to break the news to his wife. In another, to the manager of the Elks Club, he craved the pardon of the management and members for selecting that club house as the place in which to kill himself.

At the Stahl factory it was said no reason could be assigned for the suicide. It was rumored, however, that the man had labored under the impression that he was being driven out of business by a trust, and that it was worry over this that led him to take his life.

Mr. Stahl was 48 years old, and succeeded his father as head of the Stahl Cigar Company. He and his brother, William, were the owners of the factory. William Stahl was out of town yesterday.

ELIOT NOT IN ACADEMY.

Harvard's President Emeritus Said He Was in Too Many Societies.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, did not want to be an "immortal." That is why his name does not appear in the list of fifty original members of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

James Ford Rhodes, the historian, explained the matter to-day.

"When the first society was formed as the National Institute of Arts and Letters, President Eliot was elected, but declined to be a member.

"Then when the American Academy of Arts and Letters was formed he was elected a member of that, but again declined. He told me that he was in so many societies already that he did not wish to add to the number.

"I conferred with him on many occasions, not to induce him, but to talk it over, and he always advanced the same reason, that he did not wish to add to the list of societies of which he was a member. We regretted it very much, and do to-day."

PANAMA BEETLES RUIN LOGS.

Astoria Lumbermen Fight Further Shipments from Isthmus.

In one month last Summer several million flying beetles, hatched in a cargo of logs from the west coast of Panama, did between $10,000 and $25,000 damages to the lumber in the yards of the Astoria Veneer Mills on the East River front in Astoria, according to evidence in a suit before Justice Blackmar in a special term of the Queens County Supreme Court, Long Island City, in which the Veneer Company asks damages from J. A. Horsey & Sons, shipping brokers of 68 Broad Street, Manhattan, and the cancellation of a contract with that firm which gave them the privilege of storing their Panama lumber shipments in the yards of the Veneer Company.

Among other lumber firms who told of the depredations made in their lumber by this unnumbered army of beetles were George D. Emory & Co., Uptegraf & Beckwith, Lewis Thompson Company, J. J. Bonneau Company, and E. L. Sinsabaugh.

Dr. E. P. Felt, State Entomologist, told the Justice that the scientific name for the bugs was Platypus punctulatus. They are about an eighth of an inch long, and enter the logs through pin holes, but once inside they begin to make themselves at home by fitting up a series of chambers in which to lay their eggs. The lumber men said that if left to themselves they would have eaten up several million dollars worth of lumber.

MISS GOULD TO FEED BOWERY'S HUNGRY

Dinner and Musical Entertainment for 1,000 Men to be Provided at the Mission.

HER WEDDING GIFT TO POOR

Feast Will Be Spread on the Night of Her Marriage and "Mother" Bird Will Preside Over It.

That the dispensation of charity which has been characteristic of Miss Helen Miller Gould's life still occupies her thoughts, even with the preparations for her marriage to-morrow afternoon to Finley J. Shepard, is shown by the announcement that she has ordered food distributed to a thousand hungry men of the lower east side to-morrow night at the Bowery Mission, 227 Bowery.

Beginning at 6:30 o'clock in the evening the men will be taken in relays of 225 into the basement of the mission, where lunches, consisting of roast beef, vegetables, pie, bread, and coffee will be dispensed among them. When fed they will then be led to the chapel to participate in services held in commemoration of the marriage of Miss Gould. In this way the entire thousand men for whom Miss Gould has made provision will be first relieved of their hunger and then given the opportunity to join in celebrating her wedding.

Addresses will be made to Miss Gould's guests by the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Mead, President of the Bowery Mission; the Rev. Anthony H. Evans, pastor of the West Presbyterian Church, which Miss Gould's father often attended; the Rev. Dr. Raymond C. Knox, Chaplain of Columbia University, and Jacob Riis.

Another feature of Miss Gould's wedding celebration at the Bowery Mission will be messages of felicitation and congratulation from President Taft, Gov. Sulzer, and Mayor Gaynor.

Some one started a rumor about the City Hall yesterday morning that Miss Gould would apply there for a marriage license, and within a few minutes 200 persons were lined up at the entrance to the bureau in the basement of the hall, waiting to see her. City Clerk Scully said he had not been informed that Miss Gould intended to get a license in New York City, and after an hour or so the crowd dwindled away.

Two parlor cars attached to train No. 47, leaving the Grand Central Station at 11:10 to-morrow morning, will convey the guests from New York to Tarrytown for the wedding of Miss Helen Miller Gould and Finley J. Shepard, which is to be celebrated at 12:30 o'clock in the drawing room at Lyndhurst, the country home of the bride-elect.

Two important details of the wedding are to be carrried into effect to-day. The marriage license must be obtained, and the wedding ceremony is to be rehearsed. Miss Gould and her fiance, with her two little nieces, Helen and Dorothy Gould, who are to act as flower girls, and Louis J. Shepard, who will be his brother's best man, plan to leave town for Lyndhurst early this morning, and it is very probable that the party will make the trip by motor.

Miss Gould and Mr. Shepard must get their license from Robert Dashwood, Town Clerk of the Town of Greatburgh. It is not known whether they will visit Mr. Dashwood's office in the Music Hall Building, or ask him to come to Lyndhurst. By bringing his seal along, the Town Clerk can issue the license as legally at Lyndhurst as in his own office. A curious throng stood about the west side of the City Hall here yesterday, in the expectation of seeing Miss Gould and her fiance enter the Marriage Bureau, but they were disappointed.

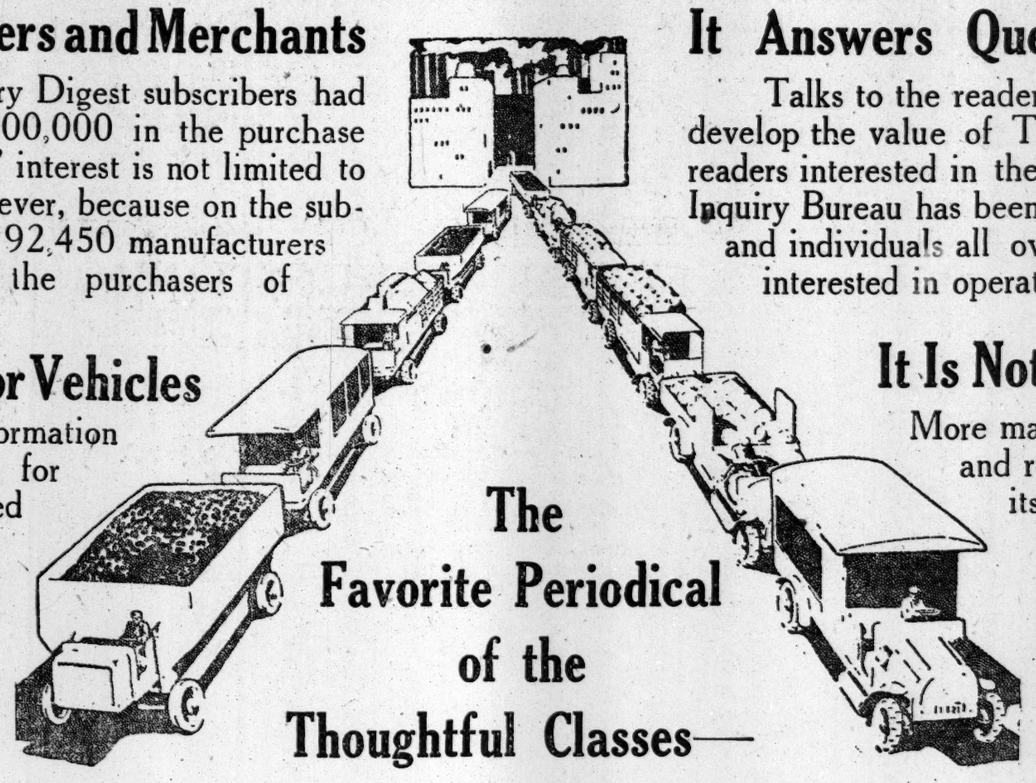
"Digest" subscribers' interest is not limited to the purchase of pleasure vehicles, however, because on the subscription list will be found the names of 92,450 manufacturers and merchants—the men who are the purchasers of commercial cars.

Immensely Interested in Motor Vehicles

Owing to the demand for such information from readers, The Literary Digest has for more than four years devoted continued editorial attention to the Motor-Truck industry. This publication stimulates interest in and educates its readers and the wider public to the advantages of this new system of street and road transportation.



The Favorite Periodical of the Thoughtful Classes—

It Answers Questions on Truck Problems

Talks to the reader on Truck problems have done much to develop the value of The Literary Digest to the thousands of readers interested in the subject. The "Digest" Motor-Truck Inquiry Bureau has been called upon for advice by corporations and individuals all over the United States, who are directly interested in operating Motor-Trucks.

It Is Not a "Trade" Paper and Yet—

More manufacturers and merchants subscribe for and read The Literary Digest in proportion to its total circulation than subscribe for any other publication of general character in the United States.

Pictured on this page are some of the vehicles manufactured by leading firms who have found an emphatically responsive market from their advertising to Literary Digest subscribers.

Mayor Blankenburg of Philadelphia:

"I would indeed hardly know how to do without it. It is one of the best publications of the character to be found in any country or in any language, and it has kept up its high standard ever since its first issue. To receive in concise form an account of important happenings all over the civilized world, edited in such intelligent manner and at a price within the reach of all, is a privilege indeed."

Governor Sulzer of New York:

"I couldn't get along without it. It gives me just the information I want every week. It's a world-periodical and the best of its character published in America."

Hon. W. J. Bryan:

SUFFRAGISTS HEAR ARGUMENTS OF ANTIS

They Discuss the Vote Pro and Con at a Big Meeting in Metropolitan Temple.

WOMAN PRESIDENT OUTLINED

Miss Rowe Says Her Husband Would Be "First Gentleman" and Rank with Wives of Diplomats.

Suffragists and anti-suffragists met last night on the platform of the Metropolitan Temple, Seventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street, to exchange their opposing views. The meeting was held by the Woman Suffrage Party of the Twenty-fifth Assembly District, and speakers had been invited from the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

A glimpse into feminine Presidential possibilities was offered by Miss Charlotte E. Rowe, an anti, who said that Mrs. Pankhurst would be about the type of woman who might be elected President.

"If a woman is ever elected President one may well wonder what sort of a woman she will be," said Miss Rowe. "Well, we can picture such a woman, but the question is what kind of a man will such a woman's husband be? One wonders what he will be doing when his wife is battling with the Senate or the House and upholding the country. Will he sit at the end of the table and pour the tea? Will he have to retire at the proper time with the wives of the diplomats? Will this weak man in the end revolt and ask for votes for men?

"Of course, there will be women elected to other offices. One is elected Mayor. The husband of this triumphant woman is the father of a boy. What heritage of sweetness or honesty will he inherit from his Mayor mother, or what strength and character from his father? A woman Mayor becomes the tombstone above the grave of dead ideals.

"I saw the men returning wounded and sick from the Spanish War. Were the women heckling for equality then? They were probably down on their knees thanking God for brave men. Equal suffrage is a repudiation of manhood. It robs life of romance and offers in restitution a lady Alderman."

Mrs. Harriet Laidlaw, suffragist, paid a tribute to American men as being the best product of democracy and civilization. She said, however, that men needed help in the struggle of making good that democracy. There was great applause when she added that there had been no real test of democracy because ours has been a limited one, and that democracy was founded upon a government of the people for the people. "And," she appealed with outstretched arms, "are not we women people?"

Miss Elizabeth Freeman said she was a suffragist because she believed in women, and Miss Minnie Bronson said she was an anti for the same reason. Women, Miss Freeman pointed out, were 50 per cent. of common humanity, and in some places they had been bearing just a litle more than their share of the load. She wanted to see things leveled up.

"If the working-class man finds the vote a safeguard to his interest, I believe women will find the same safeguard in the vote," she said. "It has been said that politics is so filthy that it is not a woman's part to enter it. It is because politics is so filthy that mother wants to enter it. It is to help father clean it up that she wants a place in politics."

Miss Bronson quoted statistics to show that the number of working women, especially those who worked in factories, had been overestimated. "Forty per cent. of the working women," she said, "are in your own kitchens, where we can raise wages, shorten working hours, and make conditions ideal. And that without an appeal to the ballot. Only 8 per cent. of the women want to vote, to imitate men, to do as men do, and to go into the places where they go."

"Upon the wife in the middle class largely depends the prosperity and efficiency of that class," said Mrs. Robert McVicker, who is an anti because she believes in home and marriage. "For the past sixty years the trend has been away from the home. Homely virtues have been at a discount. The woman in California who refused to wait her turn at the polling booth to vote because her bread would burn if she did had the right instinct."

Miss Fola La Follette, who is a suffragist because she believes in the home and marriage, discussed the question from her standpoint, and showed the blessings that would come when women get the vote.

Miss Alice Hill Chittenden is an anti because she believes in the State, and Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson is a suffragist for the same reason. They gave the reasons for their faith.

Mrs. Marie Jenney Howe presided. The meeting was in no sense a debate, and the great crowd that filled the temple was evidently in favor of votes for women. There was some heckling, but there was no friction, and questions were readily answered.

Girl Gets $7,500 for Loss of Fingers.

Miss Mary Barnett of Ridgewood, who lost three fingers on her right hand while operating a stamping machine, received a verdict of $7,500 yesterday against the American Stopper Company of Brooklyn before Justice Benedict in the Queens County Supreme Court. Her machine was out of order, and, as the foreman did not have time to fix it, Miss Barnett tried to make the repairs herself and the heavy stamp dropped on her hand. The machine, which weighed more than 1,000 pounds, was brought into court as an exhibit.

GO FISHING FOR NEWS

"Chimmie Fadden's" Advice to Columbia School of Journalism.

Congressman Edward W. Townsend, author of the "Chimmie Fadden" stories, told the students of the School of Journalism at Columbia yesterday that when they went out on an assignment they should consider that the city editor had sent them out on "a fishing excursion." If they kept this in mind, he told them, they would come in with a story that had something of the human element in it. Mr. Townsend spoke on "Seeing a Story." He said:

"There are many requirements in the equipment of a good reporter, and most of them can be supplied as precisely as the intellectual equipments of a good lawyer or a good doctor can be supplied—by courses of study. But to carry the parallel one step further, in the case of the reporter, if he is finally to be assigned to the best story of the day, college education must be supplemented by practice, observation, and an acquired knowledge of a story's value—a 'sense for news,' as we call it in shop talk. In part the ability to see a story may come from what is taught in this class.

"I should say that a reporter should cultivate curiosity; he should always be disposed to annex a fishing excursion, so to say, to every assignment he covers. A few more questions related to the subject of the assignment, but suggested, perhaps, by the character of the person he is interviewing, by his business or profession, the place of his residence, such of his history as may become known; a few questions of such sort may unearth something which, to the eye of the reporter capable of seeing a story, enables him to return to a delighted city editor with more and better stuff than he was sent out to bring in. That is where your big stock of general information helps; that is where what you have learned by specializing on some subject helps. The reporter who affects to be bored with the story he is on brings in a boresome story."

MRS. A. EINSTEIN SUES.

Asks a Separation from Husband Now in Riverside Sanitarium.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum signed an order yesterday permitting personal service on Arthur Einstein, a patient in Dr. Flavius Packard's sanitarium at Riverside, N. Y., in a suit for separation brought by his wife, Mrs. Manuela N. Einstein. Mrs. Einstein has asked for $150 a week alimony pending trial of the suit, the custody of her infant daughter, Hortense, and $1,500 as a counsel fee. She said her husband enjoyed an income of from $15,000 to $20,000 a year from the Einstein Manufacturing Company, a Brooklyn ribbon-making corporation, of which he has been Vice President and of which his father, Julius Einstein, was the head.

Mrs. Einstein charged that her husband humiliated her by bringing men and women of questionable character to their apartment in the lower Washington Heights district of New York. He also beat her, she said, at various places in this city, at hotels in France and Switzerland, and on their way to Europe aboard the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. On some of the occasions, when she declared her husband beat her, Mrs. Einstein said she had to have medical attention.

Blair Bros. Offer a Settlement.

Blair Brothers, former members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, who failed, asked Judge Holt to confirm a settlement with their creditors according to a plan accepted by a majority of them. This called for the payment of all obligations in full within three years, one-third to be paid each year, and the balance to draw 5 per cent. interest. Opposition was offered by some of the creditors, and the matter went over for two weeks.

HERE'S GEN. JONES'S GENERAL ORDER NO. 1

Suffragists Commanded to Carry First-Aid Packs on Long Tramp to Washington.

LINE OF MARCH IS LAID OUT

Army Will Rest One Day in Wilmington and Another in Baltimore —Gentlemen Pilgrims Welcome.

Gen. Rosalie Gardiner Jones, who led the hike to Albany and who is Commander in Chief of the army of suffrage pilgrims who are to "carry the word" to Washington, has returned from the South, where, as far as a General may, she made the rough places smooth for the army she is to lead to further victories.

The trip of the little General was in itself a suffrage triumph. Relatives, friends and strangers received the pilgrim leader with open arms, actually and figuratively, and she returned to New York with throat aching from frequent repetition of suffrage principles and suffrage triumphs, told and retold morning, noon and night to self-gathered audiences who would not be put off. Gen. Rosalie says she talked suffrage at every meal while she was away, because people would listen to nothing else.

Everyone is prepared to receive the pilgrims with joy and gladness along the route, and there is a constant increase in the number of volunteers who wish to join the army. Every one is invited to join and to bring along a cheerful spirit and desire for co-operation, for, as Gen. Rosalie says in an official announcement:

"The success of the pilgrimage and the pageant which will follow it in Washington will depend upon each one."

Pilgrims from as many States as possible are desired to make the affair National. Those who cannot go can send substitutes by paying their expenses. It is not necessary to march all the way. Pilgrims are invited to join for the hour, day or week.

The outer accoutrements of the pilgrims may be purchased for the low price of $2. They include a pilgrim cloak and hood, knapsack and staff. Little "Doc" Dock, who represented the Ambulance Corps and was Surgeon General of the army on the Albany hike, will not be able to be in attendance all the way to Washington, so pilgrims are advised to carry their own first-aids-to-the-injured. These include absorbent cotton, adhesive plaster and roll of gauze. That there may be as little need as possible for these gentle assistants pilgrims are further advised to wear large soft leather shoes with rubber heels—shoes not to be too heavy—and woolen stockings.

Following is the line of march of the army, with the time of starting and the date of expected arrival at the Nation's capital:

Gentlemen pilgrims are welcome to enter the ranks commanded by Gen. Rosalie. Every one will pay his or her own expenses, lodging and meals, en route. The big Votes for Women pageant in which all will take part will be held at the National capital on March 3.

That delicious moment when you are wrecked on a desert island with the girl who refused you the night before.

SENATE TURNS BACK IMMIGRATION BILL

Vote Unanimous to Return It to Conference, Where Dangerous Clause Will Be Eliminated.

EUROPE COULD HALT EXODUS

Root Says Good Intention Does Not Save It—La Follette Attacks Unauthorized Insertion of Clause.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Without a dissenting vote the Senate this afternoon rejected the conference report on the Immigration bill and ordered it back to conference so that the clause requiring immigrants to present a certificate of character might be stricken out.

The offensive provision passed neither the House nor the Senate in the first draft of the bill, but was inserted in conference on the suggestion of Secretary Nagel with a view to excluding Italian criminals. Yesterday the American-Jewish Committee of New York discovered that the provision might help exclude all political refugees, particularly those from Russia, who would be unable to get a certificate of any sort.

Officers of the committee and other prominent Jews at once started a stream of messages to Washington. Senator O'Gorman and Senator Root became interested. Louis Marshall of New York sent telegrams to practically every Senator urging the rejection of the conference report. To-day many of these telegrams were read or inserted in the Record, and Senator Stone of Missouri obtained leave to print from THE NEW YORK TIMES of this morning the statement issued for the American Jewish Committee by Herbert Friedenwald, its secretary.

Although the Senate was unanimous in rejecting the conference report, the action came only after a spirited debate. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who had charge of the measure, expressed the opinion that the clause had no bearing on Russian immigration, as Russia had no law compelling persons to carry certificates of character. Italy was the only nation, he said, with such a law, so that its only effect would be to make difficult the admission of members of the Black Hand and Camorra and other criminals.

The objectionable clause, which is one of many describing the classes forbidden to enter the United States, reads:

"Citizens or subjects of any country that issues penal certificates or certificates of good character, who do not produce to the immigration officials such certificates."

Should that certificate prove on presentation to be a statement of previous conviction, the immigrant under another section would be barred out as an undesirable.

The position taken by Mr. Lodge was sharply assailed from many quarters. Senators O'Gorman of New York, Simmons of South Carolina, and Stone of Missouri, moreover, pressed the point of order that the conferrees exceeded their authority by inserting bodily a provision not in the act as it passed either House. This point of order gave Senator La Follette his cue, and he assailed the rules of House and Senate as permitting the insertion of "tricky legislation."

Root Calls Clause Dangerous.

It was after speeches by these Senators and an earnest statement by Senator Root that Mr. Lodge agreed to make the motion sending the report back to the conference committee. He admitted that the clause, while well intended, might be open to dangerous interpretation.

In his statement Senator Root said:

"This provision, by subjecting the emigrant from a European country to the regulations of the local sovereignty, might open the door to a limitation of the right of emigration from that country.

"I think I can appreciate more than most Senators the reasons for the insertion of the clause by the conferrees. In my own State and city the evil of criminal immigration is most deeply felt. As a result groups of desperate criminals are gathered there. This clause was aimed to aid Immigration Inspectors to keep out members of the Black Hand and the Camorra, which do so much harm in my comunity.

"The conferrees, I am sure, were thinking only of Italian criminals and not thinking at all of Russia. But, as frequently happens, a clause drafted with one object in view accomplished another entirely different."

La Follette Attacks It.

Senator La Follette said that, in passing such a law, the United States would put the control of our immigration in the hands of other powers.

"All those who believe in republican principles of Government," said Mr. La Follette, "would fail to obtain a certificate. Russia knows that one free tongue in New York is more harmful to Russian despotism than 10,000 shackled subjects in Siberia. Russia does not want these people who are seeking freedom to be admitted to the United States, and I believe that is the reason why some others do not want them admitted here. These people are a menace to plutocracy, and there are certain persons in this country who do not favor encouraging a menace to plutocracy."

Mr. La Follette said the greatest era of immigration to America would have been cut short had a clause like that proposed been in existence when the flood began. This era was from 1848 to 1854, when the reactionary monarchs of Europe were banding together for the suppression of the liberal movement. In Germany, he said, Carl Schurz and his associates were battling in vain and fleeing to this country. In France Napoleon III. was executing his coup d'état, and in Hungary progressives were fighting and losing.

These men, he said, made up the first wave of settlers into the American Northwest, and he intimated that he thought them the founders of the progressive movement of to-day. In any case, he added, the men from Russia, Germany, or any monarchical nation who would be kept out would be the very ones who would most enrich American citizenship.

Before the bill was sent back to conference several suggestions were made for amendment of the clause. The most important came from Senator Simmons, who suggested that the provision concerning a certificate be left permissive, with failure to produce a certificate as possible prima facie evidence of undesirability, leaving to the immigrant the right to explain, if he could, why his certificate was missing.

It is unlikely, however, that this suggestion will be followed. The Senators today were all against the proposition in any form, and the flood of telegrams and other communications has already begun its work at the other end of the Capitol. As the offensive clause is not a House provision, the House managers will find it easy to yield.

CAN MAKE GUAYAQUIL SAFE.

Col. Gorgas Has Plans for Cleansing "Pest Hole of Pacific."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Col. William C. Gorgas, head of the sanitary work in the Panama Canal Zone, arrived here today from Guayaquil, Ecuador, where he went recently to prepare plans for cleansing that port, known for many years past as the "pest hole of the Pacific." Col. Gorgas will present his report to Secretary Knox to-morrow.

"I found conditions at Guayaquil similar to those which we met at Havana when we went there some years ago to rid it of fever," Col. Gogas said. "There seems to be no reason why Guayaquil cannot be made as safe a harbor from the health point of view as any other. The people there realize the importance of cleaning up if they want to enjoy the benefits to be derived from the commerce of the canal.

"The first thing the city needs is a pipe line giving a pure water supply. I found in the hospitals seventy cases of plague. This disease will be eradicated with the yellow fever when better sanitation is secured. Guayaquil is in a strategic position. It is the only port in Ecuador to get a large trade from the surrounding upland country, which is thickly populated and rich in resources."

WANTS PIER LINE SETTLED.

Secretary Stimson Asks for Immediate Conference with Mayor Gaynor.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Secretary Stimson to-day instructed Col. Black, President of the Army Engineer Board, having charge of New York Harbor, to confer immediately with Mayor Gaynor on the plan outlined by the Secretary at last Friday's hearing for the relocation of piers.

The board is expected to approve a new pier line, drawn straight from the Battery to a point at the southern end of the Chelsea District at the outer end of the old piers before they were extended by former Secretary Dickinson's permit.

Engineers contend that within this line, in the river bend, and particularly in the neighborhood of Desbrosses Street, there is ample room for the 1,000-foot piers required for the great ocean liners. The board will approve the location of such piers if the city authorities will pledge themselves to begin at once the gradual transfer of the great piers in the Chelsea district of that section, appropriate money to begin the construction of one of them as an earnest of good intentions, and move to secure the abandonment of docks in the section now utilized by ferries.

CANAL DEFENSES ADEQUATE.

Goethals Finds Provision for Fortifying the Isthmus Satisfactory.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Col. George W. Goethals, Chief Engineer of the Panama Canal, to-day told the sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee, which is framing the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, that the fortifications for the canal, as provided in the current appropriation bills were satisfactory, and if the policy is continued the defenses of the canal under ordinary conditions would be impregnable. He recommended that barracks to accommodate 8,000 men be provided, to be located probably near the Miraflores locks.

Col. Goethals expects to leave Washington to-morrow, and will sail for Panama a week from Wednesday.

FRUIT TRUST EXISTS, UNDERWOOD IS TOLD

Exchange Here, Demanding Free Lemons at Tariff Hearing, Charges California Monopoly.

PLEA FOR PRESENT DUTIES

Citrus Men Don't Want Them Disturbed—Schieffelin for Admitting Meat Extracts Duty Free.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Citrus fruit interests, representing a $200,000,000 investment on the Pacific Coast, contributed most of the testimony before the Committee on Ways and Means at three sessions to-day and to-night, though the hearings came under the general subject of the agricultural schedule of the Payne-Aldrich law.

The Citrus Protective League of California, comprising growers and shippers of oranges and lemons, and the Fruit Growers' Exchange which Chairman Underwood of the committee insisted was the selling agency for these producers, contended for the retention of the present duty on its products. The spokesman for these interests was G. H. Powell of Los Angeles, formerly Acting Chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry.

The New York Fruit Exchange, comprising jobbers, importers, commission merchants, and brokers, demanded the elimination of the lemon tariff. Its spokesman, Eugene M. Travis of New York, called the California industry "a trust" that had "abnormal profits," and asserted it was the beneficiary of undue taxation on a household necessity.

Mr. Underwood favors putting lemons on the free list, while some members of the committee are figuring on three-quarters of a cent a pound as a fair compromise on the present duty of 1½ cents a pound. Either of these proposals may be adopted in the Democratic Tariff Revision bill.

Mr. Powell urged that lemons remain at 1½ cents a pound duty, and oranges, limes, grapefruit, shaddocks, and pomelos at 1 cent. He said there were twelve lemons per capita consumed in this country annually, and that the present tariff levy amountad to 3½ or 4 cents per capita tax. He said the California growers got their lowest prices between the Alleghanies and the seaboard, where the competition was the fiercest, and the highest west of the Missouri River, where they commanded the market. He insisted that tariff reduction would lead to Italian monopolistic control of the American lemon market.

Mr. Underwood said he wanted to find out what the California growers' organization was doing. Mr. Powell described the 115 local exchanges that transmitted orders and determined prices of their own products, these 115 federating into seventeen district exchanges, which, in turn, federated into the California Growers' Exchange, with agents in various consuming cities. He would not admit that it was "a selling agency."

"Your organization attempts to hold prices for the California growers?" asked Mr. Underwood.

"Yes, to get all they can," said Mr. Powell.

Mr. Travis testified that the New York Fruit Exchange view was that the lemon industry no longer needed protection, and he pointed to the opening of the Panama Canal as meaning a lowering of the freight cost on lemons.

E. W. Durkee of New York, for the American Spice Association, wanted the present tariff on spices to remain.

W. J. Schieffelin of New York asked that extract of meat, now dutiable at 35 cents a pound, be put on the free list. He said the best quality was made in Argentina and Australia, where beef cattle are abundant and cheap.

"What we want to do in arranging this tariff," said Democratic Leader Underwood in reply to a witness at the night session, "is to get a reasonable amount of importations, so that we may get a reasonable amount of revenue. It is so especially in regard to oranges. Reasonable revenue is what we expect from the duty. You must take that portion of the competition. I expect my people in Birmingham, Ala., who make iron and steel, to take reasonable competition. I also expect others to stand a reasonable competition.

TO KEEP A RESERVE IN SAVINGS BANKS

Bills Introduced in Legislature Seek to Make Institutions Safer.

PLAN FOR BRANCH BANKS

Single-Headed Highway Commission Provided For in Senator Murtaugh's Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—Bills prepared by George C. Van Tuyl, State Superintendent of Banks, for the better protection of depositors in savings banks and to compel savings banks to accumulate a reserve fund were introduced in the Legislature to-night. Mr. Van Tuyl said that the bills were prepared after conferences with the Executive Committees on Banking of the State Savings Banks Associations. All who took part in the conferences agreed that laws should be passed which would meet any emergency which might arise due to depreciation of securities.

The existing law is held to be insufficient, as there is no requirement for the accumulation of any reserve. It is believed that adequate provision should be made for the creation of a fund by each savings bank from which possible losses may be met. The necessity for such fund is said to arise from the large salaries paid to officers of some banks and expenses of management, and from the distribution of dividends to compete with other financial institutions for deposits. The Superintendent said that some institutions did not have reserves large enough to meet routine losses or even to pay the dividends of a single year at their present rate of payment.

If the bills should pass the term "interest" in connection with payments made by savings banks would be dropped in favor of the word "dividend." One bill provides that before any dividend is declared by a savings bank the trustees shall ascertain the net earnings of the bank during the dividend period. If the reserve based upon the assets of the bank at their market value is less than 5 per cent. of the amount due the depositors at the date of the examination, the Trustees, before declaring the dividend, shall reserve 15 per cent. of the net earnings, and if the reserve fund shall be found to be more than 5 per cent. and less than 10 per cent. the Trustees shall reserve 10 per cent. of the net earnings before declaring the dividend.

Another bill makes the State banking law conform to the National Bank act, in that it makes it a felony for any Director, Trustee, or other officer of a savings bank to abstract or misapply willfully money or funds to the credit of the bank with which he is associated.

Another bill prepared by Mr. Van Tuyl permits savings banks to consolidate under terms satisfactory to the Superintendent of Banks. Provision is also made for the establishment of branch savings banks. In a city of the first class, no savings bank will be permitted to maintain a branch unless its assets are at least $10,000,000, and unless it has a reserve fund based on the market value of its assets of at least 7½ per cent. of the amount due depositors. To have two branches a bank must have assets of $20,000,000, to have three branches $50,000,000, and four branches $70,000,000. In other cities and villages of the State a savings bank may, with the approval of the Superintendent of Banks, have not more than two branches. One may be established if the applying bank has assets of $5,000,000, with a 5 per cent. reserve fund, and two may be established if the assets amount to $15,000,000, with a 10 per cent. reserve fund. Supt. Van Tuyl said that the branch banks were intended to encourage thrift in districts not now served by existing banks.

Provision is made in another bill for the removal of a Trustee of a savings bank under certain conditions upon the affirmative vote of three-fourths of the total number of Trustees and with the written approval of the Superintendent of Banks.

New Highway Bill.

Senator Murtaugh to-night introduced a bill to reorganize the State Highway Department along the lines favored by Gov. Sulzer. Senator Murtaugh also introduced the Murphy-Dix Highway bill, which the present administration concedes was a failure. The new bill provides for a commission of one to supervise the department, which will spend the second $50,000,000 installment for the improvement of the State's roads. The Commissioner, under this bill, will have three deputies, one to take care of the work of construction, another to look after maintenance and repairs, and the third to take care of the town system of highways. There will also be a Secretary and a financial clerk.

Provision is made for the appointment of nine division engineers, who will have control over construction and maintenance work in their respective districts. The Commissioner is to receive a salary of $10,000 a year, the first deputy $6,000, the other deputies and the Secretary $5,000, and the chief auditor $4,000. Provision is made for competitive bidding on maintenance and repair work.

Senator Murtaugh said the bill, in his judgment, would meet the criticism, "just or unjust," of which the State highway work during the last two years had been made the target. Gov. Sulzer said to-day that the bill introduced to-night has his approval, and was along the lines suggested by his commission of inquiry which has been investigating the Highway Department. A. R. Shattuck, representing good roads interests, called on the Governor and his Commissioners of Inquiry to-day to discuss the proposed legislation for a reorganization of the Highway Department.

Senator C. D. Sullivan of New York introduced a bill requiring automobile tires to be dated. It provides that no person or corporation shall manufacture or sell a tire unless the date of manufacture is stamped in the material from which the tire is made. The bill was referred to the Miscelleaneous Corporations Committee, of which Senator Sullivan is Chairman. The penalty for each violation is a fine of $50.

Two Platoons for Firemen.

Senator Malone of Buffalo introduced a bill providing for a two platoon system in the Fire Departments of cities of the first class. The uniformed fire fighting force of each city is to be divided into a day platoon on duty ten hours a day, and a night platoon to be on duty fourteen hours a day.

Senator Brown, minority leader of the Upper House, renewed to-night his attack upon the appointment of Herman W. Hoefer of New York as State Architect. Mr. Hoefer has held the office since last June, when he was made a recess appointee. Gov. Sulzer sent Mr. Hoefer's appointment to the Senate for confirmation on the first day of the present session, and Senator Brown objected to immediate confirmation. The nomination was reported favorably by the Senate Finance Committee, and confirmed by the Senate on the following Tuesday, after a committee of the American Institute of Architects had protested to Gov. Sulzer. The committee declared that Mr. Hoefer was inexperienced and comparatively unknown.

Senator Brown introduced a resolution to-night calling upon Gov. Sulzer to produce any letters he might have criticising the appointment. The resolution was referred to the Finance Committee.

In the Assembly, Mr. Cotillo of the Twenty-eighth (New York) District introduced a bill amending the so-called Sullivan gun law in such a way as to permit the keeping of firearms in houses and places of business without getting a permit from the courts or police authorities.

Assemblyman Sufrin of the Eighth (New York) District introduced two bills modifying the provisions of the law governing annulment of marriage. The proposed modification would make five years' continuous absence of either husband or wife and a belief on the part of the one abandoned, that absence was due to death, ground for annulment.

Another bill introduced by Mr. Sufrin modifies the divorce laws by making the present ground for a mere separation—cruelty, non-support, and incompatibility of temper—ground for absolute divorce.

Former Senator Frederick M. Davenport, who was the Progressive candidate for Lieutenant Governor at the last election, was a guest of the Senate to-night. On the invitation of Lieut. Gov. Glynn, Mr. Davenport made a short speech, in which he said that this was getting to be a better State and a better country, in spite of political changes, and that faith in the people and faith in what was right was slowly triumphing.

Mathewson Fined for Speeding.

Christopher Mathewson was judicially declared too speedy by Magistrate Leach at Jamaica yesterday, and fined $10. The Giant pitcher was running his automobile along the Hoffman Boulevard at Jamaica on Sunday evening, and was timed by Patrolman Meehan as doing thirty-one miles an hour. He appeared in court yesterday in response to a summons, and with the imposition of the fine was advised not to misplace his speed in the future.

SIMPLER INSURANCE URGED BY SULZER

Time to Rid the Standard Fire Policy of Harmful Technicalities, He Tells Legislature.

ELLISON REPORT CONDEMNS

Special Commissioner Favors Radical Revision of the Present Policy and the "Riders" Attached.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—Gov. Sulzer sent to the Legislature to-night the report of William B. Ellison of New York as Commissioner to investigate the standard form of fire insurance policy in this State, with the recommendation that the form of policy be radically changed at once. Mr. Ellison recommends a simple form without technicality or ambiguity so that it may be easily comprehended by the insured.

In his letter accompanying the report to the Governor Mr. Ellison says he has not undertaken to consider "riders" to policies now in use "for the reason that several of them were adopted by agreement between the New York Board of Fire Underwriters and the State Department of Insurance." He adds that he has "not felt free, or felt that it was desirable to interfere with matters that have had the approval of the Superintendent of Insurance.

"I feel, however, that I should say to you," the Commissioner says, "that many of the 'riders' now in use have been made the subject of very vigorous criticism in numberless communications, oral and written, made to me while I had the main question under consideration. Indeed, the complaints against these 'riders' and the way they are attached, have been productive of a great deal of discontent. Should you desire me to take up for further consideration questions arising under the 'riders' to which reference has been made, I will, of course, be glad to do so."

Mr. Ellison says that he will await further directions from the Governor before taking up the other matters relating to the fire insurance business, which were referred to at the time of his appointment.

Gov. Sulzer confines his recommendations to the Legislature to a revision of the standard form of policy.

"The present standard fire insurance policy," the Governor says, "is filled with perils to the innocent insuring public, and it is now, in my opinion, beyond dispute that there should be a simplification at least of the conditions upon which protection against fire in the way of insurance is obtainable.

"The standard fire insurance policy of the State contains a mass of technical conditions and provisions that the people find most difficult to understand. Indeed, they are so fraught with technicality and ambiguity that the courts themselves, the highest court of record in the country, constantly differ in matters of construction. This should not be difficult of remedy, and the public welfare, it seems to me, demands that it be remedied at once.

"Of course, we should not attempt to destroy any reasonable protection that may be claimed for the fire insurance companies, but at the same time I contend that the rights of the insured should not be left, as is frequently the case under the present form of policy, to the charity of the company. The provisions of the policy should be made so simple, so short, and so clear that the rights of both are apparent and the interests of both are safeguarded."

SULZER ON TEMPERANCE.

Day Gone When a House Quorum Flocked to the Bar, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—The days when "a quorum of the House of Representatives could always be found at the Capitol bar" are gone, never to return, according to Gov. Sulzer, whose thoughts frequently go back to his life in Washington.

"When I first went to Washington," said the Governor, "a man who did not drink was under suspicion; now, a man who drinks there is under suspicion. The change came about through the good sense and better judgment of the members. The old conditions will never return."

The Governor's attention had been called to a statement that his political mentor, Silas Wright, frequently drank brandy.

"Well, it was customary in those days," the Governor explained. "A man who had seen Daniel Webster on the day he replied to Hayne told me that the great orator drank a glassful of brandy before leaving for the Capitol, and took an equal amount from the black bottle before he entered the Senate Chamber. Then, when the Senate routine was over, he delivered one of the most celebrated speeches in American history. But since then times and customs have changed."

SULZER'S PRIMARY VIEWS.

Would Select State Officers by Direct Method—For Short Ballot.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—Gov. Sulzer said to-day that he was in favor of the selection of State officers by the direct primary. He also said that he favored the short ballot and the best election law that could be written. He had been in consultation, he said, with members of the Legislature in reference to primary Legislation, but no bill had been drawn up. The friends of the direct primary principle, he said, demanded the abolition of State conventions which many leaders of both parties did not desire to abandon.

The Governor, who said he had had much experience realized that constructive legislation was sometimes slow and that in some instances compromise was necessary. The Governor said, however, that he is in no mood for compromise now.

WEDS MAN WHO JILTED HER.

Pretty Milliner Bride of Gale, Who Said "No" Almost at Altar.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Jan. 20.—That love will find a way was proved here to-day, when it became known that Miss Ethel Adelaide Sprague, a local millinery model, who was jilted almost at the altar on Dec. 7, and George L. Gae, the young man who sent her the crushing note saying that the ceremony was off, were married on Saturday afternoon in Stratford. Mrs. George Clarke, the wealthy widow of an actor, who is Mr. Gale's aunt, and who caused him to break off the ceremony, is sick in bed as the result of the news of her nephew's marriage and threatens to disinherit him.

The wedding was originally fixed for 2 P. M. on Saturday, Dec. 7. All the arrangements were made, and the guests were arriving in town when Miss Sprague suddenly announced that there would be no ceremony. In spite of this fact, the Rev. Lincoln Hollister Casswell arrived at the appointed hour. Miss Sprague, who is pretty and accomplished, played and sang for the minister. Neither she nor Mr. Gale would give any reason for the change in the plans.

Last Saturday afternoon the two young people went separately to Stratford and, after obtaining a license, were married by the Rev. C. E. Carpnter. They returned to their homes and intended to keep silent about their marriage, but the truth leaked out. Mrs. Gale returned all the wedding presents after the apparent quarrel, which fact caused considerable comment. At that time she said she would not marry Mr. Gale, and that there were as good fish in the sea as ever were caught."

DISCUSS DISSOLUTION PLAN.

Ex-Judge Lovell of Harriman Lines in Washington for Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Ex-Judge Robert S. Lovett of the Harriman lines came to Washington to-day for conferences in connection with the working out of a satisfactory plan for the dissolution of the merger of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroads, in accordance with the recent decree of the United States Supreme Court. It is understood to-night that progress is being made in this direction, but the detailed status of the case is withheld.

The conferences are said to relate mainly to the proposal that the Union Pacific purchase the Central Pacific with part of the Southern Pacific stock.

MAN first carried a load on his back; then he dragged it over the ground. Then he invented the wheel; and drew the load in a cart. Next, man tamed a wild beast, and made the beast haul the cart.

Then followed the ox; but the ox was too slow. Next came the horse; but the horse could not keep up with the pace of modern business. Now comes the motor truck—a creature of steel.

A Creature of Steel

The Alco truck is a mechanical creature that hauls heavy loads faster than the horse. It is the outgrowth of a 250 years' search to find a substitute for the beast of burden.

Ever since man invented the wheel its coming has been expected. It is a device of Destiny.

Its only reason for existing to-day is to save. It saves time, saves labor, saves money—it has been known even to save a man's business. If it did not save, it would not exist long. Modern business would quickly dispense with it

It has saved because there are close on to 1000 of its kind in use—and the number is constantly increasing.

It is proving its economy in over 103 lines of business. It is meeting this supreme test daily—in almost every State in America.

It is hauling cane in Cuba, fresh fruit in Porto Rico, rice in the Philippines, pineapples in Hawaii, oranges in California, ore in Alaska, produce in Long Island, textiles in Massachusetts, cotton in Alabama, groceries in Ohio, milk in Boston, meat in Chicago and trunks in New York City.

It has performed its tasks well, for its sales record in re-orders is 62 per cent.

Sixty-five per cent of its kind are being operated by large concerns listed by Bradstreet's or Dun at $1,000,000 or over—concerns that rarely purchase "unknowns."

Its early life is spent in large foundries, among huge hammers and extensive heat treating plants, among automatic machines and as it grows up it receives the severest of tests of chemical and physical laboratories. It is well built and strong. It has power. Its "rolling rubber feet" never tire. It is well fitted for the bumps of the world.

It goes out upon its career backed by a company, capitalized at $50,000,000, which has a transportation experience as movers of the world's goods that dates back to 1835.

LEGISLATORS RIOT IN WYOMING HOUSE

Rival Presiding Officers Struggle Until Separated by Their Partisans.

U. S. SENATORSHIP INVOLVED

Fight Arose Over Republican Speaker's Naming of Committees on Rules and Elections.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 20.—A riot started in the House of Representatives of the Wyoming Legislature to-day, when Martin L. Pratt, the Speaker, and W. J. Wood, Speaker pro tem., both claimed the right to preside. A hand-to-hand fight took place between the two officers.

The altercation lasted fully three-quarters of an hour, and included two separate encounters between Pratt and Wood. The situation was ended when leaders of both factions announced an agreement to let the question of authority rest until afternoon. With Wood sitting in the Speaker's chair and Pratt wielding the gavel, the show of authority seemed about equal.

The immediate occasion of the trouble was the attempt of Speaker Pratt to call to the chair F. C. Hunter, Republican, of Carbon County. An appeal had been taken from the Speaker's ruling against an offer by Democrats of substitute Rules and Election Committees for those which he had submitted, and in which he held the balance of power.

The latter committee is to pass upon the right of three Republicans to hold seats from Uintah County, and upon the outcome of these contests depends largely the chances of United States Senator Warren for re-election.

Hunter took the chair and Pratt went to Hunter's seat on the floor. Judge Motz, Democrat, declared that the Speaker could not designate any other than the Speaker pro tem. to take the chair, and called upon Representative W. J. Wood of Crook County, Speaker pro tem., and a Democrat, to preside. This Wood proceeded to do, and Hunter yielded.

Thereupon Pratt started to resume the chair himself. Wood sat in his place until Pratt, grasping him by the shoulders, threw him off the platform. Wood promptly arose and rushed back, and the men struggled until Chaplain Davidson and others on the platform held them apart.

Wielding the gavel, which he had seized in the struggle, Pratt declared the House adjourned. Having the prestige of the Speaker's chair and using a paper weight for a gavel, Wood shouted to the sergeant at arms to close the doors. He then called for a rollcall on the appeal motion. Standing over the Chief Clerk, gavel in hand, Pratt forbade the calling of the roll. Pratt attempted again to get his own chair, and when Representative Sproul, who has heretofore been closer to Pratt in council than any other Democrat, attempted to interfere, he was kicked in the stomach by the Speaker. Further violence was averted.

On convening at 2 o'clock the House was called to order by Speaker Pratt. A motion was at once carried to adjourn until to-morrow. This leaves the confirmation of Pratt's committees still unsettled.

ALLISON LEADS IN NASHVILLE.

Gets 53 Votes for Long Term, Neal 54 for Short Term.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 20.—"Regular" Democrats in the Tennessee Legislature to-day threw their strength to Chancellor John Allison in balloting for the long-term Senatorship. There was no election.

Chancellor Allison received 53 votes. His nearest opponent, B. A. Enloe, independent Democrat, had 43. Sixty-six votes are required for election.

In the balloting on the short term John R. Neal, Democrat, had 54 votes; E. E. Butler, Republican, 32, and W. R. Webb, independent Democrat, 31.

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 20.—Five ballots were taken to-day in the joint Assembly, with no election of a short-term United States Senator. Chief Justice James F. Ailshie and ex-Gov. James H. Brady took turns in leading. On the last ballot Ailshie received 34 and Brady 32. The number of votes for a choice is 42.

COMMISSION FOR SULLIVAN.

Political Leader's Mental Condition to be Determined Legally.

Supreme Court Justice Hendrick appointed a commission yesterday to inquire into the mental condition of Timothy D. Sullivan, the Bowery political leader, who was elected to Congress last Fall. The commission consists of John H. Van Tine of 150 Nassau Street, William H. Allen of 149 Broadway, and Dr. Aspinwall Judd of 137 West Sixty-ninth Street. It will sit with a Sheriff's jury at the office of Sheriff Harburger, 299 Broadway, to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

There was no opposition to the application of Sullivan's relatives for the appointment of the commission. The application was based on allegations that Sullivan was suffering from paresis, and that his business interests needed management to conserve them.

CUB BEARS BORN IN PARK.

Old Black Ones Fight Fiercely Over Them, the Mother Defending.

For the first time since the institution of the menagerie in Central Park the animal population has been increased by the birth of black bears. Two cubs were found yesterday morning by Keeper Joe Cunningham about 8 o'clock. Both cubs are males. Rose and Bob are the mother and father.

The black bears are in a cage adjoining that used by the white polar bears, and the first warning that Keeper Cunningham had of anything unusual was when the polar bears became agitated. His attention was attracted at a most opportune moment for the cubs, for the father, Bob, with evident intent to kill them, was rushing upon them. The mother, however, was on guard, and the two engaged in a fierce fight.

Keeper Cunningham called for help and rushed at the cage with his pole. Head Keeper Bill Snyder came running, and between them they succeeded in separating the fighting bears and removing the menaced cubs from the cage.

The cubs were taken to the hay loft, where they will be fed on a bottle until weaned.

Appearance vs. Service

WHILE all trucks are trucks in appearance, it does not necessarily follow that all trucks would be a benefit to your business. A truck may have a splendid surface appearance, just as some men do, but when put to work might show up miserably.

Take care and do not buy surface value. Get service value. Investigate past performances.

The Garford truck is serving economically and satisfactorily some of the largest concerns in America. It is built in one of the largest truck plants in the industry. It is built by experienced and practical truck designers; men who have made a life study of trucks. It is a practical tried out means of economical transportation which in scores of severe tests has proven its ability, over and above every truck manufactured.

It is the truck you should investigate.

The ¾ Ton Utility Truck—$1250

(Chassis Only)

THE exceptional value and big economy of this truck can be very easily figured by comparing its size, design and price with any other similar truck in the Garden. It is 30 per cent lower in price and 50 per cent better in construction and efficiency than any other similar truck made. Ask a few questions and see.

Unlike the average small truck, it is not a built over or a redesigned pleasure chassis. It is a real heavy truck in all of its parts, in its entire design, in its whole construction and in its economical operation. For instance, the powerful 4 cylinder motor is controlled by our patented governor, it cannot be driven over 18 miles an hour; it has quick demountable solid tires 36" x 3" front and 36" x 3½" rear; it has an unusually rugged pressed steel frame, doubly reinforced at points where it will receive the greatest strains; the wheel-base is 120 inches.

Throughout this truck is built on the most modern truck lines. It is made in one of the largest truck plants in the world by men who have been building successful trucks for over ten years. It is built by truck specialists.

For the merchant or manufacturer who has a whole lot of daily deliveries to be taken care of, this new Utility truck is well worth immediate investigation.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, JAN. 21, 1913.

THE GOVERNOR OF NEW JERSEY.

Mr. WILSON shows a sound business judgment in reserving a substantial part of the time before assuming the office of President for his work as Governor. In his annual message he laid down a programme of considerable extent and variety which he will undertake to start and to advance as far as possible in the time at his disposal.

The most important general article of this programme is the calling of a convention to revise and recast the present Constitution, which dates from some sixty years ago, and is in many respects outgrown. It was at its origin in advance of most State Constitutions of the time, but the State now requires "a different system of representation "and a different system of responsi-"bility." The next most important of the Governor's reforms relates to the control of corporations, especially to the abolition of "holding companies," the security of bona fide capitalization, and the licensing and regulation of investment companies. On this he will encounter much opposition, but he is confident of success. Another change he proposes relates to the method of fixing and collecting taxes. This at present is confused, conflicting, and accompanied by much favoritism or worse.

The task of the Governor will not be easy, for he will have to face the hostility of many strong leaders in his own party, but he has shown marked ability to deal with these, and his prestige is now very great.

THE SUBWAY SITUATION.

After ten years of discussion the subway contract is receiving public hearings preliminary to ratification or rejection. The deliberation and the publicity seem to leave nothing to be desired, and yet drums are being beaten to rally the people to resist their "betrayal" by the elective Board of Estimate and the appointive Public Service Commission. If the public interests are not safe in their hands where can safety be found? Those who prefer the advice of the Legislative Committee of the People's Institute and Mr. MITCHEL and one or two newspapers seem to us to have an astonishing capacity for forgetting facts. Those who are supporting the pending contracts are not doing so because that is their first choice, but because they are the best possible escape from the situation into which the city was led by those now denouncing the "outrage" soon to be consummated, unless signs fail.

The contract under which the present subways were constructed is now being pointed to as in every way superior to the pending dual plan, and those who oppose the dual plan are making the comparison against it. But the only reason that Contract Number One was not duplicated is that a better one was promised by those whose obstruction caused the situation they now denounce. Laws were passed to prevent a repetition of the theft of the city's assets through Contract Number One, and an ideal substitute was brought into being. No disinterested engineer ever defended the Triborough plan, and no capitalist or operator could be found capable of taking the contract as a gift. The cost was so huge, the routes were so poor, that there were no reasons to suppose that anything but loss and disappointment was possible. It required ten years to work out of this slough of despond, and if the dual plan should be rejected ten years more would produce nothing equally good.

The city's situation, in fact, would be desperate if the dual plan should not be carried out. The city has spent some scores of millions on links which begin and end nowhere, and which have no connections as feeders, or over which transfers can be given. The choice is between tripling our present facilities as soon as $300,000,000 will do it, or to get along indefinitely with meagre additions to present inadequate facilities. The effect upon the city's comfort we leave to the judgment of those who go about in the subways. The effect in prostration of the taxable values from which the city derives its income we refrain from describing. Yet the only interest manifested is by those whose promises of better things are in strong contrast with the actual conditions which they are responsible for causing. They are still promising and still obstructing, and nowhere else is there any sign of interest. In Manhattan the Merchants' Association puts out a sane and reasoned argument against dismissing from service those who have brought to the verge of consummation the proposal now pending, and the support is languid. In Brooklyn the police are necessary to control the sentiment on local phases of the subject. Such lack of self-control is lamentable, and surprising in the Borough of Churches. The uprising in Brooklyn would be small compared with that which, throughout the entire city, would follow the collapse of the negotiations whose future is obscure unless the signatures are appended before Mr. WILLCOX's term expires with the current month.

THE IMMIGRATION BILL.

The Senate acted with commendable promptness yesterday in returning to the conference committee the Immigration bill which had been rushed through the House of Representatives with a covertly attached clause excluding immigrants who could not produce "certificates of character" from foreign countries. Obviously, this would bar all political refugees, who often make desirable citizens, and would be unjust to many others who, in Russia and other countries, would have extreme difficulty in securing certificates.

The return of the bill will undoubtedly lead to the elimination of this objectionable clause, and it is to be hoped that a fuller consideration may be given to some of the other provisions. The literacy clause, even in its amended form, is so badly worded as to make its significance doubtful. The exclusion of criminal, diseased, and mentally or morally unfit immigrants is desirable, but any immigration law which kept out of the country healthy and upright men and women, willing to work, and to learn and obey the laws of the country, would be grossly unjust, and out of harmony with the spirit of our institutions.

LIVE THE KING!

The "métier" of a King in Italy is not so simple nowadays as when VICTOR EMMANUEL II. used that bourgeois term to describe his functions. It has become more and more a business, and the present King so regards it, having little taste for pomp and circumstance, and being in his personal views and tendencies very much of a democrat.

But against this single-minded and very loyal Italian there exists, in a small but determined faction, a murderous hostility. And when he rode on Sunday at the head of his troops to attend the ceremonies in honor of the veterans of Tripoli his way was guarded by tens of thousands of infantry and thousands of detectives. The fraction of his people who wish him ill is almost incalculably small, and the general feeling toward him is unquestionably one of affectionate pride, for he has shown repeatedly splendid devotion to them and manly courage in its manifestation. But his peril is none the less real. We cannot quite say it is the price he pays for his Kingship, for our own leaders have fallen by assassination. It is the peril of prominence, and it cannot be done away with until insanity is abolished. Meanwhile it is needful to guard him, and all who love generous fidelity to the duties of a trying post will hope that the guard will be adequate.

RESPECTFULLY REFERRED.

In his admirable speech to his Jewish fellow-citizens on Sunday, President TAFT referred with much feeling to the fate of his general arbitration treaties with Great Britain and with France. He said:

> I did have a dream that we were going to take a long step in the matter of peace between nations. I had a theory that if we could get up a treaty with England and then another with France, and arrange it so that questions of honor that might arise between two nations could be left to a tribunal, and if we could by two such treaties induce our people to make treaties with other nations—in this way forming an interlocking device among all the nations—we could have an arbitral court, the authority of which would be backed up by the united force of all the world.

With reference to the check to the realization of this "dream"—which was not really a dream, but a practical piece of statesmanship—Mr. TAFT says:

> The treaties were so handled that a great deal was stricken out that I thought valuable. Maybe enough was left to make it worth while to ratify the treaties. But much that I desired in the treaties was eliminated.

Here is a hint for future action to which Mr. TAFT's successor may give attention. It is the first admission by the President that his practical abandonment of the treaties was ill-advised.

What was stricken out of the treaties was the provision that the joint high commission of inquiry might report whether a difference was arbitrable, and if they so reported, an agreement should be sent to the Senate submitting it to arbitration. On that agreement, according to Mr. KNOX, the Secretary of State, the Senate would still have had discretion to act favorably or unfavorably. The Senate preferred to omit altogether the report of the commission on the question of arbitrability. That was stricken out. What remained? Very much. There remained the provision that either party to a dispute might ask a year's delay before final action. There remained the provision that a joint commission, three from each side, should inquire into and report all facts in the dispute. Is it not plain that these provisions would have been a very great advance over present conditions? We believe it would have been very well "worth while" to ratify the treaties in the form given to them by the Senate. Since that course has not been followed by Mr. TAFT, we sincerely hope that the possibility of adopting it will, in due time, very seriously be considered by Mr. WILSON.

THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL FIGHT.

After all these years of debate the question of the character of the National Lincoln Memorial is still unsettled. The plan to build a memorial highway from the capital to the Battlefield of Gettysburg, which has generally been regarded as a poor joke, still has many influential advocates. Senator ROOT and Representative SLAYDEN of Texas have been compelled to denounce this scheme. They both favor the erection of a memorial building with appropriate statuary on the Washington Mall. That plan, we understand, has the approval of the whole country, excepting the group of men seemingly anxious, as Mr. ROOT says, to increase real estate values in Maryland and Southern Pennsylvania. Mr. SLAYDEN discerns in this road project an entering wedge for the Federal support of new roads in various parts of the country.

The House of Representatives will take up to-morrow the Senate bill appropriating money for the Mall memorial, and fierce opposition to it is predicted. The true sentiment of the country should be expressed loudly enough for Congress to hear it. The memory of LINCOLN should be honored by a suitable monument in the National capital. As Senator ROOT says, the proposed road "would be lined with road houses and used principally by joy riders."

THE COST OF LIVING.

There is no agreement how the cost of living may be reduced, but there is agreement that the causes of its increase are worldwide. It seems to follow that any inquiry into the ways and means of making both ends meet more easily ought also to be worldwide. No country can hope to reduce its costs alone, but much might be done by co-operation. A bill for an international inquiry as a preliminary to action upon any agreed course has passed the Senate, and is not opposed in the House. Indeed, it would be difficult to imagine any good reason for opposition, but there is danger of neglect in the customary flood of legislation in the closing days of a final session of Congress.

Representative CURLEY has won approval by his support of the measure, and can win more by pressing its passage. Representative HENRY has it in his power to give Mr. CURLEY's support a chance to be effective. There are no personal axes to grind in the measure, so that there can be no reason to ask any Representative to vote for it, except the belief that it is in the public interest to have an authoritative inquiry into the causes of the social unrest resulting from the difficulty of earning a livelihood, and recommendations for control of it, if that be feasible. The cost is trivial in comparison with the benefits, and the opinions in support of the proposal are many and strong.

WASHINGTON AND THE BALL.

If it is necessary to have other ceremonies in connection with the inauguration of a President of the United States than the administration of the oath of office and the formal parades, it is well that they should be under Government direction. A formal reception in the Capitol at night, without dancing, ought to serve the purpose very well. No tickets could be sold for this, of course, and the expenses, which would not be heavy, would be paid by a Congressional appropriation. Still, there is undoubtedly a strong feeling in Washington that the abandonment of the accustomed ball will disappoint many visitors to the capital on inauguration day. There was, however, no inclination to have the ball in spite of the President-elect's well-founded objection to it. Washington has behaved very well in the matter, and many residents of the capital are now convinced that as the inauguration is purely a Governmental matter, all its ceremonies should be ordered and paid for by the Government.

Washington, however, has always been proud of the Inauguration as a local incident, has decorated its thoroughfares at considerable expense, and recovered some of its money through the sale of ball tickets. There is reason for Washington's fears that without the promise of the big dance at night there will be fewer visitors than usual this year, and that the shops and hotels will have less business than usual. Naturally, therefore, it seems to Washington that the abandonment of the ball is a revolutionary proceeding. With this feeling we may all sympathize without regretting the loss of the ball. If the Inauguration were set for a later day in the Spring there might be appropriate festivities under Government direction, which would compensate for the loss. They would be gratifying to Washington, and if they were well ordered would serve the purpose better than a purely commercial dance in one of the Government's buildings.

MAGISTRATE M'ADOO'S EXPEDIENT

Raines law hotels and disorderly resorts generally have been put on notice by Chief Magistrate MCADOO that they may be closed up when they become public nuisances. Hitherto it has seemed impossible to proceed against these places, since no one could be found who would acknowledge that he was an owner or in any way responsible for their management in any case. They are leased and sublet under fictitious names, the employés swear that they are paid by nobody, and subsist on tips. Chief Magistrate MCADOO cut the Gordian knot by proclaiming them "public nuisances running wild," not under the control or custody of any one. Under this ruling the most notorious of the resorts have been closed and barred.

Of course, if responsible owners appear to protest against Magistrate MCADOO's summary proceeding, they will be prosecuted. If the ruling holds, this class of real estate will shrink considerably in value.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Researchers Have Won Recognition.

An endowment of $10,000 can hardly be expected to produce more than $400 or $500 a year, and, as not much investigating can be done for either of those amounts, the acceptance of this fund by Harvard for use in what, with beautifully congruous unintelligibility, has come to be called "psychical research," cannot be expected to produce any enormous additions to our knowledge of the Beyond. As the researchers say, however, it is not the giving of the $10,000 for the promotion of their favorite sport, but the taking of it by a great university with a high reputation for seriousness, that has importance.

This is, indeed, a vindication of their claim, long made and not always too respectfully heard, that, underlying the ancient beliefs which cruel science has been inclined to ignore as empty superstitions, there is an element of fact, and that while ghostly apparitions and mysteriously conveyed messages pretending to be from the dead may not have the sort of reality popularly ascribed to them, they are nevertheless as worthy of study as are any—or, for that matter, every—phenomena observed by men. As a proposition, that is, of course, indisputable, but the researchers, little and big, have weakened their case a good deal by failing to convince people that they attacked their problem with an open mind.

On the contrary, they have seemed to be seeking confirmation for theories already formed, and to find, as seekers usually do, just what they were looking for, being helped to that end by vigorous imaginations and by inability to see anything else. Not a few real psychologists, including WILLIAM JAMES, have viewed their labors and its results with more than tolerance—with sympathy. That cannot be denied, but undeniable, also, is it that far more light has been thrown into the dark places of the human mind by men who were not looking for the "supernatural," and who would have been vastly surprised to discover it, than by those by whom spiritistic explanations of the abnormal and exceptional were warmly welcomed. It is not from psychical researchers that we have learned what little we know about the phenomena of dissociation, nor does psychiatry owe to them any such debt as it does, for instance, to FREUD or PRINCE.

He Offered Too Good a Bargain.

According to a dispatch from London, the chance-selected resident of that city—the oftenmentioned "man in the street"—so distrusts the veracity of his fellow-citizens that when one of them stood on a corner and offered to passersby perfectly good £5 notes at a penny each, he succeeded, after prolonged efforts, in making only two sales.

This amusing tale is rendered the harder to believe by the many reports we have read about the prevalence of the gambling vice in every stratum of English society, for it does seem that if the Londoners had even a little of the sporting spirit they would have been eager to take a "shot" as "long" as the one described. Its very length, however, was probably what made the absurd offer so nearly safe, for of course the chance that anybody would ever offer 1,200 pence for one is too small to count among the possibilities of life. It seemed only common sense, therefore, to assume that there was something wrong about the £5 notes. That only two men were sufficiently lacking in caution to give the demanded penny is doubtless now a matter of deep regret by all who heard the offer—if it was really made—but it speaks well for the intelligence and sophistication of London, for certainly the man who rejects all alleged opportunities to win enormous profits on minute investments and with no work is much less likely to end his days in the poorhouse than is he who credulously accepts them.

Some years ago, on a wager like that made in London, somebody here offered $5 gold pieces at $4 apiece and found few takers, or perhaps it was none. That, at least, really happened, and the bargain, though not as great, was no more attractive. Yet it is a common trick for street fakers to collect a crowd by selling a little money for less than face value, and it is a fairly safe assumption that no efforts to dispose of counterfeits will ever be made in this open way. That is almost, if not quite, as improbable, as that £5 notes will be offered for a penny or $5 gold pieces for $4.

A different but relevant manifestation of human queerness has been observed down in Tehuantepec. There the natives make brass beads and plate them with gold by some secret process of their own, and, to accelerate trade with the credulous tourist, they append to strings of these beads American eagles or double eagles of authentic mintage. Then they fix a price which includes the full value of the coins and at least ten times that of the beads, and the tourist promptly buys under the reassuring belief that at worst he has the worth of most of his money.

New Yorkers Will Not Be Frightened.

President MELLEN's warning to the New Englanders, that if they make his road sell its steamship lines the New York terminals will go too, may have convinced his hearers, or some of them, that their last state would be worse than their first, but there was something queer and mysterious about his argument.

There is a somewhat general impression, nowadays, that water transportation does not become a vigorous competitor with that by land when the railways control all the available waterfront. Indeed, President MELLEN himself, in the same speech, ventured to recall the fact that, although the Government had spent millions in "improving" the Mississippi and its tributaries, lack of co-operation between the railways and the steamboats had resulted in the almost complete disappearance of the latter from the waters where they once were so numerous. That was rash. The facts in the case are exactly as he stated them, but the moral or lesson drawn from them by unprejudiced and disinterested observers is more than slightly different from his own. Certainly the boat traffic did not perish because the railways were not allowed to do about what they pleased in the river towns.

Perhaps the best commentary on President MELLEN's remarks can be found in the notable article on river and harbor appropriations in the January Atlantic—an article which has already been made the subject of extended remark on this page.

J. J. ETTOR'S MESSAGE.

President Stokes Tells Why Socialist Society Invited Him.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Considerable adverse comment appears to have arisen over the action of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society in inviting Joseph J. Ettor to speak at its meeting in Carnegie Hall. As President of the society, will you allow me the courtesy of your columns for a few lines regarding this matter?

The Intercollegiate Socialist Party exists for the purpose of arousing an intelligent interest in Socialism among college men and women, graduate and undergraduate. Although well-informed people everywhere recognize in the Socialist movement a great world force that should be understood, yet there seem to be very many who are highly intelligent in most respects but who feel that as regards Socialism they are sufficiently well informed if they listen to its opponents only. But such an attitude is obviously unintelligent.

We of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society feel that every important phase of this vast world movement should be presented to college men and women by its friends, as well as by its opponents, in order that in so far as possible the whole truth concerning it may be fairly perceived and justly estimated and weighed.

As to Mr. Ettor and his associates of the Industrial Workers of the World, they are in most cases not members of the political Socialist Party, but they may be fairly said to represent a very important part of the industrial side of the Socialist movement—not all of the industrial side of the Socialist movement by any means, but a very large and important part of it.

Mr. Ettor's activity and that of his associates is approved by an exceedingly large proportion of the membership of the Socialist Party. When Ettor and Giovanitti were jailed in Lawrence last year on charges of criminal incitement to violence and even to murder, the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party adopted unanimously resolutions of sympathy with the accused, and called upon the rank and file of the party for contributions in aid of their defense, and very large sums were thus raised by local branches of the party and by individual members, and on the final liberation of these men the rejoicing in Socialist circles was practically universal.

Who are these men who have the respect of the great majority of the organized Socialists of America, and, for that matter, the respect of at least most of the organized Socialists of the world, and what do they really stand for, and are they the fiends incarnate that some would represent them to be? Or are they, on the contrary, earnest, devoted, and highly intelligent, though grossly misrepresented, workers in the great cause of human freedom?

Let us endeavor to learn the truth as to this. Let us meet these men face to face and give them a hearing, and then judge for ourselves, intelligently, as to whether or not they and the cause they represent are just and fair or not.

To this end the Intercollegiate Socialist Society invites the fair-minded and truth-seeking people of New York to come to Carnegie Hall on Monday evening.

Miscegenation Condemned.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In SUNDAY'S TIMES I read of the prospective marriage between a Kaffir and a white woman. The Kaffir has just arrived from South Africa and says that he will bring the woman to this country and marry her just as soon as he is able to do so.

I cannot too strongly protest against our Government's permitting such a crime. I have lived in Africa and I know full well the misery which results from the marriage of white and black. They are races distinctively separate and apart, and should be kept so. Congress should at once adopt the amendment presented by Representative S. A. Roddenbery of Georgia forever forbidding intermarriage between all persons of African descent and Caucasians. No greater injustice can be done the negro than to let him entertain the hope that at some future time he or his offspring may be married with a woman of the white race.

The European Governments in Africa have discovered that the only way to successfully control the negro is to keep him among his own race, and, while the Government officials may sit with him in the council chamber, they never think of receiving him socially.

Appeal for a Young Widow.

Still unnerved by the shock of her husband's sudden death last August and worn out by the work she has attempted to do since, a young widow not yet 30 finds herself unable to count on her own work for the support of her four children. Although not ill, she is in need of a complete rest, with freedom from worry. This has been secured for her, in the firm conviction that it will be the means of restoring her to normal health and give her the strength necessary again to assume the care of the home and the children. At best she is not robust, and the support of the home by her own effort must not be thought of. Her four brothers, all of them with families of their own dependent on their weekly pay, will give about half of the sum needed for the purpose. The Charity Organization Society asks for $130, the remaining half of the money needed for a period of six months.

Gifts may be sent to the office of the society, 105 East Twenty-second Street, and will be acknowledged.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions received in response to previous appeals in THE TIMES:

R. G. Schwab, $1; G. W. T. Putnam, $3; A. H. Allen, $5; Mrs. H. S. Cohn, $10; C. T. G., $1; Mrs. E. M., $1; J. Y. H., $1; K. W. T., $2; David L. Gluck, $1; Frederick V. S. Crosby, $5; E. A. PELHAM MOSQUITOS.

Aldermen May Now Clear Them from the Marshes.

Board of Health,
Pelham Manor, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the recent letter to THE TIMES headed "Drain Pelham Bay Marshes," the Board of Health of Pelham Manor has been working for several years to exterminate the mosquitos in this vicinity, and we have had several experts go over the ground thoroughly. Prof. J. B. Smith, State Entomologist of New Jersey, made an investigation for this board in the Spring of 1909, and stated that "the chief offenders in the mosquito line are the salt marsh species, and the bulk of the supply comes from the Hutchinson River marshes in Pelham Bay Park."

We also had a report in May, 1912, from Mr. Edward Skinner of the United States Drainage and Irrigation Company, to the effect that the first step necessary to secure relief must be in the drainage of the salt marsh adjacent to Hutchinson Creek and situated in the City of New York; that this was the main source of supply of all our mosquitos; that local sanitation and treatment was good enough so far as it went, but that so long as the main source of supply continued to breed mosquitos in great numbers not more than 10 per cent. reduction could be expected from local treatment.

We have repeatedly taken this matter up with the New York City officials, with the Commissioner of Parks, Borough of the Bronx, with the President of the Board of Aldermen and with Dr. Lederle, Commissioner of the Department of Health. We have a report from the sanitary engineer in charge of the mosquito prevention work of the Department of Health of New York City that in his opinion the breeding of mosquitos in Pelham Bay Park could be eliminated for the sum of $6,000. We also have a letter from Dr. Lederle, Commissioner of Health, stating:

> The work which we have done in the vicinity of Pelham Bay Park has been nullified, and the difficulties with individual owners augmented because of the failure of the city to drain these lands.

In a letter to the Mayor in reference to a complaint from the Jacob H. Riis Neighborhood Settlement relative to the mosquitos on Twin Island, Dr. Lederle says:

> The greater part of the meadow land adjacent to Pelham Bay Park has been drained by individual owners, thereby eliminating the breeding places on these lands. This work is being enforced by the Department of Health against individual owners. This has naturally created a very strong public sentiment against the city for permitting a condition to exist on public property which the Department of Health will not permit on private property. It will be readily understood that such a feeling makes it more difficult for the department to enforce its orders against individuals.
>
> The success of the work of the Department of Health in abating the mosquito nuisance on Staten Island and elsewhere within the city limits has been demonstrated, and I would strongly urge upon the appropriate authorities the advisability of providing the means to make the drainage of the city lands at least as complete and effective as that which the Department of Health enforces against privately owned lands.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment, at its meeting of July 7, 1911, appropriated $5,000 for draining the marsh lands in Pelham Bay Park, but from information we have received from Commissioner Higgins, both orally and through letters written by him, the greater portion of this appropriation was expended by his department on park lands other than the salt marsh lands in question.

We have been doing all that we can to persuade the city authorities to appropriate and effectively use the $6,000 that the expert employed by the New York City Department of Health says will be sufficient to drain the entire 400 acres of salt marsh meadows in Pelham Bay Park. This small sum, we are assured, will make it possible practically to exterminate the mosquito in our section of Westchester County. Our last advice from Mr. Higgins is that he is requesting another appropriation from the Board of Aldermen to carry out this work. We would appreciate your co-operation to this end.

MYLIUS DENIES LIBEL.

Did Not Admit Guilt at Immigration Hearing.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is reported in the press this morning that Mr. Nagel, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, in reaching his conclusion ordering my deportation, stated that on my hearing "I admitted having published a libel of and concerning the King of England."

Mr. Nagel's statement is incorrect, as at the two hearings on this island I persistently denied having published a libel on the King, claiming the statements complained of were true, that my evidence was suppressed, and that the information filed was for political offense only, there being no information before the High Court of King's Bench for defamatory libel. "All right," said Sammy, "I'll cut the cake, and all shall share alike." Sammy cut the cake, but, to the dismay of the other boys, it was seen that Sammy had much the largest slice.

"I thought you said that all should share alike," said Johnny. "Ah," said Sammy, "when I said 'all' I meant 'all but me.'"

Pure knights and bold, in armor straitly sheathed,
And ladyes faire, with tresses blossom wreathed.

Back in the ages gone stirred hair as bright;
Reddened a cheek as pure and kissed a mouth
Sweet as my lad's, that rose-bloom of the South.

Yet wake, forever wake, nor ever sleep!
O wind, the little children you did kiss:
Where are they now? God keepeth them, I wis.

PRESIDENT FORMALLY ACCEPTS KENT CHAIR

Mrs. Taft Goes House-Hunting and Practically Decides on Whittelsey Home.

NEXT TO OLD FRIEND'S HOUSE

President to Deliver Course of Lectures at Yale This Spring—Resignation of Dr. Twichell Announced.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 20.—President Taft to-day tendered the University Governing Board of Yale his resignation, to take effect when he assumes his duties as Kent professor of law, which he formally accepted.

It was announced to-day that the President would give a special course of lectures at Yale this Spring. They will begin immediately upon his arrival here in April. His lectures this Fall, as Kent professor at Yale, will be on the general subject of constitutional law.

As the annual income from the Kent Foundation is only about $300 annually, the corporation will add to the fund enough to assure Prof. Taft an income of $5,000 annually.

Something of a sensation was caused at to-day's corporation meeting by the resignation of its senior member, the Rev. Joseph H. Twichell of Hartford. Dr. Twichell has gone down to history as the warmest personal friend of Mark Twain, and as a character in several of the humorist's works. As senior corporation member he officiated at the inauguration of President Hadley in 1899.

Prof. Emile Legouis of the Sorbonne and Prof. A. F. Pollard of the University of London were appointed to deliver the annual Woodward lectures.

There is little doubt now that Mr. Taft will occupy the residence of the late Joseph Whittelsey on Prospect Hill. While the President was attending the meeting of the Yale Corporation to-day Mrs. Taft and her sister, Mrs. Moore of Cincinnati, with her son, Charles, went house-hunting. They looked over several residences, all of them in the Prospect Hill section, but the Whittelsey house met with special favor because, aside from its personal attractions, it is next to the house of President Taft's closest personal friend in New Haven, William W. Farnam, formerly treasurer of Yale.

When President Taft's family have come to this city they have usually stopped at the Farnam home. The Whittelsey house is a three-story brick building, with about twenty rooms.

Mrs. Taft to-day looked over the Parmalee residence on Hill House Avenue, and the Pierrepont Foster house on Whitney Avenue. With her sister and Charles she went to the Hotel Taft upon their arrival, took luncheon and inspected the apartment which has been prepared at the Hotel Taft for the President's family upon their arrival here about April 1.

Immediately after the corporation meeting President Taft left for New York.

The President and his party returned to this city at 5:54 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Taft, accompanied by Secretary Hilles and Major Rhoads, were taken directly to the home of the President's brother, Henry W. Taft, 36 West Forty-eighth Street.

Shortly before 8 o'clock the President, together with his wife, her sister, Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Secretry Hilles, Major Rhoads, and six Secret Service men, left the Taft residence and went in automobiles to the Manhattan Opera House. The party occupied a lower tier of boxes, and as the President entered his box the audience arose and cheered.

The President left for Washington on the midnight train.

The State Board Has Rated Its Medical School in Class A.

A report being circulated by some unknown agency to the effect that the students of Fordham University School of Medicine are dissatisfied with the classification of the school by the American Medical Association and are either leaving or preparing to leave the institution is officially denied by the Rev. Thomas J. McCluskey, S. J., President of the University, by Dr. Healy, Dean of the Medical School, and by the students themselves as a body.

According to the report of the American Medical Association, announced in its Journal, the Fordham University School of Medicine is officially rated in Class B, but this is on the examination held in 1911. Since that time the requirements of the American Medical Association have been met to insure Fordham's place in Class A. Dr. A. D. Bevins of Chicago, Chairman of the American Medical Association's Council of Medical Education, and Dr. N. P. Collwell of the council have concurred in the thorough reorganization of Fordham Medical School in the past year and have agreed to give it the earliest possible examination to establish it officially in Class A.

Dr. Maurice J. Lewi of the State Board of Medical Education, who inspected the school for the State Board of Regents, reported favorably to the Regents regarding the institution, his report being approved by them and Fordham Medical School beting rated in the first grade in October, 1912.

No dissension could be found among the students.

Charles J. Heinsheimer, who died Dec. 22, 1910, left an estate of $869,965.31, according to the report submitted in the Surrogat's Court yesterday. During the accounting period the executors and trustees collected $64,919.45 income and paid out $681,376 to beneficiaries of the will.

THE HOUSEWIVES' LEAGUE

Accused of Selling Supplies at 50 Per Cent. Above Cost.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the correspondence in THE TIMES about the Housewives' League and grocers' profits and the high cost of living, a short time ago, during the egg controversy, I had occasion to go through the Housewives' League's place of business at Williamsburg Bridge. I saw eggs marked up from 23c. to 50c. a dozen. The same day I had occasion to refer to The Producers' Price Current, and there saw eggs quoted from 13c. to 30c. a dozen. I did see the meat and fish ticketed at a trifle over the wholesale prices.

Coming to the fruit and vegetables, I saw fruit ticketed at per package a trifle more than 50 per cent. above what they cost at auction, and that was the general run of the whole proceeding. You can verify this by sending your own reporter to take down the prices at which goods are offered, and then send him to me and I will show what the goods are worth at wholesale.

The man at the corner grocery store has to pay to-day three times as much rent as he had to twenty years ago. He sells no greater quantity of goods now than he did then, and he must get his profit from somewhere. Coming to the number of quarts of apples to the barrel, or the weight of that particular barrel. The gross weight of the barrel is supposed to be 160 pounds; sometimes it is not more than 150 pounds. The difference in the weight of the barrel ranges from 15 to 18 pounds.

It is quite true that the Legislature has passed a standard barrel, but that law is not effective until next year. Then the barrel may contain selected fruit all through and there will be no disappointment when the buyer opens the barrel at the bottom, or when he gets to the middle. That there has been such disappointments is proved by the remedies proposed to stop these disappointments.

WEIL LOSES VOICE IN 'MEISTERSINGER'

Half of Last Act of Opera Omitted, as Singer Was Able Only to Speak Lines.

NEW MAGDALENA APPEARS

Marie Mattfeld Gives an Excellent Performance, Excelling in Teutonic Humor of Part.

Misfortune attended this season's second performance of "Die Meistersinger" at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening. It came in the shape of vocal disability to Hermann Weil, who was the Hans Sachs. He was evidently in poor voice from the beginning, and in the second act his voice was in such a condition that he was singing with great effort. After a long intermission Mr. Guard of the executive staff of the house appeared before the curtain and announced that the management was in a great dilemma —that Mr. Weil had entirely lost his voice, and that, as there was no available substitute for him, it would be necessary to cut out the first scene of the third act in which Hans Sachs sings almost continuously, and go on with the last scene, on the meadow outside the walls of Nuremberg.

This was accordingly done, although the loss in an artistic sense was irreparable. But the damage did not cease with this, for at the end of the act Hans Sachs has a long and important passage that is in a way the climax of the work and sums up the artistic philosophy that Wagner wished to enforce in the drama. Mr. Weil continued in the part of Hans Sachs, but sang with about quarter voice, enough to deliver his speeches and allow the rest of the music to be continued to the end.

There were several changes in the cast though no new singers appeared in this performance. Mr. Slezak and Mme. Gadski were respectively the Walther von Stolzing and Eva, well remembered and admired in their impersonations of these characters. The Magdalena was Marie Mattfeld, who, in former years, had taken that part, but had not done so since the present management has ruled at the Opera House. She is an excellent Magdalena, especially in her acting and her denotement of the peculiarly Teutonic humor of the part.

It was unfortunate that this Wagnerian performance given to the Monday night subscribers should have so nearly met with shipwreck. The incident prompted several reflections. One was that the close of the comedy was so far advanced by a large excision that probably a certain number of the audience may have heard the last scene of "Die Meistersinger" for the first time. Another was that it was passing strange that a great operatic institution should sail so close to the wind as to have no understudy capable of taking this leading part, to avoid the necessity of such an awkward contretemps.

MLLE. LEGINSKA'S RECITAL.

Young English Pianist Plays with Brilliancy and Poetic Feeling.

Said to be English, notwithstanding her name, Mlle. Leginska, a young pianist, appeared yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. She had had little preliminary heralding, but she very soon showed herself to be an artist of unusual gifts and attainments. She has a fiery temperament and a sweep of style not ordinarily associated with what is English in art or in personality; her artistic sympathies are eager, her playing is impetuous and hot blooded, full of high lights and deep shadows, and yet not lacking in artistic reticences.

There are immaturities in her style, and a nervous restlessness sometimes obsesses her playing. The repose that comes with ripe maturity is not yet hers. Mlle. Leginska has gifts of inestimable value that come by nature; these are attainments that she will gain by taking thought. Of what can be learned in her art she already has much. Her technique has great brilliancy and facility, though not yet absolute certainty; but she has a mastery of many of the most advanced problems of her instrument. Her strength of arm and of finger, her endurance, are unusual; and it is a controlled strength.

Mlle. Leginska's programme was not cast in the traditional formula. She began with Beethoven's Rondo a Capriccio, Op. 129, "Wrath Over a Lost Farthing," into which she put some unusual nuances of expression, and his so-called "Andante Favori" in F, which he originally intended for the "Waldstein" sonata but omitted from it on the advice of friends. She played a selection from Brahms's variations on a theme of Paganini, Op. 35, which have been, in whole or in part, already twice heard here this season—there is a fashion in variations as well as in sonatas and symphonies and other things. These were given with great dash and power and brilliancy, and with a good deal of the higher musical significance which Brahms put into them, but which is not always extracted from them by their performers.

But Mlle. Leginska reached her highest point in her interpretation of Brahms's noble and poetical sonata in F minor, Op. 5, one of the finest fruits of his early genius that contains, some of the most rugged austerity of that period, some of the most tenderly elegiac inspiration. The first and last movements she played with commanding power; there were moments of exquisite beauty in her interpretation of the andante and its echo, the intermezzo, a beauty that was expressed in the delivery of the haunting melody, and in many subtle shadowings of the tonal color.

A group of five pieces by Chopin and Liszt's noisy "Mazeppa" Etude closed the list.

MISS McKEE TO WED.

President Harrison's Granddaughter Reported Engaged to Kurt Reisinger.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 21.—The engagement is rumored here of Miss Mary Lodge McKee, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. McKee of New York, to Kurt Reisinger, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Reisinger of New York. Miss McKee is the granddaughter of the late President Benjamin Harrison, and spent much of her earliest childhood in the White House.

The engagement, it is said, has been known to intimate friends of Miss McKee and Mr. Reisinger for several weeks, but no formal announcement has yet been made, although it is expected daily. Mr. McKee, who has been for years connected with the General Electric Company, has very recently been made Vice President of that company. The McKees have a home in New York in West Seventy-second Street, where they have lived several years. Miss McKee made her début three years ago, and both she and her mother have often visited in this city since the time of President Harrison.

Mr. Reisinger's father, Hugo Reisinger, has a house in upper Fifth Avenue. Mr Reisinger only a few weeks ago offered to defray the expense of transporting an American art exhibition to each of three Scandinavian countries, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, the loan exhibition to be made in the capital of each country. He is a native of Weisbaden, Germany, and has been in business in this country many years as an importer and exporter, and is well known for his art interest. His private collection of paintings is said to be one of the best in this country.

Miss Meltzer Weds Dr. V. Loeb.

Miss Teresa Meltzer, daughter of Mark C. Meltzer of Newark, N. J., and Dr. Virgil Loeb of St. Louis, Mo., were married last evening at 7 o'clock at the St. Regis, the Rev. Stephen Wise officiating. Miss Beulah Meltzer was her sister's only attendant, and Isidor Loeb acted as best man for his brother. The ushers included Dr. Mayer Fleischer, Max Myer, Benjamin May, Leo Loeb, and Herman Stein. After dinner Dr. Loeb and his bride left for the South on their honeymoon. They will reside in St. Louis.

Miss Bruff to Wed F. G. Achelis.

The engagement is announced of Miss Helen Bruff, daughter of William J. Bruff of 60 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn, to Fritz George Achelis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Achelis of 9 East Fifty-seventh Street. Mr. Achelis was graduated from Yale in the class of 1907 and belongs to several clubs.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffin Give Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Catesby Jones, who arrived from Europe on the Mauretania, are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Griffin at 11 East Forty-fifth Street, who gave a dinner for them last night.

Mrs. Jones was Miss Marian M. Noble of Wokingham, England, and her marriage to Mr. Jones took place in London on Jan. 8. They are on their way to Mr. Jones's home in Richmond, Va. Among the dinner guests were Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Fisk, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Blow, Mr. and Mrs. H. de Raasloff, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Outerbridge, and Richard H. Ewart.

Grace Van Studdiford at Victoria.

Grace Van Studdiford and John Bunny, the comedian, were the new featured acts at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre yesterday. Another appearance that provided considerable interest was that of Sol Lee, the ticket-taker of the theatre, who said he wanted to be a singer. He received a welcome by the patrons of the theatre, who had been handing him their tickets as they went in for years. Other acts on the Victoria bill included "Le Rouge et Noir," Little Lord Roberts, Sam Chip and Mary Marble, Arthur Deagon, Will H. Murphy and Blanche Nichols, Renée Parker, Wellington and Cross, Artie Mehlinger, La Savatte, Root and White, and Carl Demarest.

Samuel Mensch Plays.

A young pianist, Samuel Mensch, appeared for the first time publicly in New York in a recital at Aeolian Hall last evening. He played an ambitious programme, for the interpretation of which he did not show that he possesses at present sufficient artistic maturity. He has a fluent technique, but he does not penetrate far below the surface of things. A young man who fails to appreciate that Bach's "Chromatic Fantasie and Fugue" is a piece of emotional and romantic significance and has a depth of meaning that the most facile reproduction of its notes does not touch is not yet prepared for public appearance in New York. He has a good foundation, but more must be built upon it. A friendly audience applauded him last evening.

So far as this one reviewer of entertainments is concerned, the chief effect of "Somewhere Else" was to inspire a desire to be there. And that, unless we miss our guess, is what the effect of this musical fantasy was upon a great many of the persons in last night's more than friendly assemblage at the Broadway. More than friendly, because in the presence of a most inane combination of antique jokes and business, there were still those who found cause to laugh and to applaud.

As far as the applause was concerned, there were rare moments when it seemed justified. As, for example, at the conclusion of the number "The Boy Scouts," which, in addition to soul spirit of its own, had the added advantage of an effective chorus of neat feminine figures and the sure fun of a quartet of baby marchers, one of whom by her exceptional seriousness put the house into genuine good humor.

Elsewhere, too, Mr. Luders has written with rather good effect, the blending of the parts being rhythmical and harmonious. No one is willing to overlook in "B-a-b-e-e" the obvious imitation of the Don Didier number, and express satisfaction in the tunefulness of "Love at First Sight, "For You, Dear Eyes," "Somebody's Eyes," each of which, as may be imagined, is of the sentimental order which will commend itself to those possessing dimly lighted drawing rooms and a phonograph.

Also, by way of variation, there is swing to "How Do You Do?" and dash to "Can You Do This?" And to last night's audience the business of fighting for the spotlight seemed amusing in spite of its familiarity.

"Somewhere Else" is especially lacking in its book, which may or may not have contained an idea and funny lines originally, but is certainly a woeful affair at present. And it seemed more so with a company most of whom lacked any distinguishing merit as actors, singers, or comedians, and one or two of whom were distinctly unpleasant to see and hear.

Taylor Holmes's performance exceeded his opportunities. In other words, he was engaged in making laughs without lines for a great part of the time, and he succeeded as well as could be expected under the circumstances. The difficulty under these conditions is that the comedian, whoever he may be, must repeat himself too often.

Mlle. Elene Leska, whose speaking voice is twin sister to Trentini's, but whose singing organ isn't in the same class, was moderately pleasing, and Miss Cecil Cunningham, besides singing pleasantly enough, revealed herself lavishly in and out of several handsome gowns.

There were many nice-looking girls in the chorus, and the costuming, especially in the second act, was varied and colorful. But though the exterior of the first act was pretty, the second act set was about as ugly an interior as has been displayed for some time and effectively robbed the gowns of most of their beauty. "Somewhere Else" promises to be where it belongs before a great while.

MISS BARRYMORE APPEARS.

Acts in Barrie's "The Twelve-Pound Look" at the Colonial.

Ethel Barrymore made her first appearance in vaudeville in New York yesterday afternoon, when she was seen at Keith's Colonial Theatre in J. M. Barrie's one-act play, "The Twelve Pound Look," and it proved that even in vaudeville they continue to explain that the "twelve pound" does not refer to avoirdupois, but to English money. Miss Barrymore was well received. It was a typical vaudeville audience, and the Frohman star shared the honors of the evening with "the Irish Queen of Song," Maggie Cline, who appeared several numbers later on the bill.

Reine Davies, who in private life is Mrs. George Lederer, was also applauded in her répertoire of songs. Other acts on the bill were Ralph Smalley in 'cello selections, and Zertho's dogs.

Chorus Strikers Return to Work.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—The chorus of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, which struck in a body last night, preventing a scheduled performance of "Pagliacci," returned to work to-night and assisted in a performance of "La Bohème." The chorus objected to working twice on Sunday unless they were paid $2.50 instead of $2 for the extra performance. The management took no steps to discipline the chorus.

JEWISH COUNCIL IS OPENED.

Dr. Hirsch Gives Address at Cincinnati Gathering—Business To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20.—With special services in the Rockdale Temple, the Twenty-third Council of the Union of Hebrew Congregations was formally opened to-night, with the Rev. Dr. Emil Hirsch of Chicago making the address.

Business sessions of the Council will begin at the Sinton Hotel to-morrow morning, when reports from every part of the country will be presented. Officers of the Union said to-day that little was expected in the way of new policy. The sentiment of the delegates is that the present Executive Board will be re-elected on Thursday.

The old Executive Committee held its last meeting to-day. Ex-Secretary Levy announced afterward that several thousand dollars had been given, one contribution of $10,000 coming from William Salomon of New York, who apologized for the "smallness" of the donation.

Among the prominent laymen attending the meeting are Jacob H. Schiff, Judge Warley Platzek, Joseph B. Greenhut, and David N. Leventritt of New York.

KELLERD ACTS SHYLOCK.

His Character Less Advanced in Years Than the Usual Portrayal.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE, by William Shakespeare. At the Harris Theatre.

Duke of Venice	Elwyn Eaton
Antonio	Gordon Burby
Bassanio	Eric Blind
Gratiano	Edwar Mackay
Salanio	Ernst Rowan
Gratiano	Edward Mackay
Lorenzo	Nicholas Joy
Shylock	John E. Kellerd
Tubal	George Gat
Launcelot Gobbo	John Wray
Old Gobbo	Harry Calver
Balthazar	Royden Erlynne
Portia	Amelia Gardner
Nerissa	Isobel Merson
Jessica	Margeret Campbell

John E. Kellerd and his company began a week's engagement at the Harris Theatre last night in "The Merchant of Venice." A crowd that filled the orchestra chairs of the theatre gave evidences of enjoyment of the performance. Mr. Kellerd, of course, played the rôle of Shylock, and succeeded in keeping it pitched in an always interesting, sometimes powerful, key. His Shylock was one less advanced in years and less distinguishable in costume and make-up than ordinary, so much so that the audience did not seem to recognize him as Shylock on his first entrance until he began to read his lines. In the scene where the loss of his daughter and his ducats is mourned, and in the trial scene, he made the audience respond with enthusiasm.

The work of the supporting company was on a uniform level of excellence and compared favorably with most of the companies that have been seen in the play of late years. The costuming and scenery were good. Amelia Gardner as Portia, Eric Blind at Bassanio, and Edward Mackey as Gratiano provided playing that stood out.

It is planned that after this week the company will resume its run of "Hamlet," which will be succeeded at the end of the following week by other classical plays in the repertoire, among them "Othello," "Lear," and "Oedipus Rex."

'THE DIAMOND DINNER' ACTED

Woman Thief of Bayard Veiller's Sketch Carries a Dynamite Bomb.

A one-act comedy called "The Diamond Dinner," by Bayard Veiller, was performed for the first time in New York yesterday at Keith's Union Square Theatre. It told the story of a dinner in a private room of a smart hotel, where the guests were four big jewelers, who had been the victims of daring thefts of their stock. It had been arranged through newspaper advertisements that the thief was to attend the dinner to the end that an agreement might be made whereby he should receive a sum of money from them and promise not to molest their property further.

Before the diners appeared, a police inspector was shown fixing a dictograph under the table, and he confided to the waiter that his purpose was to arrest the thief. He arms the jewelers with large revolvers and they await the thief's appearance. They are surprised to find when the thief is ushered in, that it is a woman. The inspector comes on the scene to put her under arrest when she draws a dynamite bomb from her muff, threatening to throw it on the floor and blow them all up if she is interfered with. Then she disarms them, takes all their jewelry, and the rest of the play deals with her escape.

Inez Buck acted the role of the "Diamond Queen," and the others were Mitchell Lewis, Eric Matin, Philip White, Frank Kirk, Carson Pell, and Caryl Gillin.

"The Spring Maid" Welcomed Back.

Christie MacDonald began a limited engagement last night at the New Amsterdam in the play which has served her for a starring vehicle for some time, "The Spring Maid." Most of the members of the original company are still with the production, and there was a large audience to welcome it back.

DEVOTED 27 YEARS TO LEPERS

Brother Joseph a Supposed Victim of Leprosy Like Father Damien.

Cardinal Farley received news yesterday of the death of Brother Joseph, who succeeded Father Damien and devoted twenty-seven years to the lepers on the Island of Molokai, Hawaii. The cause of his death is not known, but he is believed to have died of leprosy, as did his predecessor, Father Damien.

Brother Joseph was 60 years old. He was born Ira Dutton Jones in Vermont and passed his early life in Janesville, Wis. His family were Methodists. He fought during the civil war and was mustered out a Captain of the Thirteenth Wisconsin. After the war he was connected with the Claims Adjustment Division of the War Department, and was settling war claims in Kentucky when he joined the Catholic Church. He entered the Trappist Monastery at Gethsemane, Ky.

After Father Damien had been stricken with leprosy, Brother Joseph, who had read much of his work, volunteered to go to his assistance. Facing the warning that he would suffer the same death as that of the other inhabitants, Brother Joseph left for Hawaii in 1886 and succeeded to the charge of the island on the death of Father Damien.

One of the last white men to see him was Dr. Price Morrow of 60 West Fortieth Street, who visited the island in 1880. When the United States fleet made its trip around the world it was sent out of its course in order that it might be sent past Kalawao in the daytime. Father Joseph had expressed a wish to see the fleet, and the order was issued in recognition of his services to humanity.

SUN WILL SHINE ON GIANTS IN SOUTHLAND

There Has Been So Much Rain That There Will Be No More to Fall, Says Murphy.

Speaking about the weather, not here in New York, but in Marlin, Texas, John Murphy, the landscape gardener of the Polo Grounds in Summer, has forwarded inside information that there will be no rain at all in Texas during the latter part of February or in March, when the Giants will rehearse their capers for the season.

How does he know? Well, for two months it has rained hard at Marlin, and the wet has come earlier than ever before, which is evidence enough for the oldest inhabitant that when the Giants go to the Lone Star State on their training trip it will be all sunshine one day after another.

Murphy communicated with the Giants' headquarters yesterday and stated that there had been so muc hrain in Texas that Emerson Field, where the Giants take the lameness out of their joints, has been made very soggy. More than that, the baseball park has been used as a cattle ranch, so that when the landscape gardener arrived there he found a big job on his hands getting it in shape for baseball.

There has been so much rain down that way that Mr. Murphy says the weather prophets assure him that there will be no such rainfall during the Springtime as there was last year. When he arrived at Marlin a few weeks ago, the main thing he did was to sit around the hotel and wait for it to stop raining. Which was good judgment on the part of Mr. Murphy. But once the rain had ceased Murphy took his faithful gang of assistants and began to smooth the turf on the baseball field. The work has gone along so rapidly that Murphy has notified the club officers that by the time Manager McGraw, Coach Robinson, and the recruits arrive late in February, the baseball field will be as smooth as a billiard table and just as green.

More good news that Murphy shipped north yesterday was that the Arlington Hotel, in Marlin, is under new management, and that the Giants may expect a big improvement in their oatmeal and bacon and eggs when they go down there in the Springtime.

Another recruit pitcher sent in a signed contract to the Giants yesterday. He is Frank C. Smith of Traverse City, Mich., who was in the same club with Larue Kirby. Smith is a right-hander, and he won eighteen games last season in the Michigan State League and lost nine. Besides that, he went to the relief of pitchers in ten other games. Smith is a hard worker and has excellent control. He was held in reserve with Traverse City to help out his fellow-pitchers who happened to be pounded hard.

The Giants have corraled such a galaxy of promising young twirlers that it is going to take a wise baseball head to pick out the best ones if they all come up to their minor league reputations when they begin tossing the ball around at Marlin.

The theatrical season of Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants is at an end, and he will return to New York this afternoon and complete the arrangements for taking the Giants to Texas on their training trip. McGraw has had many interesting experiences during his short career as an actor, but none of them is quite as good as the incident which happened in Pittsburgh a few weeks ago. Hans Wagner, the Pirate shortstop, was in the front row on the Monday afternoon that McGraw opened in the Smoky Village.

Wagner was the first person that McGraw saw when he walked out on the stage to give his monologue. His reception was only mild. Then he said:

"I can see I am going to have trouble making a hit here. I see Wagner right down in the front row, and I will have a tough time getting anything by him."

That was enough to insure McGraw's success in Pittsburgh. As long as he acknowledged the greatness of the Teuton the rest was easy.

Joe Konetchy, the star first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, has refused to sign a contract and is holding out for $7,500. The club refuses to give him this amount, so Manager Huggins is in the market for a big trade. He will give Konetchy for a good pitcher, outfielder, and second baseman. Pittsburgh is already hot on Konetchy's trail, and Chicago is also after him.

There is nothing slow about Frank Chance, the new manager of the Yankees. Instead of having regular scouts next season who are known by all minor league managers, Chance is going to employ a corps of detectives to visit all the minor leagues and look over ball players. This "gum-shoe" method of picking out the promising players is new, for the visit of the detective will not be known, and he can see the players at their usual speed, whereforo, in the past, when a minor leaguer knew that a major league scout was looking at him—and they invariably know it—he played his head off and looked better than usual. When Chance's detectives report a "find," an experienced scout will be sent to look him over. If he makes good in the major league this youngster will get a bonus from the New York club.

The signed contracts of Pitcher George McConnell and Shortstop Harbison were received at the offices of the New York Americans yesterday. Harbison comes from the Atlantic Club of the Southern League, where he had a fine record last season.

COLUMBIA BASEBALL DATES.

Princeton on Schedule Again — No Trip to the South.

A schedule of nineteen games has been arranged for the Columbia University baseball team by Roland A. Hillas, the manager. The list was announced at Columbia yesterday, and includes games with Harvard, Yale, and Princeton, and two games each with Cornell and Pennsylvania. The Southern trip which the Blue and White nine has been in the custom of taking has been eliminated from the schedule, but William and Mary College of Virginia will journey to South Field for a game with the New Yorkers.

Princeton has been added to the Columbia schedule after an absence of one year from the Columbia card. There was general dissatisfaction expressed last year when the Tigers were dropped from the schedule, and the action of Manager Hillas in placing them on the schedule this season meets with general approbation. Colgate, Union, and Wesleyan have been added to the schedule, and Lehigh for the first time will play at South Field.

Fourteen of the games will be played at South Field, which makes the programme an especially attractive one to the home team. The commencement day game will be with Pennsylvania on June 4.

Billy Lauder expects to call out his squad for cage work as soon as a space for the work can be found in the gymnasium, which is now being used for indoor sports. The schedule follows:

March 20, St. John's at South Field; 29, C. C. N. Y. at South Field.

April 1, Colgate at South Field; 5, Rutgers at South Field; 7, Amherst at South Field; 9, William and Mary at South Field; 12, Union at South Field; 16, Stevens at South Field; 18, Harvard at South Field; 23, Yale at New Haven; 26, Cornell at Ithaca; 30, Princeton at Princeton.

May 3, Lehigh at South Field; 7, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 9, Cornell at South Field; 14, Wesleyan at South Field; 17; N. Y. U. at South Field; 30, Fordham at Fordham.

June 4, Pennsylvania at South Field.

YALE TO PLAY 31 GAMES.

Elis Will Go South on Baseball Trip Earlier Than Usual.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 20.—George Bruce Cortelyou, Jr., President of the Yale Baseball Association, to-night announced the schedule for this year. It calls for Yale to open its playing season March 21 a week earlier than ever before. The team begins activity on its Easter trip, during which it plays two games at Norfolk and three at Washington. Yale will make an innovation on its Easter trip by playing two prominent Northern university nines, Holy Cross and University of Pennsylvania, in the South.

Yale is scheduled to play only one professional team, the New York Giants, with whom it will open the season at the Polo Grounds. Because Yale will open the series with Princeton here May 31, Yale will not go to Providence for its annual Memorial Day game, but will enjoy a holiday on that date. Yale has home and home series with only Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Brown, Georgetown, and Cornell.

The schedule is the longest attempted in years, comprising thirty-one games, exclusive of possible contests with Harvard and Princeton in New York City in case of ties. Eighteen games are scheduled for Yale Field, thirteen for opponents' grounds. New nines booked include Washington and Lee, the South Orange Field Club, and Columbia. Yale has not played Tufts for several years. The schedule.

March 21, Washington and Lee, at Norfolk; 22, Holy Cross, at Norfolk; 24, Philadelphia, at Washington; 25, Georgetown, at Washington; 26, Catholic University, at Washington; 29, South Orange Field Club, at Yale Field.

April 2, New York University, at Yale Field; 5, Trinity, at Yale Field; 9, New York Giants, at Polo Grounds; 12, Wesleyan, at Yale Field; 14, Fordham, at Yale Field; 19, University of Vermont, at Yale Field; 23, Columbia, at Yale Field; 25, Georgetown, at Yale Field; 26, Pennsylvania, at Yale Field; 30, Tufts, at Yale Field.

May 2, Virginia, at Yale Field; 3, Brown, at Providence; 7, Amherst, at Yale Field; 10, Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia; 14, Dartmouth, at Yale Field; 17, Holy Cross, at Worcester; 21, Brown, at Yale Field; 24, Cornell, at Ithaca; 27, Williams, at Yale Field; 31, Princeton, at Yale Field.

June 4, Holy Cross, at Yale Field; 7, Princeton, at Princeton; 12, Princeton, in New York City in case of tie; 14, Cornell, at Yale Field; 17, Harvard, at Yale Field; 18, Harvard, at Cambridge; 21, Harvard at New York in case of tie.

BOATHOUSE FOR PRINCETON.

New Building to be Constructed at West End of Carnegie Lake.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCTON, N. J., Jan. 20.—The erection of a new boathouse to augment the present facilities for rowing at Princeton and to give impetus to the revival of this sport here was started to-day, when ground was turned at the western end of Lake Carnegie. From this time on the work will be pushed as rapidly as possible, and it is expected that the house will be ready for dedication and occupancy in June. The new building is to be the gift of the class of 1887, and the final plans were drawn by Pennington Satterthwaite, class of 1893, of New York City.

Princeton's newest building, which promises to be one of the best of its kind in the country, will harmonize with the college architecture, and will be made of terra cotta block stucco, with reinforced concrete floors and a slate roof. The first floor will afford accommodations for six alsles for thirty-two eight-oared shells and sixteen four-oared shells, and will also contain a repair shop.

The second floor is to be devoted to a large and handsomely furnished clubroom, 73 by 38 feet, opening on a large balcony, and adjoining in the rear will be a kitchenette. Rooms will be provided for the 1887 class members while in Princeton, and there will be a tower room for the directors of rowing.

The basement will provide for the showers and lockers, and special arrangements will be made for the members of visiting crews. The site of the boathouse is 100 yards east of the railroad bridge, near Washington Road, and 30 feet from the edge of the water.

Princeton has already arranged for a triangular regatta with Harvard and Pennsylvania at Cambridge in May, and it is expected that negotiations will soon be completed with Columbia and Cornell. The equipment has been further increased in the past week by the presentation of a new eight-oared shell by Warden McLean, '12, of Philadelphia, one of last year's crew men.

DEAD HEAT IN Y. M. C. A. RACE.

Metcalf and Stanwood Finish Together in 1¼-Mile Run.

The deciding of the championship of the branch for the 220-yard dash was the principal event in the bi-monthly games of the West Side Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, held in the association's gymnasium in West Fifty-seventh Street last night. A. J. Smith was returned the champion after defeating S. Colyer in a rather close race in the fast time of 0:25 3-5. A. H. Enroth was third.

The best race was the one and one-quarter mile run, which ended in a dead heat between K. D. Metcalf and R. G. Stanwood in the time of 5:45. The former started with a handicap of sixty yards, while Stanwood was on scratch. J. Franklin, with a fifty-yard handicap, led practically from the start until near the one-mile mark. Then Metcalf forged to the front with Stanwood close behind, and when the runners reached the one-mile mark Stanwood was in the lead. Metcalf, however, soon regained the lead and set the pace from then until the beginning of the last lap, when the scratch man came from behind and ran on even terms with him, both trying hard to finish first. Franklin was third. The summary:

220-Yard Dash; Championship.—Won by A. J. Smith; S. Colyer, second; A. H. Enroth, third. Time—0:25 3-5.

500-Yard Run, handicap.—Won by A. H. Enroth, (15 yards;) I. R. Parkes, (8 yards,) second; W. Weber, (scratch,) third. Time—1:04.

One-and-One-Quarter-Mile Run, Handicap.—Dead heat between K. D. Metcalf, (60 yards,) and R. G. Stanwood, (scratch;) J. Franklin, (50 yards,) third. Time—5:45.

220-Yard Dash, Novice.—Won by S. J. Severins; G. Devlin, second; H. Dewey, third. Time—0:27 1-5.

FOREIGN PLAYERS ARE NOT ELIGIBLE

Amateur Billiardists Rule That National Titles Are for Americans Only.

American billiard championships for American players was the watchword last night at the annual session of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, the members of which met at the Liederkranz Club to elect officers for the coming year and devise means for the uplift of billiards of all kinds among amateurs.

In its action which limits the Class A title to competition among residents of this country, the proposed rule which warranted the empowering of the Executive Committee to invite for that contest any foreign player who might be visiting the United States, caused a lively discussion when this amendment, among others, was brought up.

J. Ferdinand Poggenburg contended that it was the purpose of the International trophy, which has been contested for here to provide competition for just such players and that in the event of the Class A title being won by a foreigner who might be visiting here the holder might assume that a journey abroad was necessary for the trophy before he could lose control.

Therefore, the amendment was stricken out with the result that the consensus of opinion favored the tournament being restricted to Americans or residents of this country having lived here one year.

There was a vast amount of discussion over the revised rules, which were in the hands of a committee headed by W. W. Harris, who had most of his evening taken up clearing up the haze which existed in the minds of many of the members as to the why and wherefore of many of those revised. That the committee had done its work well was attested on all sides and a vote of thanks was extended to the members for their exhaustive labors in clarifying the situation.

It was emphatically the desire of the members that as the committee suggested championships in the Class A and the finals, the Pocket Billiard Tourney should not be played in a public room but in a clubhouse or private hall.

Chief among the new rules accepted were th following:

The value of the prize list for National championship tournaments in Classes A, B, and C, irrespective of the trophies offered by the National Association of Billiard Players, shall not exceed $300, $150, and $100, respectively, for the tournament of each class. The list of five prizes for each tournament is to include first, second, and third, high run, and a high single average prizes. The value of the prize list for the National pocket billiard championship shall not exceed $300, irrespective of the trophy offered by the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. The value of the National cushion carrom and three-cushion-carrom tournaments must not exceed $150, irrespective of the trophies offered by the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players.

All games for championships conducted by this association shall be played:

On a 5x10 table with match cushions.

The balls shall be of ivory and 2⅜ inches in diameter.

The style of game in Classes A, B, and C balk-line championships shall be eighteen-inch balk line, two shots in.

In Class A the games shall be of 400 points; in Class B of 300 p ints, and in Class C of 200 points.

Should a cushion-carrom championship be held there shall be no division in the classes, and the games shall consist of not more than 150 points.

In the interest of pure amateurism this association declares:

"Necessary transportation costs and an allowance not exceeding $7 a day for hotel expenses for a period not to exceed the tournament schedule by more than three days may be paid by any club or association.

"No payment in whole or part of any player's expenses for any tournament or match shall be considered authorized until approval has been issued in writing in advance by the Executive Committee of this association to whom a full statement concerning said proposed defrayal of expense shall be made.

"In no case shall acceptance of privileges offered by the club or room holding a championship be permitted on a player's account to any other than himself.

"The above authorization as to expenses shall apply to National or international championships only."

Violation of the above sections shall be construed as contrary to the interests of the association and actionable in due form by the Executive Committee.

"No amateur shall be eligible to compete in a National Class A balk line event who has not made a grand average of seven (7) in some previous tournament with amateurs of good standing at 18-inch balk line, (two shots in,) unless he, in the opinion of the committee, is capable of equivalent performances.

"A grand average of five (5) and less than seven (7) at 18-inch balk line, (2 shots in,) in an amateur tournament shall entitle any amateur to be eligible to a National (Class 'B') tournament for the championship of that class; but if in the opinion of the committee the candidate has equivalent skill, he may be eligible.

"An entrant for class 'C' tournaments shall not be eligible if he has made a grand average of 5 or more in an amateur tournament, at 18-inch balkline, (2 shots in,) or if in the judgment of the committee he is capable of equivalent performances, he shall not be eligible.

"For the purpose of rating players losing runs or averages shall be competent."

William H. Klenke presided, and the reports of the Treasurer showed that the association was in a most flourishing condition, both in the matter of membership and finances. Thirty new members were elected at last night's session. In the election which followed the transaction of the acceptance of the many changes in the constitution and rules of play the following were chosen to lead the organization for the coming year:

President—E. B. Kurtz, Amateur Billiard Club; Vice President—Harry Mollenhauer, Hanover Club; Secretary—Dr. Walter G. Douglas, New York Club; Treasurer—G. O. Rudolphy, Liederkranz Club. Executive Committee—Morris D. Brown, Hanover Club; W. W. Harris, Dunwoodie Country Club; J. Ferdinand Poggenburg, Liederkranz Club; Edward Gray, Amateur Billiard Club, and J. P. Allen, New York Athletic Club.

The following suspended players were all reinstated according to the ruling made at the last special session of the organization: J. Ferdinand Poggenburg, C. E. Whyte, William Gershel, Edward W. Gardner, Joseph Mayer, Percy Collins, and Charles F. Conklin.

The St. Nicholas and Irish-American A. C. teams will play their first game together in the Amateur Hockey League championship tournament at the St. Nicholas Skating Rink to-night. The Irish players showed so much improvement when they played the Hockey Club last week that their admirers are enthusiastic in the belief that the team will regain the advantage lost by not being able to play McDonald in the opening games.

BASKET BALL CAPTAIN QUITS.

Bolton Resigns from Manhattan Team After Trouble with Coach.

Harry M. Bolton resigned yesterday from the captaincy of the Manhattan College basketball team, a position he has held well for the past three years. His resignation came as a result of a controversy with Coach Frank F. Murray over the choice of a player. The trouble started two weeks ago in the game with the Crescent Athletic Club quintet, when Bolton objected to Murray selecting Lloyd to play. the Captain contending that, as Lloyd was not a member of the squad then, he was ineligible. Murray, however, insisted that Lloyd be allowed to play, and Bolton finally consented, reluctantly. Lloyd has since been elected a member of the regular playing squad.

Things went along rather smoothly from this stage until the team was ready to start on their "barnstorming" trip up-State, when Murray handed the Executive Committee a list of the players eligible to make the trip, and which that body approved. At the last moment, when the players were about to board their train, the coach decided to make some changes in the already approved list. Bolton again objected, but, as it was impossible to get into communication with any members of the committee, his objections were unheeded. Murray suggested two names that Bolton objected to on the ground that the players mentioned were ineligible, and Manager John J. Barrett took sides with the coach. When the team reached Buffalo the coach suspended Bolton on a technicality and ordered him home.

Bolton has been playing at forward position for the team, and his services as a player during the three years that he has been connected with the team have been valuable.

The team will be greatly handicapped by the absence of this player when it begins the series to decide the championship of the Catholic colleges, which will start next Saturday, when Manhattan opposes Georgetown. It is probable that Houlihan, who plays centre, will be selected as the new Captain of the team at the next session of the Executive Committee.

SHORTER RACES FOR MIDDIES

Crew and Track Men Have Distances Curtailed by Supt. Gibbons.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 20.—The managers of the Naval Academy crew and field and track team have been notified by Supt. Gibbons that they will not be allowed to schedule rowing races over a longer course than the Henley distance of one mile 550 yards, or track events of more than a quarter of a mile.

The head of the Academy took the initiative in the matter, having noticed the exhausted condition of some of the oarsmen at the conclusion of their races, which have been over a two-mile course, and of the runners in the distance events.

It is believed that this action will mean that there will be little interest in these branches of sport this Spring, as the big colleges are not likely to enter races of such a different nature from those for which they make special preparation, while the field and track teams are unlikely to consent to a curtailed programme.

The course suggested itself to Supt. Gibbons last spring, and a board was appointed to inquire into the matter. It consisted of Commander G. W. Logan, Lieut. Commander Harris Lanning, Surgeon J. A. Murphy, and Prof. P. J. Dashiel. This board recommended that the sports be curtailed in the manner mentioned. A great deal of regret is felt that course has been adopted which is almost sure to prevent the midshipmen from meeting worthy opponents and will likely lower the standard of Naval Academy athletics.

JOHNNY LORE WINS BOUT.

Clever Lightweight Outpoints Leo Johnson at Olympic A. C.

Johnny Lore, the west side lightweight, whose work during the past few months has stamped him as one of the best lightweights in the East, added another victory to his rapidly growing list at the Olympic A. C. of Harlem last night, when he mixed with Leo Johnson of Harlem in the final bout. It was a battle of Lore's superior strength and aggressiveness against the clever and elusive negro, and the victory was far from a one-sided affair. In fact, Lore had to step at top speed every minute to gain the honors.

Lore tipped the beam at 134 pounds when he weighed in just before entering the ring, and Johnson weighed only 126 pounds. Johnson was slightly taller than Lore, and looked lean in contrast when he faced the well-rounded west sider. As soon as the bell started them on their way Johnson showed his plan of battle by landing three straight left jabs on Lore's face and after backing away he danced around the ring, cleverly evading the rush of the west side boy. Throughout the round Johnson continued to jump in, jab with his left and dance away, while Lore swung in vain at his wriggling figure. Lore tried hard to corner the negro, and succeeded three or four times, each time making Johnson's stomach the target of his attack. The negro did not relish this style of battle, and as soon as possible fell into a clinch.

The second round was on the same order as the first, and Johnson managed to hold Lore to an even break for the two sessions. Johnson was far more sprightly than his opponent, and his work was of the more flashy order, gaining him a noisy reception from his host of followers, who thronged the clubhouse. Lore appeared like a novice when he tried to box the negro, but at close quarters he was able to even matters with his continued punching to Johnson's stomach.

Starting in the third round Lore's strength began to tell on Johnson, and the speed of the later began to wane. Lore had the better of this round, and also of the fourth, but in the fifth Johnson came back with a display of speed and jabs that again had Lore looking like a novice. Johnson's left hand beat a tattoo on Lore's face in this round and most of Johnnie's swings were wasted on the air. There was little in either boy's favor at the half-way mark of the battle.

During the last five rounds Lore did all the forcing, tearing after Johnson before the negro had a chance to set, and it was in this manner that he swung the tide of victory to his side. Johnson caused him considerable discomfort in every round, but he could not punch hard enough to slow up the west sider, who always came back, no matter how fast the punches were landing. In the eighth round Johnson made another strong rally, but it was short lived, as Lore was too strong, and his punches to the negro's stomach finally forced the latter to break ground.

Both boys cut loose in the tenth round for one of those closing rallies, and they fought like a pair of tigers from the opening to the closing bell. Johnson again did the more flashy, but the least effective, work, as Lore more than made up in the infighting what he lost when Johnson stood and boxed him at long range. It was Lore's bout, but by no decisive margin.

At no stage of the contest did one have the other showing any signs of distress, and there was nothing approaching a knockdown.

"Old Home" Night at New Polo.

On Friday night the New Polo Athletic Association will stage thirty-two rounds of boxing between only local boxers. The club believes that the local fistic fans have had plenty of opportunities to witness the performances of boxers from out of town, and has arranged a card of bouts for competition between boxers of the Greater City. The main event of ten rounds will bring together two featherweights well known to the fans, Eddie Sherman and K. O. Eggers, whose past performances in the ring have always met with approval, and undoubtedly they will furnish plenty of action when they box on Friday night.

The other bouts arranged will be between boxers from all five boroughs, making up an "old home" week of boxing exhibitions between Father Knickerbocker's future candidates for championships.

Champion Kilbane to Box Here.

Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, will arrive in New York on Thursday to finish training for his ten-round engagement with Young Driscoll of Brooklyn before the Irving Athletic Club in Brooklyn on Jan. 28. Driscoll recently defeated Willie Jones and Tommy Houck, and is a big favorite across the bridge. There will also be two other ten-round bouts.

GIFFING VICTOR IN FENCING CONTEST

New Rochelle Foilsman Wins After Three-Cornered Tie in Novice Tourney.

Amateur foilsmen were the guests of the New York Athletic Club at the clubhouse, Fifty-ninth Street and Central Park South, last night, when the first novice tournament of the season, under the auspices of the Amateur Fencers' League of America. Nineteen contestants appeared on the three strips, and many of the bouts were keen and exciting. The elimination process was lengthy, owing to the liberal construction of the rules governing novice competition. In the final bout for the prize presented by Dr. Graeme M. Hammond of the New York A. C., W. C. Giffing of the New Rochelle Y. M. C. A. scored a hard-earned victory after a three-cornered tie with Niel Truslow of the New York A. C. and Tailor Tounsend of the New York Fencers' Club.

Nine clubs were represented in the tournament, while two of the competitors were unattached. The knowledge of the science of foil wielding displayed by the fencers was of a high order, and the following contestants appeared on the rubber strips:

Columbia University—J. S. Baldwin.
Central Y. M. C. A.—S. Valentine, A. L. Martin.
New York Fencers' Club—Tailor Tounsend, West Side Y. M. C. A.—L. Cushner.
New York Turn Verein—C. Zouch, V. Morrison, Benjamin Kern.
Crescent A. C.—William F. Straukamp, William W. Wessel.
New York A. C.—Neil Truslow.
Pittsburgh A. C.—William H. Haines.
Brooklyn Poly Tech Prep—J. May, R. L. Perkins.
Wesley House—S. Montgomery, S. Bosco.
New Rochelle Y. M. C. A.—E. A. Scott, W. C. Giffing, H. A. Coffin.

There was some difficulty in securing competent officials. Although a number of prominent fencers were on hand, few showed any disposition to officiate, and as a result two strips only were judged at one time, the judges being Charles Tatham, New York Fencers' Club, and Paul Meylan, New York Turn Verein. Dr. Hammond, New York A. C., was referee. The officials were kept busy deciding a total of sixty bouts, and few of the points awarded were disputed.

In the preliminary bouts W. C. Giffin, New Rochelle Y. M. C. A., made a clean sweep, capturing all his bouts with a score of 25 points to 10. His foil work was excellent and his attack strong. He scored his points quickly and clean. I. Cushner, West Side Y. M. C. A., made an excellent showing with four bouts won and one lost. On the second strip Tailor Tounsend, New York Fencers' Club, carried off the honors, losing but one bout, to R. L. Perkins, Brooklyn Poly Prep, by a score of 5 to 2. W. W. Wessel, Crescent A. C., and Ben Kern, New York Turn Verein, were tied for second place, but as the former was touched fewer times than Kern he was placed in the final round. Nell Truslow showed to advantage in the third strip and disposed of six contestants in quick succession. He was exceptionally strong in defense and defended himself with great skill, scoring his points by well-timed and directed thrusts. J. May, Brooklyn Poly Prep, was the sixth man to compete in the finals.

In the final round Giffing won on points, after a tie with Truslow and Tounsend in hard contests. Truslow was the best of the remaining fencers. The winner, while not strictly a novice, according to the A. F. L. rules, qualified under the fencers' code. The summary:

Strip 1.—Tailor Tounsend, New York Fencers' Club, defeated S. Bosco, unattached, 5 to 4; A. L. Martin, Central Y. M. C. A., 5 to 1; B. Kern, New York Turn Verein, 5 to 3, and William W. To Raise Funds for Gymnasts.

The gymnastic team of the New York Turn Verein will compete this year in championship events at Denver, Col., and later will go to Leipsig, Germany, to take part in a gymnastic carnival. A benefit has been arranged for the team to take place at the Turn Verein on Sunday evening, Jan. 26. There will be a gymnastic exhibition by the Amateur Athletic Union National and Metropolitan championship teams. Among those who will compete in the benefit are: Paul Krimmel, the present all-around National and Metropolitan champion; Roy Moore, sidehorse champion; John Beisinger, Jr., former all-around champion, and R. Beissring, F. Lotterle, C. Zenker, and F. Pryzybylski.

Thorpe to Compete at Pastime Games

James E. Sullivan, Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Pastime A. C., yesterday received a letter from Glenn S. Warner, coach at the Carlisle Indian School, in which he stated that he would send Jim Thorpe, the all-round champion athlete of the world, to compete in the running high jump at the Pastime Athletic Club games, which are to take place at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory on Tuesday, Jan. 28, and also for the indoor National championships of America, which are to be contested at Madison Square Garden on March 6. Thorpe's appearance at the Pastime Athletic Club games will be his first in New York since last Labor Day, when he displaced Martin Sheridan's record for the all-round championship.

FOOTBALL BAN NOT LIFTED.

President Butler Denies He Will Reinstate the Game at Columbia.

A stir was created at Columbia University yesterday when the word was passed over the campus that President Nicholas Murray Butler had lifted the ban on football, and that next Fall a squad of pikskin chasers would be seen on South Field with a remodeled football gridiron, training for a 'Varsity eleven. When this report was run down it was found to have originated in some one's imagination. It was said that the alumni had been silently working for the reinstatement of the sport, and that these steps had met the approbation of President Butler.

Unfortunately for those who desire to see the reinstatement of the sport, the fact is that no such movement has been set in motion, and yesterday President Butler said that he had certainly done nothing that would lead any one to think that he was even contemplating granting permission to the students to resume activity on the gridiron. When the printed report was shown to President Butler he showed surprise, and wanted to know what it was all about.

To those who have been at Columbia but a year or so this report does not bear any different earmarks from those which are constantly cropping up, to the effect that the ban which was placed on the sport in 1905 has or is to be lifted by President Butler. Those in charge of athletics on Morningside Heights said that much as they would like to see football restored they had done nothing

BUSINESS RULES AT TRUCK SHOW

Motor Vehicles for Many Commercial Purposes Put on View Last Night.

UTILITY AND ROMANCE BOTH

Dumping Bodies and Special Designs Abound—Some of the Features at Garden and Palace.

Business reigned supreme at the opening of Part II., the commercial car section, of the thirteenth National Automobile Show at Madison Square Garden and Grand Central Palace last night. That modern proponent of efficiency, the motor truck, and its smaller kinsman, the automobile delivery wagon, had the floor in both the literal and figurative senses of that phrase. Big and little, powerful and less powerful, for this, that, and the other use of everyday life, the 275 or so cars in the two buildings were all businesslike, utilitarian.

Yet in this atmosphere of the intensely practical, there was not wanting a touch of the romantic. The romance of the growth of the commercial car industry, which read like a fairy tale, was there in visual form. And there was another hint of the unreal, the fanciful, for the mind's eye. If one went up into a quiet place on the balcony in the Garden and allowed the glance to rest on this exhibit and that, it was hard not to be carried back to childhood. The big trucks, dwarfed by the distance, were for all the world like the toy wagons you used to play with in the vanished years. There was one loaded with shining milk cans that seemed only inches tall; here another was filled with the most alluring grocery boxes, packing cases and what not that wou felt sure you could gather into one hand. Distance had assuredly lent enchantment.

Closer contact with the vehicles, however, quickly changed imaginings into cold facts. And if there was none of the luxury of deep upholstery and nicely adjusted seat, of toilet case and softly shaded reading lamp that stood out in the pleasure section of the show there was an undoubted appeal about the power of the huge trucks, prepared to carry as much as ten tons without a stagger, and about the neat preparedness of the delivery wagons, the fire apparatus, ambulances and special vehicles of other kinds. The show typified the progressive spirit of the age no whit less than did that of last week.

In the Garden nearly 150 machines were shown by twenty-five makers, whose stands were on both the main floor and the elevated platform. All those in that building were of the gasoline type. At the Palace some forty exhibitors showed about 125 vehicles on the main floor only. Most of these were also gasoline machines, although there was a sprinkling of electrics as well. On the upper floors of both buildings were many exhibits of tires, accessories and parts, while in the basement of the Garden the machine tool exhibit was in place and just getting under way last night to show how motor cars were made. One of the machines in this exhibit, which is under the auspices of the National Machine Tool Builders' Association, is a turret lathe for turning out steel truck wheels. It is capable of making a complete wheel in three hours.

Dumping bodies and demountable bodies of different designs are an outstanding feature of the trucks. Many of these were in operation last night. Among those tha were working, driven by electric motors, as they would be by the truck's own motor in practical use, were the Peerless, Mack, and Locomobile. Each of these worked on a different system, the first by a screw actuated by the motor, the second by chains and sprockets, similarly driven, and the last—a completely demountable body—by an engine-driven worm which pushed it on and off a platform.

Bright colors are the prevailing note at the show, the majority of the trucks and delivery wagons being painted in the colors of their owners and bearing the regular lettering of whatever company owns fleets of the same make. Oil, ice, express, railroad, brewery, grocery, dry goods, and half a dozen other kinds of companies and firms are represented, and the color scheme of the exhibit therefore rivals Joseph's coat. One quiet and businesslike note in this riot of hues was the quintet of Alco trucks of different capacities, all decked in battleship gray. A similar harmonious shade was to be seen at the Kelly-Springfield stand. In the stand of the first named of these makes was also the transcontinental truck which made 3,145 miles between Philadelphia and San Francisco in an actual running time of 412 hours.

A surprise was sprung by the appearance of an entirely new design of Buick light delivery wagon without any previous announcement. This chassis has left hand drive and centre control, carries the motor under a bonnet instead of under the floor board, as in previous models of this make. Four styles of body fit this chassis—"flare board express," "panel side closed door," "wire screen," and "side and stake," respectively. The engine and transmission are mounted on a sub frame. Speed is automatically governed, as in several other makes shown.

***

In the White dumping truck body exhibited the power is automaically cut off when the body reaches its extreme elevation, and again when it comes back to its normal position. A hand lever controls the dumping mechanism. Several models of this make are shown, including a tower or linesman's truck, quite the tallest thing in the show, for the Yonkers Railroad, and an appropriate White ambulance, which fairly glistens with spotlessness, and is for the Norwegian Deaconesses' Hospital.

***

A variation from type is to be seen at the Walter stand, where a truck is equipped with the Latil front drive. This unusual form of drive permits steel tires to be used on the rear wheels, and one of its claims is, therefore, tire saving, in view of the fact that two-thirds of the load is carried on the untired rear wheels. The power is applied to the front wheels by two inclosed spur gears.

In line with the tendency to keep the trucks constantly employed, which has found expression in the various forms of demountable bodies, a three-wheeled separate tractor is shown at the Knox-Martin stand. This odd-looking arrangement may be attached to almost any truck body and rear wheels by a sort of platform attachment, and it is claimed for it that the operating part of the equipment, the tractor, can thus be kept in practically constant use, with a consequent saving of time and gasoline. E. R. Gurney, who assisted in developing this tractor, had a word to say last night against the proposed limitation by law of the weight of trucks which can operate on the highways.

"This is not only a fallacy, but is absurd and illogical," he said. "It is the horse-drawn wagon, with its 5,000 or 6,000 pounds concentrated on each narrow three-inch rim, that cuts into the road, loosening the binding material of the surface, which the next touring car, with its rapid movement, lifts and scatters to the four winds. Any weight that a rubber tire will withstand cannot do the least harm to the road surface. What is a road roller? It is a great weight on wide-rim wheels used to complete the building of roads. Then why should a motor truck or a tractor, with the road-building qualities of its wide-rim wheels, be discriminated against, and the narrow rim of the horse-drawn vehicle allowed to continue its work of destruction?"

Laurens Enos, the recently elected President of the American Automobile Association, has been in New York during the last few days in attendance at the Automobile Shows, and is keen to increase the association's membership.

"With the great increase in the number of vehicles using the road, and with the necessity of more careful construction and maintenance of the roads," said he yesterday, "problems are presented which demand the most conscientious attention of the motorists, for the simple reason, if for no other, that they are the most insistent users of the highways. It is my purpose during the ensuing year to contend most energetically for a vastly increased membership from a total of motorists which by May 1 should be around the million mark."

CLOTHING TRADE DULL.

Norfolk Suits Retain Their Popularity for Boys.

With the great bulk of Spring orders already placed and the interest of clothing manufacturers centered in the strike, business in this trade is practically at a standstill. Most of the salesmen are at their home offices waiting for the arrival of buyers, and little activity is looked for in the immediate future.

There has been a heavy demand for Norfolk suits throughout the country, and in some instances, particularly in boys' clothing, this style has proved unusually popular. One prominent manufacturer of boys' and young men's clothing said that fully 75 per cent. of the advance orders booked earlier in the season called for these goods, but that of late the demand had dropped off somewhat. Although this style is usually considered especially fitted for Summer wear, in the opinion of many it will be stronger than ever next Fall.

MUST PRODUCE SON IN COURT

Justice Greenbaum Will Then Decide If Mother Shall Have Him.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum yesterday signed an order for the appearance in the court on Friday of Richard B. Johnson, the 7-year-old son of Ethel Colyer Johnson, who asked the Justice to place the boy in her custody pending decision of her suit for separation from her husband, Richard O. Johnson, a member of the manufacturing firm of A. J. Ahlstron & Co. The Justice will then question the child and decide whether it will be best for his interests to be in his mother's custody.

A letter from the boy, who is in the Gunnery School, where his father had placed him, was produced in evidence to show that the child was happy in his new surroundings.

"I am warm at night, Mamma," it said. "I say my prayers at night before I go to bed. In the Summertime I don't think I shall go upon a vacation, as I think they'll make a man of me here." The sobbing of the mother as the letter was finished broke the hush, and the argument was continued. Mrs. Johnson charges her husband with cruelty during their ten years of married life, and with having paid undue attention to a nurse.

Justice Greenbaum suggested that Mr. and Mrs. Johnson settle their case by a referee. William Daly, attorney for the mother, said that he did not think it would be fair to burden the woman with the extra expense. Johnson's attorney replied that the father would pay the referee's fees. The question of the referee also will be decided next Friday.

TWO BANKERS SENTENCED.

Not Less Than Two Years for Sullivan and Three Months for Shears.

David A. Sullivan, former President of the defunct Mechanics and Traders' Bank of Brooklyn, and R. R. Shears, former President of the closed Borough Bank of Brooklyn, both convicted of grand larceny, were sentenced yesterday by Justice Frederick E. Crane.

Sullivan got an indeterminate sentence of from two to four years and three months at hard labor in Sing Sing. Shears escaped with three months in the penitentiary. In the case of both a stay was granted. Sullivan went back to Raymond Street Jail to stay until Wednesday, when there will be an argument before Justice Kapper for a certificate of reasonable doubt. Owing to the difference of opinion between Justice Crane and Robert H. Elder, attorney for Shears, over the legal interpretation of Section 1,307 of the penal law, under which Mr. Elder claimed immunity for his client, Justice Crane voluntarily granted the accused banker a certificate of reasonable doubt and directed his release in $5,000 bail pending action by the higher courts.

During the trial of Shears his attorney contended that he should not be charged with grand larceny because he returned the money he was accused of taking before he was indicted.

MRS. SHARDLOW'S WILL UP.

Legacies Totaling More Than $200,000 Go to Family and Charity.

The will of Mrs. Annie F. Shardlow, the wife of Joseph Shardlow, who died at her home, 20 Fifth Avenue, from appendicitis on Dec. 24, 1912, was filed for probate yesterday at the Surrogates' Court. The sum of $13,000 is given to charity, and more than $200,000 is disposed of in the will altogether, although no estimate of the extent of the estate is given in the petition. The Congregational Church of East Douglass, Mass., is to receive $10,000. The sum of $1,000 each is given to the Baptist Home Society, the Brooklyn Home for Consumptives, and the Home for Old Men and Aged Couples.

Joseph Shardlow, her husband, is the beneficiary for life of a $75,000 trust fund, while a similar fund of $30,000 is set aside for her brother, Lucius M. Thayer, and his wife, Antoinette E. Thayer. Another fund of the same amount goes to a sister, Etta E. Alger. Her namesake, Annie F. Shardlow, receives $10,000 outright, and the same amount is given to a grandniece, Mary W. Pendleton. Friends, cousins, nieces, nephews, grandnieces, and grandnephews get legacies ranging from $100 to $5,000.

The residue is bequeathed in equal shares to her husband, Joseph Shardlow; a nephew, Percy B. Tripp, now living in Hen Yan, China, and grandnephews and grandnieces, Wyman Pendleton, Virginia Pendleton, Frances A., Daisy L. and Albert Wright, Jr., Chloe T. Carroll, Athol C. Newman, Claire F. Newman, and Gladys C. Waring.

PULITZER FOUNTAIN PLANS.

Public Library Place of Exhibit for New Central Park Idea.

All of the designs and plans submitted by the five competitors in the competition for the $50,000 fountain and the rearrangement of the Fifth Avenue Plaza and entrance to Central Park, provided for in the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer, will be on exhibition to-day in the New York Public Library.

Carrere & Hastings, whose design won the award, solved the twin problems of art and traffic. The Sherman monument is to be moved about fifteen feet to the west. The Pulitzer fountain will be at the other end of the Plaza, the fountain and statue to occupy symmetrical positions with respect to Fifty-ninth Street as an axis.

The fountain itself is about sixty-five feet wide and thirty feet high. It consists of three superimposed circular basins, out of the uppermost of which rise two smaller polygonal basins, surmounted by a large circular basin from the centre of which rises a symbolical figure—the exact symbolism not yet having been decided upon.

To overcome the present lack of symmetry in the Plaza, the same treatment of walks and balustrades and background is indicated for the Sherman statue as for the fountain, except that there will be no steps. On the left side of the Park entrance, a long and architectually beautiful shelter is to take the place of the present small, shabby contrivance.

When the present plan of rearranging the Plaza is carried out, traffic conditions will be materially improved. All the traffic will move in straight lines. There will be no more diagonal crossings for vehicles at the Plaza, for all of the present open space from Sixtieth to Fifty-eighth Street will be occupied, except for the width of Fifth Avenue.

Four other sets of designs and plans also will be on exhibition to-day, those submitted by McKim, Mead & White, Arnold W. Brunner, John Russel Pope, and M. Van Buren Magonigle. The competition was by invitation only.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

LIVING COST HITS SALESMEN.

They Find It Difficult to Keep Their Expenses Down.

In the opinion of an officer of a shoe concern in this city the increased cost of living is making it more difficult yearly for salesmen to keep their expenses within reasonable limits.

"The South seems to show the greatest increase," he said yesterday, "for, in comparing the expenses of our man in that territory in 1909 with his expenses in 1912, we find an increase of fully $700. Nearby the increase has not been so noticeable, yet in three years the expenses of our man traveling in Western New-York State have jumped fully $200. In 1909 his net business was some $80,000, while his expenses totaled close to $1,600. In 1912, with practically the same amount of business done, his expenses amounted to slightly over $1,800.

"Several reasons are given by the men to justify their increased expenditures. For instance, where many of the hotel buses used to carry a trunk or two free they now charge 25 cents apiece. Where rooms used to be $2 a day, sometimes with the use of a sample room thrown in, they are now $2,50, with sample rooms extra. Meals are also more expensive, and the gradual increase in the number of styles shown necessitates the carrying of more trunks. This naturally means increased baggage charges. Where salesmen are paid a straight salary and their expenses are covered by the house it is getting more and more of a problem to employers to keep everybody satisfied."

SHIRT ORDERS LIGHT

But Collar Business Keeps Up Well —Tariff Next.

The between-seasons period in men's shirts keeps business light in that end of the local haberdashery market at the moment, but an excellent business in collars is reported from various parts of the trade. Little real activity in shirts is looked for until the road men leave, about April 1, with their new Fall lines.

Among the new collars offered this week is a long-pointed turndown effect that is expected to prove particularly popular with the younger set. It is made lightweight, which permits the ends to curl slightly and prevents them from digging into the shirt, and gives the effect of a high collar with none of its discomforts. The hearing on the collar tariff at Washington this week is attracting no little attention in the trade, the belief being generally that any reduction from the present tariff of 45 cents a dozen specific and 25 per cent. ad valorem will be extremely detrimental to the domestic trade.

HIDE PRICES IMPROVE.

Some Packer Hides Decline, but Market Is Generally Firm.

Prices in the hide market continued to regain the ground lost in the decline of last month under a steadily improving demand in the week just closed. Some sorts of packer hides were slightly lower than the levels of the preceding week, but little importance was attached to their decline in the face of the previous inactivity of the packers in the disposing of their offerings. These hides were generally sought after. Foreign hides moved well here at prices that were held generally firm by good buying in the European markets. Some foreign sorts were quoted during the week at figures higher than the record levels touched in November.

The leather market gave little evidence of weakness, save for some grades of colored calfskins. Sole leathers were particularly strong, with uppers for the most part steady to firm. Patent leathers moved well, and upholstery leathers were fairly active at recent prices.

MEN'S FABRIC MARKET QUIET.

Strike Here Depresses Trading in the Primary Market.

Except for the opening of new lines, there was little to chronicle in the local men's wear fabric trade. More out-of-town buyers visited the city, and business was apparently satisfactory, for the most part. Most of the staple cloths for suits and overcoats have been shown for next Fall, but fancy worsteds are not expected to be put on the market generally until early in February. Prices on the latter will undoubtedly be about 12½ cents a yard higher than opening prices last year, on the average, due to the higher cost of labor and the continued strength of the world's wool markets.

The strike in the local clothing trade continues to have a depressing effect on the primary market, although in some cases clothiers are showing more willingness to accept shipments of Spring fabrics. On the whole, local manufacturers are not inclined to show much interest in next Fall's cloths, and most of the orders booked by mill agents have come from out-of-town buyers.

BLOW TO OYSTER INDUSTRY.

Recent Gales May Cause Heavy Loss to Long Island Sound Growers.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 20.—A loss which may reach considerable proportions is thought to have been done to oyster beds in Long Island Sound by the recent high gales, and more particularly by the extremely low tide on Jan. 3. Growers here who have visited their grounds fear that the industry has received a severe blow, the full force of which will not be felt until some time in the future, when a shortage of shellfish will be revealed.

At this time of the year the growers do not send out boats on the beds except to those from which they are dredging for the market, so there has been delay in ascertaining the extent of the damage. All last week the heavy mists on the Sound prevented steamers from locating beds.

It is feared that inshore beds have been covered with mud. In water of moderate depth there has been a shifting of sand which may have smothered young oysters.

Frederick L. Perry, clerk of the Connecticut Shellfish Commission, said that the oyster growers are very apprehensive over conditions, and losses may run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Dismisses Suit Against W. D. Hoard.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—An error in the Federal action for an injunction against the Elgin Board of Trade to prevent alleged violation of the Anti-Trust law caused Judge Landis to enter an order to-day dismissing the suit as to ex-Gov. W. D. Hoard of Wisconsin.

District Attorney James H. Wilkerson explained that Mr. Hoard had been included in the list of defendants through a mistake.

Charged with Cruelty to Horses.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Suit was begun to-day against the New York Central Railroad by United States Attorney John L. O'Bryan for an alleged violation of the "twenty-eight-hour" livestock law." It is charged that the railroad entrained twenty horses in a palace car at Portland, Mich., on Jan. 19, 1910, and did not detrain them until Jan. 21.

Broker Pleads Guilty of Fraud.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20.—F. D. Minyard, former Cincinnati broker, who with others was arrested in the wholesale raid conducted by the Government several months ago, pleaded guilty in the United States District Court here to-day to a charge of using the mails to defraud. Minyard was charged with having used the mails to sell alleged fraudulent stocks. His sentence was deferred, and he was released on his own recognizance.

COAL ROADS ANSWER QUERIES

First Conference with Commerce Commission Is Held in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A conference was held to-day between Chairman Lane of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and representatives of the athracite coal-carrying railroads as a step in the commission's investigation into the operations of the roads and their affiliated coal companies. Another conference will be held in New York early next week.

In the belief that basis existed for the complaint that anthracite coal was too high the commission directed its inquiry to the matter of transportation rates and the methods of the roads, and sent out a long list of questions concerning their rates, value of properties and relations with the coa. companies. To many of the questions the railroads were prepared to-day to give answers. To others, such as the first cost of the properties, little information could be obtained from the records, and the railroad officials united in asserting the impossibility of giving exact figures on the cost question.

The railroads involved in the commission's proceedings are the Central of New Jersey, Delaware & Hudson, Lackawanna, Erie, Susquehanna, Wilkes-Barre & Eastern, Lehigh Valley, New York, Ontario & Western, Pennsylvania, Northern Central, and Reading.

SHOE TARIFF HEARINGS.

Trade Turning Attention to Washington This Week—Spot Business Dull.

With spot business in the local shoe market at a low ebb, the attention of the trade is more or less diverted to the hearings on the hide, leather, and shoe schedules at Washington this week. While there is a feeling in certain quarters that downward revision, if it is made on shoes, will not be great enough to cause serious alarm, the trade does not intend to be caught napping. Several representatives of the National Association of Shoe Wholesalers will be on the ground to fight for the retention of the present duties.

Spring business continues to come in steadily, and, in some parts of the trade marked improvement since the opening of the year is reported. Tans are said to be moving well in styles for men and boys, with high shoes comprising a large part of the business done in them. For women, dull calf, patent leather and whites are selling best.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Cotton Robes Cut—Tax Stands on Machines for Working Astrakhan.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday held that machines used in making pile effects on astrakhan fabrics are not machine tools within the meaning of the Tariff act of 1909. Collector Loeb held them as manufactures of metal, at 45 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 199. Hensel, Bruckmann & Lorbacher, the importers, asked 30 per cent. on machine tools.

A protest by the American Express Company on cotton robes was sustained. They were assessed at 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 339 of the act of 1897, and claimed dutiable at specific rates under Paragraph 314.

Claims by Fleitmann & Co. and the Dundee Textile Company were overruled. Leather cut into the form of picker straps was in some instances assessed at 15 per cent., while a part of the importation was returned at 25 per cent. under Paragraph 451. The importers alleged the goods dutiable under the same paragraph at 5 per cent.

Increase Capital to $1,500,000.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—The Mark Cross Company has certified to the Secretary of State that its capital of $400,000 has been increased to $1,500,000. Of the original capital $300,000 has actually been issued. The certificate is signed by Patrick F. Murphy, J. Harvey Page, and Frederick T. Murphy.

PRINTCLOTHS IRREGULAR.

Trading in the local printcloth market was irregular yesterday, and the general tone was easier. Some inquiry was made for 38½-inch, 64-60s, and 39-inch 68-72s, for quick delivery, and sales were reported at 5 and 5⅝ cents, respectively, although at these figures cloths were not plentiful. There seemed to be a better demand for fine-combed yarn goods, with some trading reported. The day's quotations follow:

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

In clothing orders for Spring plain blues and grays have predominated. Fancy blues have not sold as well as was expected in some sections.

One of the leading factors in napped cotton goods opened their Fall line yesterday at prices ¼ cent a yard higher than the opening prices last year. A heavy demand for these goods is looked for, and other commission houses are expected to name prices on their lines to-day.

Hat salesmen in the South report an increase in the demand for soft straws. Orders in some instances have been larger than in several years.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

Interviews with some of the largest coal-briquet producers in France have elicited the information that the present supply of coal tar employed in the manufacture of briquets is rapidly becoming inadequate, and as a direct consequence prices are advancing and are likely to continue to do so until some further source of supply is found.

The exportation of soya beans and their products from the ports of Manchuria in 1910 and 1911 were, respectively, as follows: Beans, 828,924 tons and 818,108 tons; bean cake, 621,927 tons and 911,881 tons; bean oil, 44,083 tons and 65,993 tons. About 280,000 tons of beans and 32,000 tons of bean oil were exported to Europe.

The Swiss budget for 1913 shows an estimated income of $19,053,925 and an estimated expenditure of $19,908,915. Vice Consul General McBride's detailed figures show that $28,270 less will be spent on military and $250,226 more on commerce and agriculture.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A meeting of the upholstery goods and house furnishings buyers of the Dry Goods Union will be held to-day at 55 White Street.

Imports of precious stones at this port in the week ended Jan. 11 were valued at $707,982. Watch imports in the same period amounted to $20,750.

Kleinberger & Klatz, 78 Fifth Avenue, are showing a wide variety of attractive styles in women's handbags of Vachette leather. This leather, which was formerly imported from Paris, is now made in this country.

The stockholders of the J. E. Manix Company, resident buyers, 320 Church Street, will hold their annual meeting at the offices of the company on Jan. 27 at 12 o'clock.

I. M. Mayer, 17 East Twenty-second Street has been appointed resident buyer for Hillman's, Chicago.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise Abruptly, Then Fall Back—Gold Goes to France and to Argentina.

More than $4,000,000 gold was taken for export yesterday, $2,000,000 for Paris, and the balance for the Argentine. Within a fortnight we have shipped abroad over $11,000,000 gold or close to one-third of the cash gained by the members of the Clearing House during this same period. Exchange rates have continued to rise during this movement, and it has not prevented the development of great ease in our own money market nor a recent hardening of discount rates in Europe, which should be benefiting by the gold which we have been sending out. Just how easily we will be able in the long run to spare the gold which we have already shipped, and the further amount which present indications suggest will go out on this movement, will depend, at least in part, upon the course of trade here during the next few months. If less money is to be needed by the merchants and manufacturers of the United States this gold outflow will hardly prevent a continuance, and perhaps an accentuation, of the ease which has been developing in money here. The indifference which the money market shows to this considerable gold outflow fits in with the view which many hold that sufficient signs of some trade reaction are developing to justify indifference to this loss of reserve money. Yesterday's point of view toward the security markets took count of some such estimate of what has been going on in the money markets and in the international gold movements, but much more was heard in the day's discussion of possible new legislation affecting corporations, and particularly holding companies. The further outline which the day's reports supplied of the proposals which are receiving the support of Mr. Wilson in New Jersey helped to accentuate this latter factor as an influence upon stock market sentiment.

An interesting side light on the technical position of the market was furnished in its action in response to the false report which gained circulation at midday that the Supreme Court had rendered its decision in the Minnesota rate case and that it was in favor of the railroads. A decision regarded as bearing on one of the main points at issue in the Minnesota case was rendered, but that was in a case of minor importance. This false rumor caused a sharp upturn in the market, followed by an even sharper reaction, which, before it had run its course, carried many stocks to the low point of the day, and some to new low levels for this movement. Some inferred from the abruptness of the advance on this Minnesota rate decision report that the short interest in the market was very large and the supply of stocks small. Inferences of opposite import might be drawn from the subsequent reaction, which was even more pronounced than the rise. These inferences may, perhaps, be offset against one another and the incident regarded as throwing little real light on the position of the market aside from the fact that it seems at the moment to be largely in the hands of professional traders. Such would be quick to adopt a new viewpoint on what to them would have seemed sufficient justification, if rumor had not proved false, and quick in turn to readopt the former point of view.

Another break in the price of cotton options carried these over $6 a bale under the high prices of last month. This severe decline has been accepted as due in no small measure to a readjustment of views regarding the requirements of this raw material of a very important industry. To the extent to which the decline represented a change in views regarding the size of this year's yield of cotton the normal effect upon securities markets would be favorable. All the more importance is attached to this decline in cotton by those who see in it a reflection of a tendency which elsewhere is reflected in the recent softening of pig iron prices and in the drop in the market for copper. Sales of that metal were reported yesterday at figures slightly under the sixteen and a half-cent level which prevailed in the closing days of last week.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2½@3 per cent., with the last loan at 2¾ per cent. Most of the day's business was done at 2¾ per cent.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Anticipating the Court.

An excitable trader on the floor of the Stock Exchange got a "flash" from Washington yesterday noon. It related to the Supreme Court's decision that the Inter-State Commerce Commission had the right to enforce reductions in certain class rates prevailing on the Louisville & Nashville. Now, this trader was not especially familiar with all the cases pending before the highest court, and to him a railroad decision from that body could relate to only one case at this time. So he rushed back into the crowds and gave orders to buy Atchison, St. Paul, Northern Pacific and other railroad issues. When his friends asked for news he told them he had a straight tip over the wires that the Minnesota rate case had been won by the railroads. His information produced a little pleasurable excitement, during which the transportation stocks all advanced. When the facts were published prices began to shade off, and some of them lost all of their falsely won advance.

A Quick Flurry.

It was surprising to people watching the ticker to see quotations running up in the face of what appeared to be another unfavorable decision. They thought that some one else had better sources of information, and that the market was going up on news of a railroad victory in the rate case. Before they could take advantage of the bulge, in most cases, it was a thing of the past. A man who had Union Pacific ordered it sold at the market when the ticker was quoting the issue at 158. When he got a report he learned that his order had been executed at 156⅛. The advance flattened out with the discovery that it had been based on wrong information. Overeager brokers often manage to misinterpret a decision by jumping to conclusions, but happenings like yesterday's are unusual.

***

The Central Takes It Easy.

It was said last night that the New York Central had been undismayed by the appearance yesterday morning of an advertisement warning investors against the proposed issue of $12,547,000 of equipment trust certificates. The broker who paid for the warning notice has successfully attacked new security issues of a number of large corporations, and has gained a formidable reputation, but his promise to make an immediate appeal to the courts, presumably for an injunction against the issue, did not cause the railroad company or the bankers to change their plans. It was thought yesterday that the new notes would be ready for a public offering this week.

General Electric Ex-Dividend.

General Electric Company shares closed Saturday at 182. They opened yesterday morning ex-dividend at 144. The dividend consisted of an extra distribution of 30 per cent. in new stock. As brokers figure these matters, a man who bought General Electric at the close Saturday and sold it Monday without the dividend would have made a good profit. At 182, 100 shares would have cost $18,200. On Monday the holder would have had 130 shares, still worth, according to the market's estimate, $18,200, or $140 a share, but quoted at the opening at four points above that figure. Subsequently the shares declined to 140⅛, probably because a number of holders took advantage of the difference between Saturday's close and yesterday's opening to realize quick profit.

***

Union Pacific Heads Perplexed.

Judge R. S. Lovett, Chairman of the Union Pacific Board, with Mortimer L. Schiff and F. A. Vanderlip, Directors, has apparently spent most of his office hours in recent weeks in conferences over difficulties arising out of the Supreme Court decree. The three were expected to make another trip to Washington last night for a conference with Atty. Gen. Wickersham on new points of difficulty which have arisen since their recent visit.

***

Rock Island Collaterals.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad collateral 4s became suddenly unpopular yesterday, following a report that the Rock Island Company might be dissolved by the passing of a bill against holding companies, in keeping with Gov. Wilson's ideas. The 4s opened at 64¾, slumped off to 62⅛, and closed at 62⅞. These bonds, of which there are $71,355,000 outstanding, were originally put out with stocks of the Rock Island Company in exchange for shares of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, and they are secured by the railway stock, dollar for dollar. They would seem to be in a happier position, in the event of a dissolution suit, than the Rock Island Company shares. These issues, both common and preferred, were also weak yesterday. The operating railway's stock is held, nominally, by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, all of the stock of which is owned by the Rock Island Company. If the holding company were to be dissolved, of which there seems extremely little prospect, the collateral trust bondholders would have their original stock to fall back on.

SUPREME COURT CURB ON COMMERCE BOARD

Decision Denies Right to Make Rates on Ex Parte Evidence.

RAILROADS MUST BE HEARD

Permitted to Discuss Reasonableness of Changes—Courts Can Review Evidence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Supreme Court of the United States to-day, in adding another to the long list of reversals it has handed down to the Commerce Court, expressed at greater length than ever before the severe limitations set by Congress to the review by the courts of orders of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

The day the Commerce Court first organized for business the Supreme Court, by chance, rendered an opinion that was reported as a warning to the new tribunal that it must confine its scrutiny to points of law and not review the facts set forth by the commission. But time and again the Commerce Court has gone outside the construction of law in reversing the commission's findings, each time encountering, in slightly modified form, the rebuke of the Supreme Court.

Limits Power of Commerce Board.

In its decision to-day, however, while the Supreme Court completely reverses the Court of Commerce, it warns the attorneys for the Government that there are also limitations to the powers of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. Its orders may issue only after hearings. These hearings must embody, for the information of the defendant carriers, all the evidence no matter from what source collected, that is used by the commission in arriving at its decision. And the testimony, though it is not for the courts to question the credibility of the witnesses or weigh conflicting statements, must yet present substantial evidence in support of the commission's orders.

The case before the court was that of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, appellant, versus the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, which recently figured as the basis of one of the articles of impeachment against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the Commerce Court. After the case had been closed for argument before the lower court Judge Archbald wrote to Helm Bruce, counsel for the railroad, asking further explanation of a particular point. Though the court's decision was drafted by Judge Knapp, and Judge Archbald's private correspondence appeared not to have influenced the court, the House charged, and the Senate declared, that Judge Archbald was guilty of a misdemeanor on that count.

In October, 1907, the New Orleans Board of Trade brought three distinct proceedings against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad to set aside as unfair, unreasonable, and discriminatory certain class and commodity rates for shipments from New Orleans to Mobile, which came within the classification of local traffic from New Orleans to Pensacola, and from New Orleans through both these points to Montgomery, Selma, and Prattville. On Dec. 31, 1909, the commodity rates were settled by agreement, and the Inter-State Commerce Commission found the class rates unreasonable, ordered the local rates reduced to the former lower figure, and directed that the through rates be correspondingly reduced.

The carrier's application for a temporary injunction against the commission was denied by the United States Circuit Court for the Western District of Kentucky, then having jurisdiction. While further proceedings were pending, the Commerce Court was established, and the case was transferred to its docket. That court in a long opinion held the Commission's order void on the ground that there was no material evidence to support it. The Government's successful appeal to the Supreme Court is largely based upon contentions which the high court sets aside—that it may be assumed that the commission has given the proper hearings whether they were actually held or not; that an order issuing without hearings is binding, and that an order issuing in contravention of the obvious burden of the testimony is effective.

Commission's Orders Subject to Revision.

"The statute," said Associate Justice Lamar, speaking for the Supreme Court in sustaining the action of making its ('the commission's) orders conclusive against a direct attack, expressly declares that 'they may be set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction.' Of course it can only be done in cases presenting justiciable question. But whether the order deprives the carrier of a Constitutional or statutory right, whether the hearing was adequate and fair, or whether, for any reason, the order is contrary to law are all matters within the scope of judicial power."

"Under the statute the carrier retains the primary right to make the rates; but if, after hearing, they are shown to be unreasonable, the commission may put them aside and require the substitution of just for unjust charges. The commission's right to act depends upon the existence of this fact, and if there was no evidence to show that the rates were unreasonable, there was no jurisdiction to make the order. In a case like the present the courts will not review the commission's conclusion of fact by passing upon the credibility of witnesses, or conflicts in their testimony. But the legal effect of evidence is a question of law. A finding without evidence is beyond the power of the commission. An order based thereupon is contrary to law, and must, in the language of the statute, 'be set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction.'"

The court holds to be utterly unsound the Government's contention that the commission's power to make original investigation gives to the commission a right to assume that it also possesses the Legislature's vested power of presuming that facts furnished do support and justify a final enactment.

There is no hearing, in the legal sense, Justice Lamar declares, if the defendant is unaware of all the evidence against him. The commission's rules of evidence are admittedly more lax than those of a court, "but the more liberal the practice in admitting testimony the more important the obligation to preserve the essential rules of evidence by which rights are asserted or defended."

Case Decided Against Railroad.

The decision then examined briefly the facts in the case. It refers to the undisputed fact that the through rate from New Orleans to Montgomery was 68 cents, while the sum of the local rates from New Orleans to Mobile and from Mobile to Montgomery was only 55 cents, and that to secure the lower rate New Orleans merchants had to unload at Mobile and reship. The decision mentions testimony of New Orleans shippers that they could no longer reach the terminals of the local rates, and that the through rate to Montgomery put that city entirely out of their sphere of influence and ended the business that had grown up under the former rates.

"It is unnecessary, in this case," said Justice Lamar, "to review each of the matters discussed, ruled, and found by the commission in its report, and only the more salient facts will be mentioned. For the validity of the order does not necessarily depend upon the correctness of each of these findings, so that the breaking of one or many links by disproof would destroy the chain upon which the order depended. The question is whether there was substantial evidence to support the order. The value of such evidence necessarily varies according to circumstances, but the weight to be given it is peculiarly for the body exercienced in such matters and familiar with the complexities, intricacies, and history of rate making in each section of the country."

The conclusion of the Supreme Court is as follows:

"The order of the commission, restoring a local rate that had been in effect for many years, and making a corresponding reduction in the through rate was not arbitrary, but sustained by substantial, though conflicting evidence. The courts cannot set that conflict nor put their judgment against that of the rate making body, and the decree is reversed."

COURT'S OTHER DECISIONS.

Heir of Man Killed, but Not Instantly, by Railroad Has Right to Sue.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Supreme Court delivered its opinions to-day without announcing those on the Minnesota rate case or other State rate cases.

It annulled as invalid the "reciprocal demurrage rules" of the Mississippi Railroad Commission, which imposed charges upon railroads for delay in delivery of inter-State or intra-State shipments. The decision was based upon the fact that the rules did not provide for exemptions in case of unavoidable delay.

A husband's advice to his wife may possibly be of such a pecuniary value that the wife may recover damages for loss of it, according to another decision rendered to-day.

The court reversed, however, a judgment of $12,000 awarded in the United States District Court for Northern Ohio to the administrator of the estate of Albert Wisemiller, killed while working on the Michigan Central Railroad, because the trial Judge had erred in allowing damages to the widow for loss of the husband's advice and care without there having been any allegations or evidence of such loss.

The court, in an opinion by Justice Lurton, decided that under the employers' liability act of 1908, relatives of an employe who lives several hours or longer after an accident are entitled to recover damages, just as if the employe had been killed instantly.

Railroad lwayers have sought to establish the doctrine that the statute allowed an employe to sue for injuries and allowed his relatives to sue only when he was killed instantly. They contended that if the employe lived several hours and then died, his death extinguished not only his own cause of action, but that of his relatives.

This contention the court held was erroneous. State laws which provide otherwise, Justice Lurton said, must give way as far as inter-State commerce was concerned, at least until Congress should repeal the Federal law.

Holding that the charge of combination in violation of the anti-trust law had not been sustained, the court held the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company and the Owatonna Manufacturing Company sought to monopolize the churn and butter worker trade, and that when Virtue's company declined to sell out to them they brought suits for alleged infringements of patents for the distinct purpose of monopolizing trade.

Several hundred thousand dollars worth of "promotion stock" in the Las Ovas Company, a Cuban land corporation, was ordered canceled to-day by the Supreme Court. It was charged that Norman H. Davis and Charles T. Phillips in 1904 interested Gen. George C. Reid of the Marine Corps in the formation of the company to buy at a large figure Cuban land which they had bought for $20,000. They issued stock for the difference in the two sums to themselves, and this was ordered canceled.

The appeal of Walter B. Grant, a Boston lawyer, from the order of the Southern New York Federal District Court, holding him in contempt for not producing books sent to him by E. E. Burlingame, was dismissed by the Supreme Court today. The Grand Jury in New York was investigating the use of the mails to promote a wireless telegraph company in which Burlingame was interested. Grant held that he was privileged from producing the books because Burlingame was his client.

The court has decided that American patents on inventions patented in foreign countries expire with the expiration of the foreign patent, notwithstanding claims that the treaty of Brussels of 1900 provides otherwise. The decision was in the case, between the Cameron Septic Tank Company of the City of Knoxville, Iowa.

Attorney General Wickersham to-day asked the Supreme Court to send at once to the Federal District Court at New York its mandate in the "cotton corner case," holding for trial James Patten and others, on indictments charging conspiracy to run a cotton corner, in violation of the anti-trust law. The mandate would ordinarily be issued in thirty days after decision.

The court took the request under advisement.

The Bethlehem plants are operating at capacity, with sufficient orders booked to carry the mills some months ahead.

GOVERNMENT DROPS THE TELEPHONE SUIT

Turns Trust Complaint Over to Commerce Commission for Investigation.

WIDE INQUIRY IS PLANNED

To Consider Whole Subject of Policy as to the Telephone and Telegraph.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Attorney General Wickersham has decided that no necessity exists for instituting a prosecution of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company as a combination in restraint of trade. At his suggestion the Inter-State Commerce Commission will make a comprehensive investigation of allegations that a telephone and telegraph monopoly exists. The investigation will be for the purpose of remedying alleged abuses as to rates and discriminatory treatment. It will also enable the commission to make recommendations for new legislation to bring about better governmental control of telephone and telegraph systems.

The Attorney General says that the matters complained of are within the authority of the Inter-State Commerce Commission to correct, and he does not regard a prosecution under the Sherman act as justified or necessary. He says, in a letter to Chairman Prouty of the commission, that a thorough inquiry into telephone companies would be an excellent thing as a basis for the adoption of a government policy in relation to telephone and telegraph companies. After pointing out the rights of the commission over such companies conferred by the Inter-State Commerce act, Mr. Wickersham says as to the desirability of an investigation:

"Under the provisions of the statute referred to, the commission is, therefore, fully empowered to make a most thorough investigation into the rates and practices of the telephone companies to determine what are reasonable maximum rates to be charged for communication from one State to another, and the practice to be observed in all of the dealings of the telephone companies with the public and other companies. No comprehensive investigation into the organization, management, and conduct of telephone companies has, so far as I am aware, ever been held by any governmental agency. Investigations of this department have dealt only with certain suggested violations of the Sherman Anti-Trust act, but the whole problem of the relation of the Government to the transmission of intelligence by telephone and telegraph is one of such far-reaching importance and so affects the welfare of the entire community that it appears to me to be a subject which should be thoroughly studied from the standpoint of the public, in order that a governmental policy with respect to the telephone and telegraph business may be intelligently formulated and adopted. The Inter-State Commerce Commission is clothed with the powers above referred to, and the subject is one affecting such general public interest that I venture to suggest that you undertake this work. If these suggestions commend themselves to your honorable body I beg to add that all of the information which has been collected in this department bearing upon the subject will be put at your disposal."

Commission Will Investigate.

The Inter-State Commerce Commission soon will make an order providing for the investigation. The commission has determined already to undertake the inquiry. This investigation will be the outcome of the alliance between the Western Union Telegraph Company and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Complaints by independent telephone companies against the American Telephone and Telegraph Company were made to the Department of Justice, and Attorney General Wickersham looked into them with a view to possible prosecution. One of the complaints was that the American Telephone and Telegraph Company had purchased competing lines in order to destroy competition. It was charged that the company had declined to make connections for independent lines and canceled contracts for interchange of business.

Another allegation was that the company discriminated in favor of the Western Union Telegraph Company by not giving satisfactory facilities for communication by telephone with the Postal Telegraph Company. Charges were made also that rates had been increased where no competition existed and reduced where there was competition. Some of the independent companies thought that the American company should interchange business with them under arrangements similar to those which are made between railroad companies but the American Telephone and Telegraph Company declined to do this on the ground that such interchange was not required by law and was impracticable

Subjects for Regulation.

"Many of these questions, it seems to me," wrote the Attorney General to the Chairman of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, "cannot be appropriately dealt with by the Law Department of the Government, but should be made the subject of regulation after a careful investigation of the whole subject by your honorable body. The powers vested in you by statute appear to me to be ample to enable you to make a comprehensive and thorough investigation of the matter. It may be that as a result of such investigation you will conclude that additional legislation should be suggested to Congress.

"Quite a number of the States have enacted laws vesting in public utilities commissions or similar bodies jurisdiction, which has been executed in some instances, with respect to the acquisition of telephone lines of one company by another, and with respect to the interchange of business and facilities between telegraph and telephone lines. State regulation, however, cannot be a satisfactory method of ultimate solution of the questions arising out of telephone operation.

"The value of a telephone service depends largely upon the facility of connecting every individual telephone user with any point upon any telephone line in the United States, but this should be attained under conditions which secure to the public the maximum of convenience upon the most reasonable terms consistent with a fair return upon the investment and under suitable supervision and control by your honorable body.

"The Inter-State Commerce act, as at present in force, makes telegraph, telephone, and cable companies engaged in sending messages from one State, Territory, or district of the United States to any other State, Territory, or district of the United States, or to any foreign country, common carriers within the meaning and purpose of the act. It requires all charges for the service rendered in the transmission of messages by telegraph, telephone, or cable in inter-State or foreign commerce or in connection therewith to be just and reasonable, and makes it unlawful for any common carrier subject to the provisions of the act to make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any particular person or locality, or to any particular description of traffic in any respect whatsoever, or to subject any particular person, company, or locality or any particular description of traffic to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever.

"The sixth section of the act, which requires common carriers subject to its provisions to file with the commission and print and keep open to public inspection schedules of rates, fares, and charges is probably not broad enough to extend to telegraph and telephone companies, but the fifteenth section confers upon the commission ample power of investigation on its own initiative."

Gas Receivership Dissolved.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 20.—Receivers of the Kansas City Gas Company were to-day discharged by Judge Van Valkenburgh in the Federal court here, and the company was restored to the former status. The receivers were appointed three weeks ago by Judge Van Valkenburgh on application of the Welsbach Gas Light Company, a creditor. The dissolution of the receivership was asked on the ground that the claims against the company had been satisfied, and that the receivers could do nothing until after the question of an advance in the price of gas by the Kansas Natural Gas Company was passed on by Judge Pollock next month.

Wheat Sells Off Further — Another Sharp Break in Cotton Options.

Wheat reacted further yesterday from its recent advance. World exports were larger, and the foreign markets sent lower prices. Corn was relatively firm, but prices receded late in the day. Oats held steady in a quiet market. Provisions were firmer, reflecting a rise in the price of hogs. Cotton was under selling pressure and showed a net decline of from 15 to 24 points. Cottonseed oil was irregular, the later months showing a 5 to 8 points decline.

WHEAT.

There was further heavy selling in the wheat market, and prices for the day lost ½@¾c. At the low point of the day the market showed a loss of about 2¾c from the high point of the recent upward movement, which culminated on Thursday. Sentiment appeared to be more bearish, and the decline was attributed to overbought conditions and the fact that the export demand had not followed the recent advance. Furthermore, the situation abroad was more against values. Foreign markets were generally lower, and private cables stated that there was heavy selling owing to larger world's exports, lower Canadian and Argentine offers, as well as predictions of larger shipments from Argentina and a less active demand for cargoes. It is regarded as clearly demonstrated whether or not the decline of the last few days has been more than a natural reaction or whether the advance had discounted the bullish features. Considerable interest was attracted by conflicting reports regarding the invisible supply, one authority showing that total interior receipts so far have been larger in proportion to the size of the crop than during the whole season last year, while a Northwestern authority estimates that there are 100,000,000 bushels of wheat available in the country tributary to Minneapolis and Duluth. World's exports were 11,520,000 bushels, compared with 9,898,000 last week and 8,096,000 last year. The visible supply of native wheat in the United States increased 845,000 bushels, while total stocks of native and bonded wheat decreased 291,600 bushels, compared with a decrease last year of 2,258,000. The weather over the West was much colder, but this caused little apprehension, as warmer weather was predicted for Tuesday. In the local market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.09 elevator and $1.10 f. o. b., afloat; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.01¼ f. o. b., afloat.

CORN.

The corn market showed a very steady undertone in view of the weakness in wheat, but prices late in the day were rather heavy, closing at a net decline of ¼c. The foreign markets were irregular with Plate grade firm as a result of further complaints regarding dry weather in Argentina, but American corn was said to be easier with increased offerings. The movement was liberal at interior points, but shipments were also large, and there appeared to be little pressure of the spot article on the market. The visible supply increased 828,000 bushels, compared with a decrease last year of 368,000 bushels. World's exports were 5,441,000 bushels, compared with 3,005,000 bushels last week, and 3,154,000 bushels last year. Export corn in the local market was quoted at 56¾c, free on board, afloat.

OATS.

There was a comparatively quiet trade in oats, but there was little pressure to sell and prices held steady, closing net unchanged for the day. The visible supply increased 523,000 bushels, compared with a decrease last year of 735,000. The local cash market was easy; standard white, 29c; No. 3, 32c; No. 4, 37½c; natural white, 37c to 39c; white clipped, 38c to 41c, all track.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was firmer early in sympathy with the advance in the hog market and on buying credited to leading packers, but later in the day developed a slightly easier tone in sympathy with the decline in grain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 44,000, estimated for Tuesday, 32,000; Kansas City received 7,000 and Omaha 7,700.

COTTON.

The cotton market was again weak and unsettled, with May contracts selling as low as 11.06c, or $6.85 per bale under the high records of last December. Weakness in Liverpool and heavy selling here, which seemed to come from Southern sources, and which was attributed by many to hedging against spot supplies in the interior, seemed to account for the extreme severity of sentiment. While prices rallied in the late trading, the improvement seemed the result of covering rather than of increased interest on the long side. The closing tone was steady, but last prices still showed a net decline of from 15 to 24 points. Business was extremely active on the decline during the forenoon, but became comparatively quiet on the rally, although there was another spurt just before the close as a result of selling orders received here from Memphis.

The market opened at a decline of 13 to 17 points. After selling about 21 to 23 points net lower, there was a rally of 8 or 9 points on covering or buying for a recovery, but a good deal of cotton was met on the advance, much of which seemed to come from Southern sources, and the market soon weakened again, with old crop positions selling 23 to 28 points net lower late in the forenoon. At this level the offerings became less aggressive, and while the undertone of the market showed little improvement, prices rallied from the lowest, with the close showing a recovery of some 9 or 10 points.

Southern spot news was somewhat conflicting. Most of the advices claimed continued steadiness in the interior and said that spots showed little disposition to meet the decline in contracts. There were some few advices, however, of easier markets, chiefly from Memphis, which, in connection with the Southern selling of futures here, tended to encourage bearish sentiment. The talk around the ring suggested a feeling that there was still liquidation hanging over the market either in the way of contracts or in the matter of spots, and many predictions of an ultimate break in the Southern markets were heard during the day's operations. Two of the more prominent New Orleans traders were in the market during the day, and both spoke favorably of cotton at the present level of prices, but one of the big local spot houses was credited with selling, while there was heavy Wall Street and uptown offerings at times during the session. Private cables from Liverpool attributed the sharp break there to American and Continental selling, combined with freer offerings of actual cotton.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were unchanged to ¼c lower, mostly ⅛c to ¼c lower. The local market for spot cotton was quiet and unchanged at 12.90 for middling upland; sales nil; delivered on contract, 5,800 bales.

The range of contract prices in the local market was:

COTTONSEED OIL.

The cottonseed oil market was irregular, the spot position showing steadiness, owing to small offerings, while the late positions were easy, prices at the close being 1 point higher for January and 5 to 8 points lower for other months. The firmness in lard and the continuid small offerings of crude oil caused some covering, but the sharp decline in cotton had considerable influence on sentiment and caused more or less liquidation.

COFFEE.

At the opening values were 3 to 8 points lower, but a steadier feeling soon developed. Late in the day values declined quickly, closing at a net loss of 8 to 12 points, on total sales of 90,750 bags. Rio came 50 reis higher, while Santos was unchanged to 50 reis up, and cost and freight offers were generally unchanged. Havre closed ¼f net higher and Hamburg unchanged to ¼ pfennig advance.

Spot coffee nominally unchanged, 13½c for Rio 7.

Total warehouse deliveries in the United States for the week were 140,239 bags, against 120,955 bags last week, and 96,151 bags last year. Of the former amount New York had 97,933 bags.

Receipts at Rio and Santos last week were 125,000 bags, against 143,000 bags last week, 128,000 bags last year and 88,000 bags two years ago.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Benjamin Stern Buys Park Avenue Apartment, Giving Fifth Avenue Block Front in $1,400,000 Deal—Harlem Apartment in $450,000 Trade—Bronx and Brooklyn Markets.

Apartment house investment buying, which has lately been confined to the west side, was transferred yesterday to the eastern part of the city, and one of the newest apartments on Park Avenue changed hands. The deal had a trade feature involving an upper Fifth Avenue block, and the total value of the properties aggregated about $1,400,000. The Park Avenue house sold is the twelve-story structure known as 970 Park Avenue, on the southwest corner of Eighty-third Street. The buyer is Benjamin Stern. The sellers were the building operators Bing & Bing, who have put up several high-class houses in both the eastern and western parts of the city, and are now erecting a seventeen-story apartment on the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-ninth Street.

B. Rosenstock was the broker in the present transaction. The property acquired by Mr. Stern covers a plot 102.2 by 90. It was erected a year ago by the sellers, and is fully rented. The Eighty-second Street corner adjoining is also covered with a new twelve-story building.

In part payment Mr. Stern gave to Bing & Bing the block front on Fifth Avenue, between 104th and 105th Streets, fronting 201.10 on the avenue by 200 on each street. It is entirely vacant except a five-story flat on one of the 104th Street lots. The greater part of the block has been owned by Mr. Stern for ten years. Negotiations are pending, it is stated, for a resale of the block front by the new owners.

$450,000 Harlem Apartment Deal.

The gradual resumption of activity in Harlem realty, which has been shown in several good deals within the last few weeks, was again evidenced in an important apartment house deal yesterday, which, forming part of a trade, involved a transfer of properties aggregating in value about $450,000. The larger end of the deal included the six-story apartment house, known as the Mount Morris, on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and 126th Street, fronting 99.11 feet on the avenue and 120 feet on the street. It has been sold by the Two-Thousand-Forty-One Fifth Avenue Company to the Latham Realty Company, Anthony Schwoerer, Jr., President. The latter gave in part payment a plot of six lots on the northeast corner of Broadway and 130th Street, 150 by 100, and which was acquired about a year ago from Mrs. Regina Golla in exchange for an apartment on 173d Street and Audubon Avenue. In the present deal the Mount Morris house figured at a valuation of $300,000, and the Broadway lots at $150,000.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Kurz & Uren, Inc., have sold for Sarah Arnold the northwest corner of 127th Street and Madison Avenue, a four-story and basement private dwelling.

Recent Buyers.

The William Bonhay estate is the buyer of the flat house property at 2378 to 2382 Bathgate Avenue in the Borough of the Bronx, recently sold by S. Oppenheimer & Co.

Frank Brothers, shoe dealers, are the buyers of the five-story Rovert Building at 588 Fifth Avenue, on a plot 27.6 by 100, located between Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Streets, reported sold last week. The purchasers hold a lease on the premises purchased, but have never occupied any part of the building. John M. Golding negotiated the deal for the owner, Henry G. Trevor.

Title Passes to Whitney Mansion.

The new owners of the old Whitney mansion, on the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, took title from Harry Payne Whitney to the property yesterday. With it is included the adjoining house at 732 Fifth Avenue. The new owners are the 734 Fifth Avenue Company, of which August Heckscher is the controlling factor. The property was sold a short time ago for about $2,000,000.

Bronx Borough.

The five-story apartment house, with stores, at 1,941 and 1,943 Southern Boulevard has been sold by the builder, John McNulty, to an investor. The property has a frontage of 55 feet on Southern Boulevard, 107 feet on the south side, and 84 feet on the north side, and is 82 feet south of 177th Street, or Tremont Avenue, on the west side of Southern Boulevard.

A client of Richard H. Scobie is the buyer.

Brooklyn.

The largest deal of the present year in the Park Slope section of Brooklyn was reported yesterday by Burrill Brothers, who sold for Thomas Corrigan the row of six four-story double flathouses 207 to 215 Eighth Avenue and 563 Second Street.

The buildings occupy a plot 117 feet on Second Avenue and 100 feet on Eighth Avenue, and have been held at $130,000. A Manhattan investor is the buyer.

Greenfield.

The Borden Milk Company has purchased from Cornelius W. Clark a plot, 50 by 90, on the west side of Steinway Avenue, 126 feet south of Pierce Avenue, Long Island City. The property adjoins the business plant of the Borden Company, which is to be enlarged.

New Jersey.

J. R. Appleby of Perth Amboy has sold sixty acres of land at Tuckerton, N. J., to Mrs. Margaret Kempsey for investment. F. Schuyler Dunn was the broker in the transaction.

Ridgewood Auction a Success.

Bryan L. Kennelly sold at auction last Saturday seventy-five Ridgewood lots on the premises at the corner of Dill Place and Millwood Avenue, Queens. Every lot was sold at very satisfactory prices. They brought from $400 to $900 each and were purchased both by local builders and Brooklyn and Manhattan homeseekers. Among the buyers were Leon Luft, Mary A. Debevoise, Charles Franke, John Yanken, A. Weigert, Louis Mehrmann, George F. Whideman, George W. Schwille, Henry Galley, D. Mahlmann, Michael F. Sugrue and Adolph Bauman. The sale was one of the very few lot sales ever held on the premises in winter.

Commercial Leases.

The Cross & Brown Company has leased the 50-foot dwelling at 15 East Fifty-second Street for Harley T. Proctor to "Thurn," a dressmaker, who, for twenty years, has been located at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street. The lease is for twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of $500,000. Extensive alterations will be made to the dwelling, which was built about eight years ago, from plans by Donn Barber.

ON LONG ISLAND SOUND
Many will desire to purchase
Only a Few May Own at

Southfield Point
Stamford, Conn.

A beautiful peninsula jutting into Long Island Sound has been parked, boulevarded, and fully improved for residential sites. A few waterfront plots—all have water privileges. The smallest contains 13,500 square feet; the largest covers about two acres. There are only seventy-nine plots in all. The property is restricted to houses of character, seven thousand dollars being fixed as the minimum cost of any house that may be built.

This superb waterfront location, in a select community, with golf links, tennis courts and yacht clubs in the vicinity, presents the unusual opportunity for a few persons of means and culture to secure ideal sites for suburban homes.

The completed plotting of the seventy-nine parcels will be shown on request by addressing or calling for Booklet "B."

WOULD EXTEND SIXTH AVE.

George A. Hearn Also Wants Better Lights Under the Elevated.

In commenting upon the proposed extension of Seventh Avenue through to the wholesale district, George A. Hearn, the merchant, said yesterday afternoon that Sixth Avenue should be cut through in the same way. He pointed to the fact that the department store proprietors within the area bounded by Fourteenth Street, Sixth Avenue, Twenty-third Street and Broadway paid annually to the city $8,000,000 in taxes. In addition to the extension of Sixth Avenue to the downtown wholesale district he asserted that the merchants in and around Sixth Avenue were anxious for better lighting facilities in that thoroughfare.

"A heavy coat of aluminum paint should be applied to the elevated structure and large arc lamps swung beneath," Mr. Hearn said. "This would give to the avenue the appearance of a promenade."

He asserted that if a line were drawn across the map of the city from Fourteenth Street, crossing both the East and North Rivers, it would be found that 2,000,000 persons live south of that street —1,500,000 in Brooklyn and the rest in lower Manhattan, Staten Island and New Jersey. He said that 120,000,000 persons entered the shopping district in the vicinity of Fourteenth Street and Sixth Avenue last year by means of the Subway, elevated and surface lines. When the new Seventh Avenue subway was in operation, with an express station at Fourteenth Street, he predicted that the present traffic would be doubled.

"It is inevitable that the Hudson will eventually be crossed at some point between Twenty-third and Fourteenth Streets," said Mr. Hearn, "either by a bridge or a tunnel."

Mr. Hearn said that the merchants of the district expected to co-operate in establishing free motorbus lines to connect with the elevated and subway lines. In the meantime, he insisted, the city should do its part toward improving street and lighting conditions in the district.

Fourth: All other lines of railway and additional mileage of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railway Company, and other property of any kind and nature which on May 2, 1905, was owned or held by said Railway Company or thereafter acquired by it by means of the said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage bonds, or with the proceeds of the sale or disposition thereof, or from the fund of two million five hundred thousand dollars mentioned in the recitals of the said mortgage and referred to in sub-division 4th of the description of the property mortgaged contained in the said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage.

The properties above described covered by said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage have heretofore been operated as one railroad system, but are so situated with respect to the liens thereon as to compel a sale in separate parcels. The said properties consist of two parcels, to wit: The first parcel, the Ohio Southern Division, containing 223.85 miles, comprising all and singular the line of railroad from the City of Lima, in Allen County, Ohio, through the Counties of Allen, Auglaize, Shelby, Logan, Champaign, Clarke, Madison, Fayette, Highland, Ross, Pike, Jackson, Gallia, and Lawrence, in said State, to the Village of Rockwood, in said Lawrence County, and all branches, additions, and extensions thereof, including the branch or branches extending from said main line at Jeffersonville, Fayette County, northeastwardly through Fayette and Madison Counties to Sedalia, and from said Jeffersonville southwestwardly through Fayette, Greene, and Clinton Counties to Kingman, all in said State of Ohio. The second parcel, that portion of the said Railway which extends from Delray (Detroit) to Lima, containing 137.6 miles, known as the Northern Division, and that portion of the said Railway which extends from Bloom Junction to Ironton, including the Dean Branch, containing 36.12 miles, known as the Southern Division, there being operated in conjunction with the said Northern and Southern Divisions forty-three miles of leased lines of railroad, making 216.72 miles of owned and leased lines in the Northern and Southern Divisions of 216.72 miles.

The properties covered by said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage will therefore be sold as follows: The Special Master Commissioner will first put up for sale that portion of the property known as the Ohio Southern Division described as aforesaid, subject nevertheless to the mortgage thereof from Detroit Southern Railroad Company to Central Trust Company of New York, dated June 1, 1901, to secure authorized issue of bonds aggregating $4,500,000 of principal, bearing interest at the rate of four per centum per annum, payable semi-annually March and September 1st, and under which bonds to the aggregate principal sum of $4,495,000 have been issued and are outstanding. Said principal outstanding sum has been matured. There is now due upon said bonds $4,495,000 of principal, besides interest thereon at the rate of four per centum per annum from September 1, 1910. Suit for foreclosure upon said mortgage has been brought and decree of foreclosure and sale was entered therein by the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, December 19, 1912. The Special Master Commissioner will then and whether or not any bid has been received or accepted upon the offering of the Ohio Southern Division immediately put up for sale the parts of the property known as the Northern Division and the Southern Division, generally described as aforesaid, and he will then and whether or not any bid has been received or accepted upon the offering either of the Ohio Southern Division or the Northern and Southern Divisions, immediately put up for sale the entire property as a unit.

The offerings of the separate divisions will in each case be subject to the sale of the property as a whole and the Master shall not be bound to accept the bid or bids which it shall deem the highest and best in the interests of the parties. With each divisional parcel sold there will be included and sold as part thereof one-half in value and as nearly as may be one-half in kind of the description of the supplies and materials in the possession of the receiver at the time of sale, division thereof to be made by the Receiver subject to the supervisory order of the Court; and with each divisional parcel sold there will be included and sold as part thereof, the cars and equipment generally belonging thereto, to wit: in the case of the Ohio Southern Division the cars and equipment included within the Ohio Southern Division Mortgage to Central Trust Company of New York, hereinbefore described, and in the case of the Northern and Southern Divisions the cars and equipment included in the General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage to The New York Trust Company, hereinbefore described; and with each divisional parcel sold there will be included and sold as part thereof, the equipment purchased under authority of the Court during the receivership.

The identity of the equipment will in all cases be determined by the Receiver, in accordance with the records in his possession, and subject to the supervisory order of the Court, no property shall be sold as a part of the said supplies and equipment will be included and sold as part thereof. In any event, the purchaser of any equipment which at the time of the sale shall be held under Equipment Trust Agreements or Agreements of Conditional Sale or Purchase shall take the said property subject to all the terms and conditions of such Trust Agreement or Agreement for Repairs or Purchase, including all provisions for deferred payments; and such purchaser shall by such purchase be held to have assumed and to have agreed to carry out and fulfill the terms and conditions of the said agreements affecting the equipment so purchased by him.

The equipment, or parts thereof, is subject to the following equipment trust agreements or agreements for repairs or purchase:

Agreement with American Locomotive Company, dated September 15, 1909, for purchase of eight locomotives, numbered 100 to 107, inclusive, requiring periodical payments to September 15, 1913; amount due after December 1st, 1912, $27,911.25.

Agreement with American Locomotive Company, dated December 1, 1910, for purchase of twelve locomotives, numbered 108 to 119, inclusive, requiring periodical payments to January 14, 1916; amount due after December 1st, 1912, $77,400.

Agreement accepted November 1, 1911, with Crawford Locomotive & Car Company, for repairing two hundred gondola coal cars and two hundred box cars, requiring semi-monthly payments on basis "per diem" rates until full payment; amount due after December 1st, 1912, $36,655.15.

Agreement accepted November 9, 1912, with Central Locomotive & Car Works for repair of one thousand gondola coal cars and one thousand box cars, payments to be semi-monthly on basis of forty-five cents per day per car until full payment; amount due after December 1st, 1912, approximately, $500,000.

Agreement accepted November 19, 1912, with Norfolk & Western Railway Company, for repairs to five locomotives, payment to be made in receiver's certificates; amount due after December 1st, 1912, approximately, $15,000.

Agreement accepted November 9, 1912, with Central Locomotive and Car Works for purchase of five hundred second hand coal cars, payments to be made semi-monthly on basis of forty-five cents per day per car until full payment; amount due after December 1st, 1912, $157,395.60.

In the event that the properties shall not be sold as a unit but in separate parcels, as in this notice hereinbefore provided, any receiver's obligations and indebtedness incurred after Septembr 1, 1912, and any indebtedness which, pursuant to the provisions of the said amended decrees or the further order of the said court shall have priority over the said Ohio Southern Division Mortgage and said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage, or either of them, shall be divided between and charged upon the respective divisions of the said railroad in accordance with the principles established by the report of the Master filed in the said Court in the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division, December 9, 1912, subject to the further supervisory order of the said court.

The said Master Commissioner will accept no bid of less than $1,550,000 for the Ohio Southern Division upon a sale thereof as a separate parcel; he will accept no bid of less than $1,650,000 upon the Northern and Southern Divisions upon a sale thereof as a separate parcel, and he will accept no bid of less than $3,200,000 for the whole property upon a sale thereof as a unit. The said minimum sums were fixed by the Court in the said decrees in order to prevent a sacrifice and to protect the intrests of all concerned as the least sums for which the said properties respectively should be sold. The Master will not accept any bid unless the bidder shall place in his hands at the time of the bid, as a part of his bid and a pledge to make the same good if accepted and the sale confirmed, the following sums in cash, to wit: Upon a bid for the Ohio Southern Division the sum of $100,000; upon a bid for the Northern and Southern Divisions the sum of $100,000, and upon a bid for the whole property as a unit, the sum of $200,000. Said sums may be placed with the said Master Commissioner by certified cheque or certificate of deposit approved by the Master. The sum of deposit will be forfeited in case the bidder, if successful, shall fail to make good his bid and comply with the terms of the said decrees and any orders hereafter made as to future payments or otherwise; but each of said different sums may be applied on the purchase price of the parcel for the whole property in respect of which the deposit is made in case of such compliance by the purchaser, or returned in case the bid in question is not confirmed by the Court. The deposits in respect of either or both the parcels may, at the option of the bidder, be increased on account of the required deposit for a bid on the whole property.

The court reserves the right to reject any bid and to resell the property in respect of which the bid shall have been made or any part thereof upon failure of the purchaser to comply with any order of the Court as to payment of the remainder of the purchase price or any part thereof.

There shall be paid in cash of the price at which the said property shall be sold, in addition to the amounts paid at the time of the sale, those portions of the purchase money as the Court shall direct. The remainder of the purchase money may be paid as follows:

Upon a sale of the Ohio Southern Division wholly or partly in cash and in claims payable under article 3 of said amended decree, or in receiver's certificates payable under article 3 of said amended decree, to the extent and proportion that such claims and receiver's certificates are by said amended decree charged upon the Ohio Southern Division.

Upon a sale of the Northern and Southern Divisions wholly or partly in cash and in claims payable under article 3 of said amended decree, or in receiver's certificates payable under article 3 of said amended decree, to the extent and proportion that such claims and receiver's certificates are by said amended decree charged upon the Northern and Southern Divisions.

Upon a sale of the whole property as a unit in cash or in claims payable under article 3 of said amended decree, or in receiver's certificates payable under article 3 of said amended decree; and also upon a sale of the Northern and Southern Divisions or of the whole property as a unit in said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage Bonds, with overdue coupons thereon, or in said consolidated bonds, with overdue coupons thereon, at such proportion of value as the holders of the same would be entitled to receive thereon on distribution of the proceeds of such sale in case such price were wholly paid in cash.

All taxes and assessments upon the property sold and all said receiver's certificates and all claims payable under article 3 of said amended decree, will be allowed out of the purchase money where the purchaser produces proofs of such liens and claims and receipts therefor or surrenders such receiver's certificates. The Special Master will in his discretion accept temporarily instead of the actual delivery of the said bonds and coupons or receiver's certificate, the certificate of any trust company satisfactory to him that it holds the said bonds and coupons or receiver's certificates subject to the order of said Master, and will deliver them to him on demand for cancellation or other disposition.

Included in the upset price of the Ohio Southern Division above mentioned is the sum of $139,940.80, with interest accrued thereon, and in the upset price of the Northern and Southern Divisions is the sum of $105,059.20, with interest accrued thereon, being items set forth in subdivision 2, in Schedule A, of a certain Master's report filed in said cause December 9, 1912, and the purchaser or purchasers in lieu of depositing in the Registry of the Court said respective sums with interest may, as part of the purchase price, deliver a bond therefor as provided in said decree.

The said Special Master, in pursuance and by virtue of the amended decrees of foreclosure and sale in favor of Columbia Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant, made and entered by said District Courts of the United States in this advertisement of sale first mentioned, dated and entered on the same days and in the same places as the said decrees in favor of The New York Trust Company, complainant, will also at the same time and place offer for sale and in separate parcels all other lines of railway and additional mileage of the defendant Railway Company and other property of any kind and nature which has been constructed or acquired in whole or in part by means of said Consolidated Bonds or with the proceeds of the sale or disposition thereof; subject only to purchase money liens thereon as in said Consolidated Mortgage set forth, not including in said property, however, any property which is subject to the said lien Divisional First Mortgage (all of which said property subject to said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage, is to be sold under and pursuant to the preceding provisions of this notice); one hundred shares of the stock of the Toledo Southern Railway Company and ten hundred and fourteen shares of preferred stock of the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, being certain property of the said Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railway Company included in the mortgage deed of trust from that company to Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant herein, dated May 2, 1905, to secure certain bonds designated as Consolidated bonds. The Master will accept no bid for the shares of stock from any bidder who shall not place in his hands or deposit with him at the time of making the bid, as a pledge that the bidder will make good his bid if accepted by the Court, the sum of twenty-five dollars per share in cash, certified cheque or certificate of deposit approved by the Master, which sum shall be forfeited in case the bidder if successful shall fail to make good his bid and comply with the terms of the said decrees, and any orders thereafter made as to future payments or otherwise, but which said sum shall be applied on the purchase price of the said stock in case of such compliance, or will be returned in case the said bid is not successful or the sale shall not be confirmed by the court. The right of the court is reserved to reject any bid and to resell the said stock, or any part thereof, upon the failure of the purchaser to comply with any order of the Court as to the payment of the purchase price or any part thereof, in case or any, as may be directed. If either of the said properties, not, as aforesaid, subject to the General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage or the said shares of stock, shall be purchased by or on behalf of the holders of the said consolidated bonds, the remainder of the purchase price over and above the amount in cash required to be paid at the time of sale, may be paid either in cash or in receivers' certificates, or in claims payable under Article 3 of the aforesaid decree of The New York Trust Company, or in said Consolidated Bonds and overdue coupons thereon, at such proportionate value as the holders thereof will be entitled to receive thereon respectively on distribution of the proceeds of such sale, in case such purchase price were wholly paid in cash.

Any person proposing to purchase at the said sale either the said railway properties or the said stock, is referred to the said decrees in this notice specifically mentioned, for a more full and complete description of the property, rights and franchises therein directed to be sold, which it is proposed to sell in accordance with the foregoing notice, and also for the terms and conditions upon which the sale of such properties, rights and franchises shall be made. Business Opportunities

BUY AN IRRIGATED CALIFORNIA FARM.

In the fertile Sacramento Valley in California, is the most productive soil on the Continent. Everything grows. As soon as one crop is harvested, the ground is ready for another. Several different crops a year being a rule. Hence, the wonderful profits.

The climate rivals that of Southern Italy. Oranges and other fruits ripen weeks earlier than in Los Angeles, Riverside or Redlands. This is where the land works for you. This is your opportunity to win.

You can secure one of these farms on remarkably easy terms—make your home where fortunes are being made from small fruit farms—where frosts, drouth, ice, and snow are unknown—where the sunshine makes the orange, figs, lemons, and berries grow almost every day in the year.

INJUNCTION BARS GARMENT PICKETS

Blanket Order Obtained by Firms in the Clothing Manufacturers' Association.

STRIKERS FIGHT THE POLICE

Third Week of the Walkout Starts with Serious Disturbances—Fifty Persons Arrested.

The most serious disturbance since it began marked the start of the third week in the strike of 110,000 workers in the men's and boys' garment industry yesterday. More than fifty persons were arrested. Among the prisoners was Ephraim Kaufmann, a member of the Executive Committee of the United Garment Workers' Union of America. Late in the afternoon Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum issued a temporary blanket injunction restraining the union, its President, Thomas A. Rickert, and others from putting pickets near any of the nineteen tailoring establishments which are members of the New York Clothing Trade Association. It was the first blanket injunction issued in the present strike, and it was expected to lead to serious trouble because of the union's stand that picketing was within the law.

The nineteen firms which joined in the application for the injunction were among the largest in the country, and it was in the neighborhood of their factories that most of the fights of the last three weeks occurred. The injunction will tend to bar picketing from Broadway, Astor Place, Lafayette Place, Eighth and Ninth Streets. It was estimated that from 8,000 to 10,000 pickets had stood guard in these thoroughfares since the beginning of the strike.

The hearing on the application to make the injunction permanent will be held next Friday before Justice Hendrick in the Supreme Court. It was said yesterday that the union would ask for a postponement, as it did yesterday in the hearing on the temporary injunction obtained last week by the Rosenthal Manufacturing Company of 563 Broadway.

A full list of the members of the New York Clothing Trade Association was filed with the affidavit of Eugene S. Benjamin, President of the association, which accompanied his application for the injunction. This list was refused by Mr. Benjamin when reporters asked for it early in the strike. Here it is:

The Alfred Benjamin Company, 440 Lafayette Street; Cohen, Goldman & Co., 2 East Fourth Street; Heidelberg, Wolff & Co., Broadway and Bleecker Street; Hornthal, Benjamin & Reim, 22 East Fourteenth Street; Klee & Co., Lafayette and Fourth Streets; Kornmann, Cohen & Ettlinger, 41 East Eleventh Street; H. Kuhn & Sons, Inc., 82 Broadway; Lange & Walsh Manufacturing Company, 760 Broadway; David Marks & Sons, 689 Broadway; M. & W. Naumberg & Co., 41 East Eleventh Street; Henry Peavy & Co., University Place and Eighth Street; Samuel Peck & Co., 808 Broadway; Present & Co., 506 Broadway; the Rogers, Peet Company, Broadway and Thirteenth Street; the Washington Clothing Company, 10 Astor Place; Joseph Yeska, 725 Broadway; Hays, Levi & Co., 110 Fifth Avenue; the Nedwill-Taylor Company, 48 East Twenty-first Street, and Fruhauf Brothers & Co., 53 West Fourteenth Street.

According to Mr. Benjamin's affidavit the aggregate annual busines done by the association was approximately $30,000,000, and the firms employ, as Mr. Benjamin said, some 13,000 workers in this city with annual salaries approximating $10,000,000. The union officials compared these statements last with previous statements made by members of the New York Clothing Trade Association to the effect that the association controlled 65 per cent. of the city's annual output of $200,000,000 worth of men's and boys' clothing, and that it employed from 50,000 to 70,000 workers in the industry.

Referring to the unsuccessful efforts of the Chamber of Commerce to terminate the strike when it was still in its infancy, Mr. Benjamin asserted in his affidavit that the unwillingness of the union to accept the terms agreed on showed conclusively that "it was unionization that the leaders were after, and only that."

"The conditions imposed by the labor leaders to their acceptance of the proposal of the Chamber of Commerce, an arbitrary and indiscriminate increase of wages, were unjust and impossible," Mr. Benjamin said. "Thereupon the friendly efforts of the Chamber of Commerce came to regrettable close," he continues, "and the strike went on with violence, intimidation, assaults, riots, destruction of property, paralysis of business, and impairment of the whole commercial fabric of the City of New York and in a degree throughout the United States."

The fighting yesterday began at 4 o'clock in the morning, and long after the factories had closed for the day reports of arrests continued to come in. The union officials asserted that the presence of so many private detectives on the sidewalks in front of the factories was responsible for the trouble; that these detectives, in most cases, started the fighting. The manufacturers, on the other hand, maintained that hundreds of thugs from the east side had been hired by the union to start the disturbances. These thugs, they said, when arrested, said they were strikers. Union officials pointed out that of all the fifty or more persons arrested yesterday none was a private detective in the employ of the manufacturers.

Ephraim Kaufmann, business agent of the union, was arrested at 7:30 o'clock in the morning as he was walking down Lafayette Street near the factory of the Alfred Benjamin Company. There had been a series of fights in the neighborhood earlier in the day, and many policemen and private detectives were on duty there. When a few hundred striking pickets approached a strikebreaker who was just going to work, policemen with night sticks in their hands interfered.

One policeman, according to Mr. Kaufmann, swung his club right and left, hitting many of the strikers.

Mr. Kaufmann was later discharged in the Jefferson Market Court by Magistrate McQuade. One of the nine men arrested with him was fined $10 for using abusive language, and the others were discharged.

The first fight of the day was at 4 o'clock in the morning, near the Astor Place Subway Station. Double forces of pickets had been stationed near this station in anticipation of the arrival of strike breakers. From 4 o'clock until 8 o'clock in the morning there were constant conflicts at this point. All of the pickets arrested were charged with disorderly conduct except Jacob Cebardo of 11 Hamilton Place, Brooklyn. A billy was found in his pocket, according to the police, and he was charged with carrying concealed weapons.

At Fourth Street and Broadway two men were arrested for assaulting a policeman. They were Jacob Berkowitz of 64 Avenue C and Isaac Rosen of 22 Pitt Street. Berkowitz was charged with knocking Patrolman White down. When taken to the Mercer Street Station, after much trouble, Berkowitz, according to the police, tried to climb over the rail in front of the Lieutenant's desk to assault Lieut. Finn.

STRIKERS SLOW TO GO BACK.

Some 14,000 Report for Work in Waist Trade Instead of 20,000.

Between 13,000 and 14,000 strikers in the dress and waist industry, according to officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, returned to work yesterday under the protocol which was signed on Saturday. This was from 6,000 to 7,000 below the number it was expected would return, and the shortage brought up the report again that the Industrial Workers of the World had succeeded in upsetting the plan of the Settlement Committee, and that another strike would be called.

"The Industrial Workers of the World seek an advertisement by their attitude in this affair," said Abraham Rosenberg, President of the Ladies' International Garment Workers' Union, which is allied with the American Federation of Labor. "The I. W. W. made a failure in the waiters' strike, and they are now looking for a chance to redeem themselves.

"But they won't succeed. The dress and waist makers' strike is over and the settlement was a great victory for the union. The amount of clerical work necessary to get the working cards out for those employes who are going back under the protocol has swamped the union temporarily, and it will require three or four days until all the cards can be distributed. By that time nearly all of the strikers will be at work under the new agreement."

On behalf of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association it was said that the outlook was very bright. A new count, it was said, showed that there are 726 shops in the city where dresses and waists were made. Of this number 400 were large shops, and of these 400, it was asserted, the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association had 165 on its books, representing 70 per cent. of the total output of the local trade. Many applications for membership, it was said, were pending.

A committee of eleven men representing the so-called independents, who are not members of the association, met Samuel Floersheimer, President, and Julius Henry Cohen, counsel of the association, at the Hoffman House yesterday, and after the meeting it was announced that the committeemen had decided to advise their associates who will meet this afternoon at the Hotel Imperial to adopt the protocol. At least fifty independents, it was said, were expected to become parties to the new agreement.

Union cards were issued yesterday at 18 West Twenty-first Street, and the strikers all seemed pleased to go back to work with an increase in pay. Many Italian girls, among whom the protocol was viewed with least favor, appeared to get their working cards.

ROB WOMAN GARMENT WORKER

Men Follow Italian Widow to Her Home and Beat Her.

On her way home from work at 35 Bond Street, where she is employed as a garment operator, Mrs. Maria Deluca, an Italian widow living in two rear rooms on the first floor of 196 Allen Street, saw last night that men were following her. At first she thought that they might be strikers, but when she had reached her rooms she forgot her fears, and in response to a knock at her door a few minutes later opened it.

As the door opened six or eight men, in the confusion she could not tell how many, ran in and seized her before she could make an outcry. She struggled against them and broke away only to be thrown so violently against the stove in the rear room that she lost consciousness. Nearly an hour later she regained her senses and found that a pocketbook containing $100, her savings of three years, which she carried in her waist, three diamond rings, and some clothing she was working on at home had been taken.

She crawled across the hall to the rooms of her neighbor, Mrs. Angelo Cologzo, and told her story before she collapsed again. Mrs. Cologzo sent her son to the East Fifth Street Station to call the police while she tried to stop the flow of blood from a gash in the woman's head.

When Detectives Carroll and Hennessy arrived the only clues they could find were an Italian stiletto and a man's tie clasp lying on the floor of the room. Dr. Tyson of Bellevue revived the woman sufficiently for her to tell the detectives that she had been followed to her home from work. At Bellevue, where Mrs. Deluca was taken, it was said that she was suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and that her condition was serious.

Later the detectives found a memorandum book and a photograph of an Italian, which they traced to the home of Pezzagola Ragusa, a tailor at 50 Stanton Street. Ragusa denied that the book was his. Mrs. Deluca, in Bellevue Hospital, recognized him as an employe in the same place where she worked. She could not identify him as one of her assailants, but told the detectives that Ragusa had warned her the day before to be ready for just such an attack and robbery unless she went out with the strikers. Ragusa was then locked up in the East Fifth Street Station.

ETTOR SPEAKS NO VIOLENCE

That much advertised mass meeting under the auspices of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society took place in Carnegie Hall last night and instead of the turbulent affair that many had predicted it was a slimly attended and in most ways a peaceful gathering.

On the stage with the speakers of the evening sat Sheriff Harburger and twenty-five Deputy Sheriffs, who had gone to the meeting to see to it that Joseph Ettor, the Lawrence strike leader, did not make suggestions about poisoning the soup and other food prepared by union cooks for capitalists.

Ettor was the last speaker, and he spoke so long that J. G. Phelps Stokes had to get up and tell him to stop.

Other speakers were Arturo Giovannitti, Ettor's co-leader in the Lawrence strike, Max Hayes of Cleveland, Ohio, Upton Sinclair, and Frank Bohn. Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes read one of Giovannitti's poems.

Giovannitti devoted most of his speech to an advocacy of "sabotage," which means that when a man strikes he should not leave the machine he operated in working condition. When a man pays poor wages, Giovannitti said, laboring men should be careful to give him only the poorest sort of work.

TELLS WHY GASOLINE IS ALWAYS GOING UP

Standard Oil Representative, for Himself, Announces Rise Is Due to Scarcity of Crude.

PRODUCTS ARE IN BIG DEMAND

Garage Owner Says Storage Had to Go Up, Too, and Cost of Running Small Auto Is $15 a Month More.

A statement intended to explainn the frequent advances in the prices of gasoline, now 100 per cent. higher than 1911, was issued yesterday by W. H. Libby, foreign representative of the Standard Oil Company. The statement was given out at 26 Broadway by the regular press representative of the Standard Oil Company, but it was presented as a personal statement from Mr. Libby, who attributes the high cost of gasoline, a by-product of crude oil, to "a worldwide increase in the demand for petroleum products" and the diminishing production of the higher qualities of crude oil.

The statement announced that Mr. Libby had had "lifelong association with the oil business" here and abroad, "eminently qualifying him to speak on the subject authoritatively." After referring to the increase in the cost of living and the "economic and public unrest" occasioned thereby, he says:

"It has been especially noticeable that until 1912 petroleum and its products did not participate in the general advance in the price applicable to most necessaries of life. The Government tables, covering ten years prior to 1911, showed a steady increase in the cost of hundreds of commodities, while oil continued at a low level, and subject only to conspicuous fluctuations. So clearly was this demonstrated in the defense of the Standard Oil Company in the Government suits of the United States that neither the Federal trial court nor the Supreme Court of the United States in its findings had held that the company had acted inequitably as to the prices it established. The contention of the Government and the public had been to the contrary.

"New conditions were developed in 1912: The worldwide increase in the demand for petroleum products conspicuously gasoline; the steadily diminishing production of the qualities of crude oil from which illuminating oil and gasoline are commercially derivable, the steady encroachment upon surplus stocks on hand.

"As the inevitable outcome of the foregoing conditions there has been a marked advance in the price of the higher qualities of crude oil, as evidenced by Government records for 1912, viz.: an advance of about 54 per cent. on Pennsylvania crude oil, about 60 per cent. on Kansas and Oklahoma, and about 57 per cent. on Illinois oil, &c."

Mr. Libby gives the total production of all grades of crude oil in the United States for 1912 as 220,200,000 barrels, or about 200,000 barrels less than in 1911, an increase of about 6,000,000 barrels of heavy gravity production, and more than a corresponding decrease of the light gravity production, and he finds that the "greatly enhanced cost of the crude material had for its inevitable sequel an advance in the manufactured products, and notably in gasoline."

Gasoline, he explains, is a by-product only and represents a very small percentage of the output of refineries, even when the best quality of crude oil is being refined.

Capt. L. J. Jocelyn, proprietor of a large garage in West Fifty-second Street, and President of the New York Garage Association, had this to say of the effect of high prices on the automobile owner:

"Up to October, 1911, I had a contract with the Standard Oil Company at 9½ cents a gallon. Now the price is 17, and I believe it is only a question of a short time when it will be advanced to 20 cents. In London and Paris motorists are now paying 50 cents a gallon for gasoline, and I'm told by foreign chauffeurs that as high as $1 a gallon is charged in some places in Europe.

"Of course, the automobile industry has increased enormously, but that is not a legitimate reason for doubling the price. Now, as to the advance spoken of by the Standard Oil Company for the Oklahoma oil; I have an offer from the Hi-Grade Oil Company of Tulsa, Okla., showing that it is receiving only 83 cents a barrel for crude oil, which is worth $2 a barrel. But an independent company like that has no way of delivering oil like the Standard.

"This high cost of gasoline is a serious thing for the automobile industry, and the average automobile owner. I have been forced to raise the rate of storage $5 per month because I can make nothing out of the sale of gasoline. The average runabout car will use 100 gallons of gasoline a month, which means an added cost of maintenance of car since 1911 of about $10 a month."

DR. CARINI BOMB VICTIM.

He and His Family Escape Injury, but Home Is Damaged.

Dr. Antonio Carini, his wife, and two grown daughters, after returning from the theatre, were seated at the table in the dining room of their apartment, on the second floor at 218 East Fourteenth Street, shortly after midnight this morning, when a bomb which had been planted on the fire escape just outside the window exploded. The family was showered with bits of shattered glass from two windows and bits of wood from the window casement. Mirrors, cut-glass dishes, and wine glasses in the room were broken and chunks of stone were dislodged from the wainscoting on the outside of the building and sent flying to the sidewalk and street. The four people in the room escaped with scratches.

Mrs. Herman Frioppa, wife of the owner of the building, who lives in the apartment above the Carinis, said that shortly before the explosion she had been frightened on looking out the window by seeing a man drop from the fire escape to the sidewalk.

Dr. Carini said he had received a number of threatening letters demanding money. These letters, however, ceased six months ago. The last one warned him to beware of a bomb if he failed to deposit $1,000 at a place in Kingsbridge near 228th Street.

SHOT HIMSELF IN MOUTH.

Friends of A. P. Wittkover Insist Death Must Have Been Accidental.

Albert P. Wittkover, 21 years old, a salesman, was found dead early last night in the parlor of his apartment at the Schuyler Arms, 307 West Ninety-eighth Street. He had been shot through the roof of his mouth, the bullet having gone through his head. A revolver lay beside the body. Coroner Holtzhauser said he thought the shooting was accidental, and Joseph Paterno, brother-in-law of the dead man, said he had no troubles of any kind, and no reason to commit suicide. The body was found by a bellboy.

Wittkover was employed by the Enamel Products Company at a salary of $50 a week, and according to Mr. Paterno had been successful in other business ventures.

HALT NEW HAVEN INQUIRY.

Special Grand Jury Discharged Pending Abatement Decision.

The Special Federal Grand Jury which has been investigating the deal between the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Grand Trunk Railroads was discharged yesterday. This was done in consequence of complications arising from the plea in abatement of the indictments of Charles S. Mellen, Edson J. Chamberlin, and Alfred W. Smithers, based on the alleged disqualification of one of the Grand Jurors to serve.

It does not mean that the inquiry has been discontinued, but only that it is not necessary to keep a Grand Jury empaneled pending the decision of the plea by a Judge and jury.
